SANTA CLAUS will be busy all over this prosperous nation very soon. And the poor little rich men, with their headquarters in Wall Street, will not be forgotten. From $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 will be distributed in bonuses to workers. And stockholders will not be forgotten. Year-end dividends of several hundred millions will set a new record.

Farmers, with their troubles, reading about this, will wish their business in life was to watch stock tickers instead of weaning calves.

MR. SUSSMAN chucked Mrs. Rosenberg under the chin, and later, in court, offered this explanation:

"I didn't have the nerve to come here this morning, so I went to get a couple of shots in me. The place I usually go to was closed and it took the better part of an hour to find another one. I got me two sho's. I guess I did go to Mrs. Rosenberger's store and maybe chuck her under the chin."

THE judge said: "You have told a straightforward story," and let him go.

So far as known the judge did not ask him where he got his "two shots" or send a policeman to find out about it. That will grieve prohibitionists.

SOME one suggests selective maternity, no woman allowed to have children unless willing to give up her entire time to them and "forego society."

That is not a good idea, if what you want is good children with power. The famous Olympias didn't exactly "give up society" or devote her life to her maternal duties, and she had only one child. But that one was Alexander the Great.

NATURE and the mothers have done fairly well on this earth in the past, changing us from cannibals and cave dwellers to half civilized beings.

THE Leyland line and the Atlantic Transport line of commercial steamships, now owned by Americans, will soon, it is said, follow the White Star line into British ownership.

You thing sometimes, for a short period, that a king, emperor or dictator might be useful even in a republic.

When Peter the Great, barely out of his teens, found that Russia had no ships, he built some, that never could travel, in a lake, for practice and amusement. Then he worked as a mechanic in a Holland shipyard, according to the story. Everybody probably knew he was an emperor. But he learned how to build a fleet, as he built St. Petersburg on a swampy, cold river, by will power.

GRID MENTOR SAYS HE'S NOT APPLICANT FOR JOB NEXT FALL

Explains Kiwanis Club Speech in Signed Statement.

ANSWERS BOARD

Athletic Leader and Team Guests at Theatre Party.

George Kidder, high school geometry teacher and football coach, will not be a member of the faculty or director of the scholastic gridiron game in East Liverpool next fall, judging from his own admission in a signed statement issued today following his speech at a Kiwanis cl[illegible]ncheon Thursday.

Says He Told Superintendent.

Declaring that he had "informed" School Superintendent C. S. McVay "that I would not be applicant for the coaching position in the face of prevalent handicaps," and "this information was given to Mr. McVay a week prior to the Leetonia game," Kidder's statement is an answer to the action taken by the board of education at its meeting Thursday night.

Kidder's declarations follow the school board's public statement in which it was said that "Mr. Kidder in his speech before the Kiwanis club voiced his own sentiments and not the sentiments of the board of education or any administrative officer."

Last night 35 or more high school students, including members of the football team and a few ex-highs and Coach Kidder saw the picture, "The Eagle of the Sea," at the Ceramic theatre as guests of the theatre management. The party was given the team and its leader complimentary to the Thanksgiving Day football victory over Wellsville.

Kidder's Statement.

Kidder's signed statement, submitted for publication, follows:

"Yes, there is no doubting that Kidder spoke for himself. Be that as it may there are thousands, who if informed about the workings of affairs athletically in the city of East Liverpool, would say a grand amen to all that was said. Yes, I spoke for myself. I have every right to believe that we all like a fellow except at times when he gets too close to the vulnerable spots of our respective constitutions. Surely I did not ask a multitude of associates as to the probable outcome or the advisability of so voicing myself. Thanks to football I have enough courage to bare my fists and battle a whole multiude if need be for the things which are in accord with my constitution. If I saw a woman being deliberately abused on the streets of our city I'd be man enough

CACHE OF WINE AND HOME BREW UNCOVERED IN DARLINGTON RAID

Angelo Papetti, Proprietor of Roll Inn, Near State Line, is Held for Grand Jury.

A cache of wine and home brew was uncovered yesterday by Beaver county authorities and Pennsylvania state police when they raided the Roll Inn, on the Darlington-East Palestine road near the state line.

Angelo Pepetti, proprietor of the hotel, was held for the Beaver county grand jury under $2,000 bail upon a charge of unlawfully possessing liquor when he was arraigned before Justice George T. Smith of Beaver Falls, following the raid.

Under the garage floor the raiders say they found the entrance to a modernly equipped cavern with concrete floors, electric lights and other conveniences. Six barrels of red wine, several cases of beer containing an illegal percent of alcohol and a small quantity of moon shine whiskey are alleged to have been uncovered. The liquor was destroyed.

The hotel was established about three years ago and has been doing a thriving business especially among tourists. In addition to a dining room, kitchen and a small store maintained on the first floor of the building, bed rooms, with sleeping accommodations for about 18 persons, were located on the second floor.

The raid followed the arrest of Nick Valentine, Beaver Falls, for a liquor violation last Saturday. In Valentin'e possession the police found a receipt for liquor alleged to have been signed by Papetti.

WAGE CUT OR OPEN SHOP, IS MINE OWNERS' DEFI TO MEN

Leaders of Union Miners Oppose Scale Slash.

STATE REPORT

Commission Urges Anti-strike Law Enactment.

By C. H. HADDOX.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 4.—An Ohio coal strike, starting April 1, next, was threatened today.

Asserting that the union coal miners of Ohio "must voluntarily agree to a wage rate that will be competitive with other competing coal districts," or coal mines in the Buckeye state "must begin operations on an open shop basis April 1, next, when the Jacksonville agreement expires, is contained in the report of the Ohio coal commission, made public here today.

In view of the public stand taken by Ohio union miners officials against reduction of wages of Ohio miners, prediction was openly made today that coal mines throughout Ohio will be involved in a strike next spring.

Pointing out that the United States supreme court has upheld the Kansas anti-strike law, the report favors enactment of an Ohio anti-strike statute.

After an extended study of the Buckeye State's coal mining and transportation problems, the commission appointed by the Ohio chamber of commerce and consisting of twenty prominent Ohioans has just completed its report. The findings and recommendations of the commission were unanimously adopted by the chamber's board of directors, it was announced.

The commission's report is interpreted as indicating that Ohio coal operators will refuse to renew the wage scale contract provided for in the Jacksonville agreement next April first, and that Buckeye State operators will insist upon a contract for lower wages for the miners, or operation of their mines on an open shop basis.

Operate at Loss, is Claim.

Claim that Ohio coal operators operated "at a loss and with a steadily declining volume of business during the last three years," is embodied in the commission's report.

The report states that millions of dollars of investment in Ohio coal mining operations have been lost and that nothing but a radical change from present operating conditions will revive the industry which has

COURT FREES WIDOW, HER TWO BROTHERS AND COUSIN IN DEATH QUIZ

Indictment for Slaying of Rector Nolle Prossed by Judge, Upon Motion of State, After "Not Guilty" Verdict Against Trio Tried for Murder of Choir Singer.

ATTORNEY GENERAL ACTS IN ABSENCE OF SPECIAL PROSECUTOR SIMPSON

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 4.—Judge Charles W. Parker nolle prossed the murder indictments remaining against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, her brothers, Henry and William Stevens, and their cousin, Henry De La Bruyere Carpender, at a hearing here today.

A verdict of "not guilty," was returned by a jury last night on the charge that Henry and Willie Stevens and their sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, were the slayers of Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

The indictment for the murder of Rev. Hall was still hanging over them when the defendants were brought into court this morning.

Attorney General Edward L. Katzenbach made the motion on behalf of the state to nolle prosse the indictments. He was representing the state in the absence of Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson who had failed to put in an appearance, although he was notified that the hearing would be held this morning.

Four Defendants Released.

"At the April term of the grand jury, indictments for murder were returned against Mrs. Frances S. Hall, Henry Stevens, William Stevens and Henry Carpender," said Katzenbach to the court. "Three of these defendants have been tried on the charge of murder and have been found not guilty.

"The state of New Jersey now moves for the nolle prossing of the indictments against all four defendants."

"The motion will be granted and the indictments nolle prossed," ruled Judge Charles W. Parker, who was sitting on the bench with Judge Frank L. Cleary.

Mrs. Hall Smiles When Freed.

Mrs. Hall, her two brothers and Carpender had been brought into court a few moments before the judge's decision was announced.

Mrs. Hall smiled quietly as the ruling was made freeing her forever from the murder charges.

Willie Stevens beamed. He arose, shook hands with his attorneys and told reporters he was "glad it was all over."

To the end Henry Stevens was grim and reserved, his expression not changed.

The well groomed Carpender, a Wall street broker, accepted the decision in a matter-of-fact manner.

When the crowd that swarmed around the defendants, moved away, both Henry Stevens and Willie walked over to their sister in the courtroom and kissed her. Tears came to Mrs. Hall's eyes.

Then Henry Carpender came to her and very quietly embraced her without speaking.

Mrs. Hall was speechless.

The booth was in charge of Mesdames Harry Russell, Willard Birkett and James Hill.

Simpson Scores State's Action in Sensational Case

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 4.—Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, sharply criticised the action of Attorney General Katzenbach today in causing the dismissal of the remaining charges against the defendants.

"It has been done against my opposition; it has been done over my head, and I consider it another blow aimed at justice," he said.

CANTON COURTHOUSE DRAMA, IN WHICH EX-CONVICT IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF EDITOR, WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

CANTON, O., Dec. 4. — Another courthouse drama upon which the interest of the American public will be centered for weeks, was scheduled today to open in the Stark county hall of justice, Monday morning, before Judge E. W Diehl, in common pleas court, when Patrick Eugene McDermott goes on trial for his life for the murder of Don R Mellett, young Canton newspaper publisher.

McDermott is the first of three men, including Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer alleged figures in the Ohio underground liquor traffic, to face trial in the sensational Mellett murder case.

Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News, was assassinated as he parked his car in his garage early one morning last July, after attending a party with his wife and another couple. He had been warned repeatedly that his vigorous newspaper campaign against the underworld forces of Canton would bring down the wrath of the Canton "Jungle" upon his head, but had ignored the threats.

The trial of McDermott is expected to open to public scrutiny a sordid story of vice and political corruption which held Canton firmly in its grasp, and furnished the setting for a flourishing underworld cabal, which Mellett battled with the zeal of a crusader, through his newspaper.

Despite denials by the attorneys who are defending the three men under indictment, preliminary legal skirmishing has obviously indicated that the defense seeks a delay in the trial of McDermott, and legal entanglements may yet cause a postponement.

The defense has moved to delay the trial until depositions of two important witnesses, the brothers of Pat McDermott, who live in Nanty Glo, Pa., can be obtained, claiming their testimony is vital to the defense and the witnesses are outside the jurisdiction of the court.

Another angle which may cause delay is a suit in supreme court, brought by Prosecutor C. B. McClintock of Stark county, in an effort to nullify an order by Judge Diehl, granting bail to the other two defendants, Mazer and Rudner. The court has continued this hearing until Monday, and it would appear that the necessity of their presence in Columbus to appear in this matter might be sufficient grounds for the defense lawyers to obtain a temporary delay at least, in McDermott's trial. Prosecutor McClintock, it is understood, has made arrangements for Attorney H. H. Poettius, who was Mellett's personal attorney, to appear in the supreme court case for him, leaving the prosecutor free to conduct the McDermott trial preliminaries.

He was representing the state in the absence of Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson who had failed to put in an appearance, although he was notified that the hearing would be held this morning.

Four Defendants Released.

"At the April term of the grand jury, indictments for murder were returned against Mrs. Frances S. Hall, Henry Stevens, William Stevens and Henry Carpender," said Katzenbach to the court. "Three of these defendants have been tried on the charge of murder and have been found not guilty.

"The state of New Jersey now moves for the nolle prossing of the indictments against all four defendants."

"The motion will be granted and the indictments nolle prossed," ruled Judge Charles W. Parker, who was sitting on the bench with Judge Frank L. Cleary.

Mrs. Hall Smiles When Freed.

Mrs. Hall, her two brothers and Carpender had been brought into court a few moments before the judge's decision was announced.

Mrs. Hall smiled quietly as the ruling was made freeing her forever from the murder charges.

Willie Stevens beamed. He arose, shook hands with his attorneys and told reporters he was "glad it was all over."

To the end Henry Stevens was grim and reserved, his expression not changed.

The well groomed Carpender, a Wall street broker, accepted the decision in a matter-of-fact manner.

When the crowd that swarmed around the defendants, moved away, both Henry Stevens and Willie walked over to their sister in the courtroom and kissed her. Tears came to Mrs. Hall's eyes.

Then Henry Carpender came to her and very quietly embraced her without speaking.

Mrs. Hall was speechless.

Simpson Scores State's Action in Sensational Case

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 4.—Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, sharply criticised the action of Attorney General Katzenbach today in causing the dismissal of the remaining charges against the defendants.

"It has been done against my opposition; it has been done over my head, and I consider it another blow aimed at justice," he said.

CANTON COURTHOUSE DRAMA, IN WHICH EX-CONVICT IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF EDITOR, WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

CANTON, O., Dec. 4. — Another courthouse drama upon which the interest of the American public will be centered for weeks, was scheduled today to open in the Stark county hall of justice, Monday morning, before Judge E. W Diehl, in common pleas court, when Patrick Eugene McDermott goes on trial for his life for the murder of Don R. Mellett, young Canton newspaper publisher.

McDermott is the first of three men, including Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer alleged figures in the Ohio underground liquor traffic, to face trial in the sensational Mellett murder case.

Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News, was assassinated as he parked his car in his garage early one morning last July, after attending a party with his wife and another couple. He had been warned repeatedly that his vigorous newspaper campaign against the underworld forces of Canton would bring down the wrath of the Canton "Jungle" upon his head, but had ignored the threats.

The trial of McDermott is expected to open to public scrutiny a sordid story of vice and political corruption which held Canton firmly in its grasp, and furnished the setting for a flourishing underworld cabal, which Mellett battled with the zeal of a crusader, through his newspaper.

Despite denials by the attorneys who are defending the three men under indictment, preliminary legal skirmishing has obviously indicated that the defense seeks a delay in the trial of McDermott, and legal entanglements may yet cause a postponement.

The defense has moved to delay the trial until depositions of two important witnesses, the brothers of Pat McDermott, who live in Nanty Glo, Pa., can be obtained, claiming their testimony is vital to the defense and the witnesses are outside the jurisdiction of the court.

Another angle which may cause delay is a suit in supreme court, brought by Prosecutor C. B. McClintock of Stark county, in an effort to nullify an order by Judge Diehl, granting bail to the other two defendants, Mazer and Rudner. The court has continued this hearing until Monday, and it would appear that the necessity of their presence in Columbus to appear in this matter might be sufficient grounds for the defense lawyers to obtain a temporary delay at least, in McDermott's trial. Prosecutor McClintock, it is understood, has made arrangements for Attorney H. H. Pontius, who was Mellett's personal attorney, to appear in the supreme court case for him, leaving the prosecutor free to conduct the McDermott trial preliminaries.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

500. How are the two classes, the godly and the ungodly, represented in this parable?

Answer: By the sheep and the goat. see Verses 32, 33.

501. Why are the sheep placed at His right hand?

Answer: Because the right hand means the place of favor, and the Lord loves those who have the sheep disposition—those who are loving, meek and willing to be led into the pastures of truth.

502. What is the disposition of the goat?

Answer: The goat wants his own way, likes to climb to the highest places, feeds on miserable refuse and is not loving.

503. Why does the Lord give the kingdom (Verse 34) and eternal life (Verse 46) to the sheep class?

Answer: Because they manifested love by their works when they were put to the test. They fed the hungry, gave drink to the thirsty, clothed the naked, etc. See Verses 35-40.

504. Why does the goat class "go into everlasting punishment?" (Verse 46)?

Answer: Because they show by their works the lack of the disposition of love for others.

505. What does the "fire" in verse 41 mean?

Answer: Fire is a symbol of destruction, and "everlasting fire" symbolizes everlasting destruction. See Revelation 20:9; Acts 3:23; Romans 6:23; Ezekiel 18:4, 20; Psalm 145:20.

506. Why is their punishment called "everlasting punishment" (Verse 46)?

Answer: Because they will be everlastingly destroyed—there will be no coming back to life again for them. They have proved themselves unworthy of life. They did not prove faithful under test or trial, and could not therefore live in harmony with the Lord and His righteous kingdom. glovedinuot-2030a;Uerevnessshrdtshrd

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

500. How are the two classes, the godly and the ungodly, represented in this parable?

Answer: By the sheep and the goat. see Verses 32, 33.

501. Why are the sheep placed at His right hand?

Answer: Because the right hand means the place of favor, and the Lord loves those who have the sheep disposition—those who are loving, meek and willing to be led into the pastures of truth.

502. What is the disposition of the goat?

Answer: The goat wants his own way, likes to climb to the highest places, feeds on miserable refuse and is not loving.

503. Why does the Lord give the kingdom (Verse 34) and eternal life (Verse 46) to the sheep class?

Answer: Because they manifested love by their works when they were put to the test. They fed the hungry, gave drink to the thirsty, clothed the naked, etc. See Verses 35-40.

504. Why does the goat class "go into everlasting punishment?" (Verse 46)?

Answer: Because they show by their works the lack of the disposition of love for others.

505. What does the "fire" in verse 41 mean?

Answer: Fire is a symbol of destruction, and "everlasting fire" symbolizes everlasting destruction. See Revelation 20:9; Acts 3:23; Romans 6:23; Ezekiel 18:4, 20; Psalm 145:20.

506. Why is their punishment called "everlasting punishment" (Verse 46)?

Answer: Because they will be everlastingly destroyed—there will be no coming back to life again for them. They have proved themselves unworthy of life. They did not prove faithful under test or trial, and could not therefore live in harmony with the Lord and His righteous kingdom. glovedinuot-2030a;Uerevnessshrdishrd

LABOR SITUATION GOOD IN STATE

In his biannual report to Governor Gore, Howard S. Jarrett, labor commissioner will say that West Virginia has amply shared in the nationwide prosperity of the last year and that labor difficulties have been few and far between.

Mr. Jarrett's report follows in part:

"Every one engaged in industry, workers and owners alike, are beginning to realize the truth of that apt illustration—Two Moose leaders of their herds, once met in deadly combat. Today their locked antlers, mute evidence of the futility of antagonism and strife lie bleaching on the plains. Employers and employees have profited through numerous experiences of industrial conflicts and are now agreed that it is far better to lock arms and live in peace and tranquility than to lock horns and die.

"The predominating factor in the welfare and progress of any state is not the question of a living wage alone, but couples with a saving wage to the toilers. The individual workman can judge the distinction and work out the problem according to his own family budget. No one should deny him a wage that does not include a sum for recreation and funds for the education of his children. Out of the 39 industries in West Virginia, which includes, 786 firms reporting to the bureau, 23 of the industries disclose an increase in wages in the year 1925 over the year 1924, while 15 industries paid less on an average in 1925 than in 1924. One industry paid the same average wage in the two years.

"This situation indicated a healthier business in these lines of industry."

He said the average wage in 1924 was $1,383, while in 1925 it was $1,409.

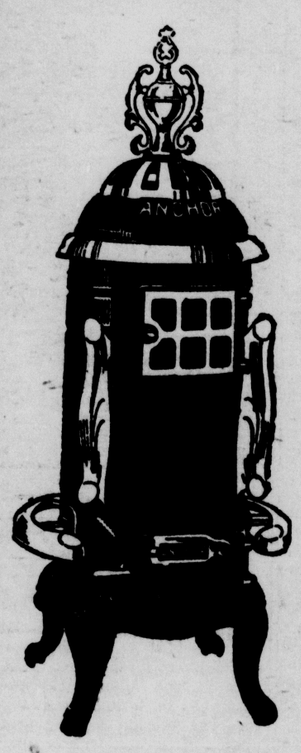
Warm Comfort In Every Room

WITH THE LATEST IMPROVED

Anchor Hot Blast Heater



Wherever heating stoves are used the Anchor Hot Blast proves its superiority—proves that in down-right eficiency, in convenience, in actual economy, it is without an equal.

This superiority is not an accident, but is the result of many years of practical and scientific heating stove manufacture and practical tests.

The features of construction the Anchor Hot Blast Heater meet every requirement of heating-stove efficiency and long-time service. Highest quality materials, expert workmanship and scientific design combine to give a heating result unequalled in this type of heater.

The Anchor Hot Blast will burn any fuel—hard coal, soft coal, lignite, wood or coke, giving a uniform heat under perfect control, and slow economical combustion. Because of the hot-blast feature, the gases from soft coat are completely burned, making a ton of soft coal equal to a ton or more of expensive hard coal.

Careful attention has been applied to every detail of construction. And it is mounted absolutely airtight and remains airtight, because these details have been perfected and made practical.

In addition to a fine appearance that will last the life of the stove, the Anchor Hot Blast offers real home comfort and a saving of 25 per cent on your fuel bill.

Study these construction features. Know that your Anchor Hot Blast will save its cost out of the coal bin and pay dividends for years to come in warm home comfort and satisfaction.

All sizes 16, 18, 20 inch firebowl — make a small payment at time of purchase, you can pay through the coming year.

The Most Prosperous Year

During the present year, reports the scientific-minded Herbert Hoover, "the country was able to maintain the highest standard of living in history, a standard far above that in most countries of the world at this time or any other time."

This is a momentous statement, the full effect of which takes a little time to sink in. It means that 1926 has been the most prosperous year in the history of the most prosperous country on earth.

It is well to realize the kind of prosperity meant. It is not necessarily true that capitalists or big business men have made more money this year than they made at certain prosperity peaks in the past—during the late war boom, for example. It does not mean that everybody in the country has been wallowing in prosperity. What it means is that the people as a whole have got more for their efforts and lived better and got ahead faster than at any other time in the past.

It has been this year a sane, orderly prosperity diffused through society, with the wage-earner getting his full portion. Heaven send us more of such years!

Criminal Court Reform

A big American bar association has considered and turned down these two proposals, intended to facilitate the prosecution of criminals:

That the presumption of innocence in criminal cases should be abolished, and that three-fourths of a jury should suffice to render a verdict.

It is perhaps inevitable that the former proposal should be condemned, either by lawyers or laity. It is a fundamental principle of our Anglo-Saxon law and tradition, in contrast to other codes of Europe and Asia, that any person is innocent until he is proved guilty. It would seem like an overthrow of American liberty if a prisoner were considered guilty and liable to punishment unless he could prove his innocence.

This is a fundamental question of emphasis and viewpoint. It is considered necessary, for the preservation of individual freedom and the prevention of social and governmental tryanny, that the accused rather than the accuser should have the benefit of the doubt. It will take greater grievances against criminals that society has yet incurred to overthrow that principle.

The other proposal is not in the same class. It may be that nine jurors out of 12 are not a large enough ratio to guarantee every accused person a fair trial in criminal court; but there is a growing feeling that it ought to be possible to decide the facts of a criminal case by something less than a unanimous jury ballot.

As matters stand, one wrong-headed or crooked juror may keep a guilty person from deserved punishment, whereas it would take 12 wrong-headed or crooked jurymen to inflict punishment on the innocent. Thus the accused has 12 chances to one in his favor. The odds against society are too great.

It might even things enough to insure substantial justice on both sides if 10 or 11 jurors out of 12 were empowered to declare an accused person guilty.

Cheap Ocean Travel

"Three cents a mile to Europe" is the newest shipping slogan, and a good one. Three liners have been fitted out for "exclusive third cabin traffic," and will actually carry passengers across the Atlantic at this rate.

If there were a bridge across, it would probably cost two or three times that much to drive in your own family bus.

This one-class service is pretty decent, too—simple and plain, but clean and respectable, with all the necessaries of sea traffic, and many things which would have been considered real comforts a few years ago. The original Mayflower pilgrims would think such accommodations the height of luxury. So would many of their numerous descendants.

It is becoming about as cheap to travel as to stay at home. No wonder Americans are becoming a nation of inveterate gadders.

With Queen Marie gone home and the Hall murder case nearing a close, the country can soon settle down and devote the next two years to electing a president.

The various members of the British Empire, having declared that they are altogether independent of each other, are much more inclined to work together.

Next time I shall see America," says Queen Marie. Not if America sees her first. She will be overwhelmed with entertainment and oratory just the same.

The planets and stars, astronomers say, are composed of the same materials as the earth. So we might just as well settle down and stay here.

The Christmas shopping season is on, and many a loving family is going out and squandering its loose change to buy mother a new dish pan.

My Favorite Stories
By IRVIN S. COBB

THE UNACCOMMODATING SAMUEL.

The Southern negro takes pride in a funeral—his own or anyone's else. Some of Harris Dickson's best darky yarns have been written about the Virgil Custard Coffin club. Nearly every reputable colored citizen of a southern community pays his dues in his burial society in order to insure for himself a glorious final send-off. His provision for his obsequies often is a gauge as to his social and financial standing.

In one of the largest cities of Georgia there is a dignified, well-rounded-out colored man who has functioned for many years as the reception committee at the largest bank in town. He welcomes all comers at the front door. His manner of greeting a prominent depositor is a lessen in courtliness and deportment. Among his own race he is a power. Especially does he shine when an interment is taking place.

One day he received a message from his sister, a widow on a little farm a few miles out in the country, telling him that her son, and his nephew, was very low. If he wished, to see poor Sam alive he must come at once. What, from the uncle's standpoint, was even more important, he must bring with him a casket and a shroud, as no undertaker was to be found in the neighborhood where the grieving mother lived.

Uncle Henry moved promptly. He obtained a three days' leave of absence from his duties, borrowed some money from Mr. Gray, the president of the bank, loaded a coffin into the back of the wagon, and set out, more in exultation than in sorrow.

At the end of the week he returned, looking strangely depressed. His employed met him on his arrival.

"Well, Uncle Henry," he said, "I hope you had a good funeral?"

"Huh!" grunted the old man. "'Twuzn't nothin' to brag 'bout, Mist' Gray."

"Well, I regret that. If I'd known it was a matter of money I should have been glad to let you have as much more as you needed."

"That wuzn't it, Mist' Gray. The main trubble wuz wid that dam' nigger Sam—he never did die!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Nothing is quite so amusing in New York as those phoney high-brow teas where everybody gets a bit blotto. I just attended one. It started off auspiciously sedate and with the decorum of a Christmas cantata.

There were discussions of early American furniture, Chinese ceramics, the technique of Jeritza, Oscar Wilde's last days in Paris, Byron's last days in Italy, the abnormalities of the modern drama, relativity and many other rather uptown topics.

The tea was evidently quite potent for somehow the conversation skidded into the realms of the Charleston and before one realized it the phonograph was switched on and an elderly gray haired lady, who had been discussing Spinoza, demonstrated a few hot steps.

She was joined by several others and an affair starting off so Victorian suddenly became an "hey! hey!" soirec. The host a little later appeared with a towel playfully wrapped around his head and draped in a Navajo blanket to demonstrate the technique of a nautch dance.

Two other genetlemen would have doubtless shocked their boards of directors by giving a burlesque version of vaudeville strong men, upsetting in their caper a table of books and bric-a-brac with a thundering crash.

Ladies who had a half hour before sat primly in their chairs with hands folded palms up in their lap suddenly developed the spirit of hoydens and were romping and leaping about like those garlanded and thinly clad who fall dead at the end of the dance.

Teas these gallivanting days often take this sort of roystering turn. It is, of course, all good fun but often rough on furniture. I wanted to pay respects to the host before departing but he was taking a little siesta in the kitchen sink.

Broadway likes to refer to Brooklyn as "the wrong end of Brooklyn Bridge" and strangely enough the residents of Brooklyn have the same pitying attitude toward those living in Manhattan.

I have often wondered why the mere mention of Flatbush would transport vaudeville audiences into gales of laughter. It is one of the most peaceful of all the suburbs with residential sections as magnificent as those found anywhere. Then there are those towns with wild Jersey names, like Hackenback. Pleasant suburbs but always good for a vaudeville laugh.

In the past year three fairly well known youths of Broadway have chucked life with a gesture of disdain. One wrote a poem, lit a cigarette and turn on the gas. Another shook hands with a friend on a Broadway corner, said lightly, "I'll probably not see you for some time," and went to his room and shot himself. The third telephoned his sweetheart he had been called suddenly away and jumped out the window. Broadway often has a way of curtailing life's drama to a curtain raiser. They come, they see—they yawn!

Big hotels face a problem in stilling a panic when there is a fire in the neighborhood late at night. Everybody wants to get out at once with their luggage. The greatest danger is among those who lose their heads and try to jump from windows. Old people, hotels say, are generally calmest in such emergencies.

As a matter of fact fire insurance men say a fire disaster—such as that of the Windsor hotel—would be impossible in the modern hotels of today. The only danger is in people losing their mental poise.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Romance of Science—II.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Adventurers in one of the great modern romances of science were the two observers who set out from Washington but a few months ago for the Union of South Africa to take charge of the new astrophysical observatory established by the Smithsonian Institute with the cooperation of the National Geographic society.

They bade goodbye to civilization for three years which they are to spend on a barren mountain in a desert inhabited only by Hottentots and wild animals. They have long since reached their destination, and soon their daily cabled reports will be reaching Washington, possibly to bring about epoch-making progress in long range weather forecasts and possibly to record a comparatively negligible accomplishment.

It's a big gamble—lives, brains, labor, and money wagered with a possible prize of immeasurable benefit to humankind.

William H. Hoover and Frederick A. Greeley are the adventurers. They are familiar with such undertakings, having had experience at the Smithsonian's mountain observatories in California and in Chili, but they had never before tackled a job that promised so much of discomfort and hard work as this African expedition. There is an added touch of romance and human interest to the affair, therefore, in the fact that Mr. Hoover took with him his motherless eighteen-months-old baby daughter, and the child's aunt, who will give the younger the feminine care she should have.

They were to live in a cave in the precipitous side of Mount Purkaros at an elevation of almost 5,000 feet above the sea level. It is a region where never a flower nor anything green grows; nothing but chocolate-colored rocks and sand for miles around. The nearest neighbors are seven miles away, and they are semi-savage black folks, so that if tiny Miss Hoover sees another child or has a playmate before she is five years of age it will be a little Hottentot. It is an extraordinary situation—so much so, in fact, that if it were created by a writer of fiction it would probably be criticised as entirely too imaginative.

Cave Does Not Materialize.

When the party reached their destination, however, they found that the cave home had not materialized. The Inspector of Public Works under the government of Southwest Africa had undertaken to prepare the observatory site and the living quarters for the observers, carrying out the plans of Dr. Abbot who visited Mount Burkaros last March. Mr. Abbot had located a cave which he though could be converted into suitable living quarters by enlarging it and building partitions, a front wall, and a front porch. But when the task was begun it was found wholly impracticable. Consequently a corrugated iron house was erected on a level spot on the inside of the cup-like top of the mountain.

Similarly Dr. Abbot had planned that the observatory should be a smaller cave, extended by a tunnel in which to house the delicate instruments that measure the sun's heat and that must be kept in place of even temperature. That had to be abandoned because of the unsuitability of the mountain for tunneling, and a second site suffered the same fate after several hundred tons of loose rock had been removed. The third try proved successful, and the observatory was established on the topmost ridge of the mountain, which towers 1,000 feet above the bottom of the "cup."

To obtain water during this construction work the engineers had to sink a well under the site of a dry waterfall miles away and transport the water on the backs of donkeys. To provide water for the observers and their household, two tanks with a capacity of 3,000 gallons each have been excavated in the rocks to catch rainfall. Not a drop of rain has fallen during the past six month, but the rainy season for Brukkaros comes in February and March, and it is expected that then a sufficient supply of water will be caught in the tanks to carry the observers through the long dry season. Until the rains come the Americans will have to haul water supply up on the backs of four small donkeys that have been provided for them, and then derrick it over a cut in the rim of the cup inside of which is their dwelling.

The British postal authorities have erected a special telephone line connecting the observatory with the wire at the railway station or Tses. This will make possible telephoning the daily reports on the sun's radiation to Keetmanshoop, whence they will be cabled to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The only other communication the Americans will have with the outside world will be their radio, and a truck on which their supplies will be hauled to them. This truck will be housed in a garage on the plateau at the base of the mountain, more than three miles from the observatory and the living quarters.

Fascinating Instruments.

The instruments set up for measuring the sun's heat on Mount Bukkaros are so interesting as to be fascinating, although scientists find it difficult to explain them in terms that the layman can understand. There is the coelostat to reflect the sun's rays constantly in a fixed direction into the observing chamber. It has two mirrors, one rotating half as fast as the earth, the other stationary. The first reflects the sunbeam in a certain fixed but inconvenient direction, while the second sends it horizontally into the laboratory.

There the sunbeam falls into a spectroscope, and since neither the eye nor the camera can register the whole gamut of solar spectrum rays, it is

Good Elimination is More Than Ever Important.

As we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. Proper function cleanses the blood stream thoroughly. Sluggish function is apt to permit some retention of uric acid and other poisons. This tends to make one tired, listless and achy—to have drowsy headaches and dizziness and perhaps a toxic backache. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passages. Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills in this condition. The Most Prosperous Year

During the present year, reports the scientific-minded Herbert Hoover, "the country was able to maintain the highest standard of living in history, a standard far above that in most countries of the world at this time or any other time."

This is a momentous statement, the full effect of which takes a little time to sink in. It means that 1926 has been the most prosperous year in the history of the most prosperous country on earth.

It is well to realize the kind of prosperity meant. It is not necessarily true that capitalists or big business men have made more money this year than they made at certain prosperity peaks in the past—during the late war boom, for example. It does not mean that everybody in the country has been wallowing in prosperity. What it means is that the people as a whole have got more for their efforts and lived better and got ahead faster than at any other time in the past.

It has been this year a sane, orderly prosperity diffused through society, with the wage-earner getting his full portion. Heaven send us more of such years!

Criminal Court Reform

A big American bar association has considered and turned down these two proposals, intended to facilitate the prosecution of criminals:

That the presumption of innocence in criminal cases should be abolished, and that three-fourths of a jury should suffice to render a verdict.

It is perhaps inevitable that the former proposal should be condemned, either by lawyers or laity. It is a fundamental principle of our Anglo-Saxon law and tradition, in contrast to other codes of Europe and Asia, that any person is innocent until he is proved guilty. It would seem like an overthrow of American liberty if a prisoner were considered guilty and liable to punishment unless he could prove his innocence.

This is a fundamental question of emphasis and viewpoint. It is considered necessary, for the preservation of individual freedom and the prevention of social and governmental tryanny, that the accused rather than the accuser should have the benefit of the doubt. It will take greater grievances against criminals that society has yet incurred to overthrow that principle.

The other proposal is not in the same class. It may be that nine jurors out of 12 are not a large enough ratio to guarantee every accused person a fair trial in criminal court; but there is a growing feeling that it ought to be possible to decide the facts of a criminal case by something less than a unanimous jury ballot.

As matters stand, one wrong-headed or crooked juror may keep a guilty person from deserved punishment, whereas it would take 12 wrong-headed or crooked jurymen to inflict punishment on the innocent. Thus the accused has 12 chances to one in his favor. The odds against society are too great.

It might even things enough to insure substantial justice on both sides if 10 or 11 jurors out of 12 were empowered to declare an accused person guilty.

Cheap Ocean Travel

"Three cents a mile to Europe" is the newest shipping slogan, and a good one. Three liners have been fitted out for "exclusive third cabin traffic," and will actually carry passengers across the Atlantic at this rate.

If there were a bridge across, it would probably cost two or three times that much to drive in your own family bus.

This one-class service is pretty decent, too—simple and plain, but clean and respectable, with all the necessaries of sea traffic, and many things which would have been considered real comforts a few years ago. The original Mayflower pilgrims would think such accommodations the height of luxury. So would many of their numerous descendants.

It is becoming about as cheap to travel as to stay at home. No wonder Americans are becoming a nation of inveterate gadders.

With Queen Marie gone home and the Hall murder case nearing a close, the country can soon settle down and devote the next two years to electing a president.

The various members of the British Empire, having declared that they are altogether indeperdent of each other, are much more inclined to work together.

Next time I shall see America," says Queen Marie. Not if America sees her first. She will be overwhelmed with entertainment and oratory just the same.

The planets and stars, astronomers say, are composed of the same materials as the earth. So we might just as well settle down and stay here.

The Christmas shopping season is on, and many a loving family is going out and squandering its loose change to buy mother a new dish pan.

THE UNACCOMMODATING SAMUEL.

The Southern negro takes pride in a funeral—his own or anyone's else. Some of Harris Dickson's best darky yarns have been written about the Virgil Custard Coffin club. Nearly every reputable colored citizen of a southern community pays his dues in his burial society in order to insure for himself a glorious final send-off. His provision for his obsequies often is a gauge as to his social and financial standing.

In one of the largest cities of Georgia there is a dignified, well-rounded-out colored man who has functioned for many years as the reception committee at the largest bank in town. He welcomes all comers at the front door. His manner of greeting a prominent depositor is a lessen in courtliness and deportment. Among his own race he is a power. Especially does he shine when an interment is taking place.

One day he received a message from his sister, a widow on a little farm a few miles out in the country, telling him that her son, and his nephew, was very low. If he wished, to see poor Sam alive he must come at once. What, from the uncle's standpoint, was even more important, he must bring with him a casket and a shroud, as no undertaker was to be found in the neighborhood where the grieving mother lived.

Uncle Henry moved promptly. He obtained a three days' leave of absence from his duties, borrowed some money from Mr. Gray, the president of the bank, loaded a coffin into the back of the wagon, and set out, more in exultation than in sorrow.

At the end of the week he returned, looking strangely depressed. His employed met him on his arrival.

"Well, Uncle Henry," he said, "I hope you had a good funeral?"

"Huh!" grunted the old man. "'Twuzn't nothin' to brag 'bout, Mist' Gray."

"Well, I regret that. If I'd known it was a matter of money I should have been glad to let you have as much more as you needed."

"That wuzn't it, Mist' Gray. The main trubble wuz wid that dam' nigger Sam—he never did die!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Nothing is quite so amusing in New York as those phoney high-brow teas where everybody gets a bit blotto. I just attended one. It started off auspiciously sedate and with the decorum of a Christmas cantata.

There were discussions of early American furniture, Chinese ceramics, the technique of Jeritza, Oscar Wilde's last days in Paris, Byron's last days in Italy, the abnormalities of the modern drama, relativity and many other rather uptown topics.

The tea was evidently quite potent for somehow the conversation skidded into the realms of the Charleston and before one realized it the phonograph was switched on and an elderly gray haired lady, who had been discussing Spinoza, demonstrated a few hot steps.

She was joined by several others and an affair starting off so Victorian suddenly became an "hey! hey!" soiree. The host a little later appeared with a towel playfully wrapped around his head and draped in a Navajo blanket to demonstrate the technique of a nautch dance.

Two other genetlemen would have doubtless shocked their boards of directors by giving a burlesque version of vaudeville strong men, upsetting in their caper a table of books and bric-a-brac with a thundering crash.

Ladies who had a half hour before sat primly in their chairs with hands folded palms up in their lap suddenly developed the spirit of hoydens and were romping and leaping about like those garlanded and thinly clad who fall dead at the end of the dance.

Teas these gallivanting days often take this sort of roystering turn. It is, of course, all good fun but often rough on furniture. I wanted to pay respects to the host before departing but he was taking a little siesta in the kitchen sink.

Broadway likes to refer to Brooklyn as "the wrong end of Brooklyn Bridge" and strangely enough the residents of Brooklyn have the same pitying attitude toward those living in Manhattan.

I have often wondered why the mere mention of Flatbush would transport vaudeville audiences into gales of laughter. It is one of the most peaceful of all the suburbs with residential sections as magnificent as those found anywhere. Then there are those towns with wild Jersey names, like Hackenback. Pleasant suburbs but always good for a vaudeville laugh.

In the past year three fairly well known youths of Broadway have chucked life with a gesture of disdain. One wrote a poem, lit a cigarette and turn on the gas. Another shook hands with a friend on a Broadway corner, said lightly, "I'll probably not see you for some time," and went to his room and shot himself. The third telephoned his sweetheart he had been called suddenly away and jumped out the window. Broadway often has a way of curtailing life's drama to a curtain raiser. They come, they see—they yawn!

Big hotels face a problem in stilling a panic when there is a fire in the neighborhood late at night. Everybody wants to get out at once with their luggage. The greatest danger is among those who lose their heads and try to jump from windows. Old people, hotels say, are generally calmest in such emergencies.

As a matter of fact fire insurance men say a fire disaster—such as that of the Windsor hotel—would be impossible in the modern hotels of today. The only danger is in people losing their mental poise.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Romance of Science—II.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Adventurers in one of the great modern romances of science were the two observers who set out from Washington but a few months ago for the Union of South Africa to take charge of the new astrophysical observatory established by the Smithsonian Institute with the cooperation of the National Geographic society.

They bade goodbye to civilization for three years which they are to spend on a barren mountain in a desert inhabited only by Hottentots and wild animals. They have long since reached their destination, and soon their daily cabled reports will be reaching Washington, possibly to bring about epoch-making progress in long range weather forecasts and possibly to record a comparatively negligible accomplishment.

It's a big gamble—lives, brains, labor, and money wagered with a possible prize of immeasurable benefit to humankind.

William H. Hoover and Frederick A. Greeley are the adventurers. They are familiar with such undertakings, having had experience at the Smithsonian's mountain observatories in California and in Chili, but they had never before tackled a job that promised so much of discomfort and hard work as this African expedition. There is an added touch of romance and human interest to the affair, therefore, in the fact that Mr. Hoover took with him his motherless eighteen-months-old baby daughter, and the child's aunt, who will give the youngster the feminine care she should have.

They were to live in a cave in the precipitous side of Mount Purkaros at an elevation of almost 5,000 feet above the sea level. It is a region where never a flower nor anything green grows; nothing but chocolate-colored rocks and sand for miles around. The nearest neighbors are seven miles away, and they are semi-savage black folks, so that if tiny Miss Hoover sees another child or has a playmate before she is five years of age it will be a little Hottentot. It is an extraordinary situation—so much so, in fact, that if it were created by a writer of fiction it would probably be criticised as entirely too imaginative.

Cave Does Not Materialize.

When the party reached their destination, however, they found that the cave home had not materialized. The Inspector of Public Works under the government of Southwest Africa had undertaken to prepare the observatory site and the living quarters for the observers, carrying out the plans of Dr. Abbot who visited Mount Burkkaros last March. Mr. Abbot had located a cave which he though could be converted into suitable living quarters by enlarging it and building partitions, a front wall, and a front porch. But when the task was begun it was found wholly impracticable. Consequently a corrugated iron house was erected on a level spot on the inside of the cup-like top of the mountain.

Similarly Dr. Abbot had planned that the observatory should be a smaller cave, extended by a tunnel in which to house the delicate instruments that measure the sun's heat and that must be kept in place of even temperature. That had to be abandoned because of the unsuitability of the mountain for tunneling, and a second site suffered the same fate after several hundred tons of loose rock had been removed. The third try proved successful, and the observatory was established on the topmost ridge of the mountain, which towers 1,000 feet above the bottom of the "cup."

To obtain water during this construction work the engineers had to sink a well under the site of a dry waterfall miles away and transport the water on the backs of donkeys. To provide water for the observers and their household, two tanks with a capacity of 3,000 gallons each have been excavated in the rocks to catch rainfall. Not a drop of rain has fallen during the past six month, but the rainy season for Brukkaros comes in February and March, and it is expected that then a sufficient supply of water will be caught in the tanks to carry the observers through the long dry season. Until the rains come the Americans will have to haul water supply up on the backs of four small donkeys that have been provided for them, and then derrick it over a cut in the rim of the cup inside of which is their dwelling.

The British postal authorities have erected a special telephone line connecting the observatory with the wire at the railway station or Tses. This will make possible telephoning the daily reports on the sun's radiation to Keetmanshoop, whence they will be cabled to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The only other communication the Americans will have with the outside world will be their radio, and a truck on which their supplies will be hauled to them. NEWS FROM TOWNS IN TRI-STATE DISTRICT

LISBON

M. K. Zimerman, West Park Ave. Phone 319-R. Lisbon, O.

SHEEP CLAIMS WILL BE FILED

Statistics Show Large Number Killed During Year by Dogs.

The sheep growing industry in this county is being seriously threatened by dogs, it has been revealed by the annual statement of sheep claims which will be filed with the county commissioners Monday for payment.

County Auditor Elmer E. Walker today declared that it was his belief that the state legislature should enact new legislation to curb the slaughter of sheep by dogs.

The number of animals being killed by dogs is increasing annually, statistics for this county for the last 12 months reveal. The year just ending has eclipsed all former records in this connection.

There is now on file in the auditor's office 81 claims representing $4,757.45 that the county commissioners will have to approve for payment Monday. These claims show 426 sheep killed by dogs during the last year and 110 injured. In addition to this record, five other head of cattle have been killed by dogs and three injured. It is stated that these figures will likely be increased before the close of the month.

"Unless worthless sheep-killing dogs are eliminated, the sheep industry of the county is doomed," Mr. Walker declared.

Sheep claims received from different townships that will be ordered paid Monday by the county commissioners are: Center, 13; Elkrun, 9; Middleton, 9; Salem, 8; Butler, 7; West, 7; Fairfield, 5; Hanover, 5; Unity, 5; Yellow Creek, 4; Wayne, 2; Franklin, 2; Madison, 2; Perry and Knox townships, 1 each.

Up until the close of business Friday evening 6,229 dog licenses have been issued for the current year. There is approximately $8,000 in the dog and kennel fund now, and it is from this fund that all sheep claims are paid. The law provides that $1,000 shall always remain in this fund, and that the balance of the fund, less 35 per cent specified by law for the enforcement of the law, be paid to the credit of the county board of education.

Until the passage of a law during the last session of the legislature, sheep claims were paid more frequently than now. The present law provides that sheep claims be paid by the county commissioners once each year.

When sheep claims are filed, the value of the stock killed or injured as filed by the owner is compared with the valuation the owner placed on such stock at the time he filed his personal tax return. The claims are then paid on the valuation placed by the owner.

Divorce Suit Instituted.

An injunction has been sought in common pleas court against Guy Landis, East Liverpool, preventing him from in any way interfering with his wife, Anna Landis, who has sued for divorce. Cochran and Crawford, of East Liverpool, represent Mrs. Landis.

The couple was married May 7, last, at Wellsburg, W. Va.

The plaintiff also seeks alimony.

Leave To File.

In the case of the Eilert Beverage company against the Rosenberger Dairy Products company, the court has granted the defendants until December 6 to file its answer to the petition. In this case, the plaintiff claims the defendant company is indebted to it for $570.

MRS. FLODING GIVEN DIVORCE

A decree of divorce and $400 alimony has been granted Josephine R. Floding, a minor, who through John J. Mullen, her next friend, sued her husband, Homer Floding, for a divorce, alimony and restoration to her maiden name.

The court has ordered that each party pay one-half the costs of the suit, and judgment for the costs has been entered.

This case was contested, and a number of witnesses were called to the stand. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney George T. Farrell, of Lisbon, while the defendant was represented by Attorney H. L. McCarty, of Salem.

FURNACE COMPANY PLANT IS SOLD

On a bid of $185,000 the plant of the McKeefrey Furnace company at Leetonia has been sold by Sheriff George Wright to the Leetonia Furnace company, a new corporation formed recently, and it is said by the creditors of the corporation. The sale was following the filing of an action recently in common pleas court against the Leetonia company by the Peoples Savings & Trust company of Pittsburgh, Pa., holders of $800,000 bonds of the company. The property was appraised at $270,000.

Divorce Action Filed.

Edward C. Oberstadt, of Salem, through his counsel, K. L. Coburn, has filed a petition for divorce in common pleas court against his wife, Lottie Bell Oberstadt, said to be residing at Royal Oak, Mich.

It is related in the petition that the couple were married at Flint, Mich., Sept. 6, 1916.

The plaintiff declares that his wife abandoned her home in February, 1925, and that she has remained away ever since.

Clay Mine Sold.

The Negley clay mine and grinding plant of the Saratige Fireclay company, of Lisbon, has been sold to E. R. Joshua, of Youngstown. The company will continue the operation of its Lisbon plant. No announcement has been made relative to any development or expansion program in connection with the Negley mine by the purchasing interest.

Union college chapter, Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, at the biennial congress of the national organization which will convene at Tampa, Fla., Dec. 29 and continue to Jan. 2, next. It is expected that approximately 18,000 college men will attend this meeting.

Property Leased.

Samuel Reiner and others, residing at Steubenville, and owning the former property of the Methodist Protestant church at East Liverpool, now used as a restaurant, have leased the property to S. Proctor Ankrim for a term of five years. The aggregate rental, according to a lease that has just been filed for record is $21,000, to be paid in monthly installments of $350.

Divorce Granted.

Lawrence Flory, of Lisbon, has been granted a divorce from his wife, Margaret Flory, on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney W. S. Potts, and as the action was not contested, only the usual number of witnesses were called to testify. The costs in this case are to be paid by the plaintiff.

NEWS FROM TOWNS IN TRI-STATE DISTRICT

LISBON

M. K. Zimerman, West Park Ave. Phone 319-R. Lisbon, O.

SHEEP CLAIMS WILL BE FILED

Statistics Show Large Number Killed During Year by Dogs.

The sheep growing industry in this county is being seriously threatened by dogs, it has been revealed by the annual statement of sheep claims which will be filed with the county commissioners Monday for payment.

County Auditor Elmer E. Walker today declared that it was his belief that the state legislature should enact new legislation to curb the slaughter of sheep by dogs.

The number of animals being killed by dogs is increasing annually, statistics for this county for the last 12 months reveal. The year just ending has eclipsed all former records in this connection.

There is now on file in the auditor's office 81 claims representing $4,757.45 that the county commissioners will have to approve for payment Monday. These claims show 426 sheep killed by dogs during the last year and 110 injured. In addition to this record, five other head of cattle have been killed by dogs and three injured. It is stated that these figures will likely be increased before the close of the month.

"Unless worthless sheep-killing dogs are eliminated, the sheep industry of the county is doomed," Mr. Walker declared.

Sheep claims received from different townships that will be ordered paid Monday by the county commissioners are: Center, 13; Elkrun, 9; Middleton, 9; Salem, 8; Butler, 7; West, 7; Fairfield, 5; Hanover, 5; Unity, 5; Yellow Creek, 4; Wayne, 2; Franklin, 2; Madison, 2; Perry and Knox townships, 1 each.

Up until the close of business Friday evening 6,229 dog licenses have been issued for the current year. There is approximately $8,000 in the dog and kennel fund now, and it is from this fund that all sheep claims are paid. The law provides that $1,000 shall always remain in this fund, and that the balance of the fund, less 35 per cent specified by law for the enforcement of the law, be paid to the credit of the county board of education.

Until the passage of a law during the last session of the legislature, sheep claims were paid more frequently than now. The present law provides that sheep claims be paid by the county commissioners once each year.

When sheep claims are filed, the value of the stock killed or injured as filed by the owner is compared with the valuation the owner placed on such stock at the time he filed his personal tax return. The claims are then paid on the valuation placed by the owner.

HUDSON SIX SALES WINNER

Stimulus Given Coaches, Broughams and Sedans by Price Cut.

Hudson Super-Six coaches, broughams and sedans—now at new low prices due to recent $100 reduction on all models — are proving the sales leaders of the season, according to sales executives of the Buckeye Motor company, Hudson-Essex dealers here. They declare a marked sales stimulus has resulted from the reductions which were all the more surprising in view of the fact that they came shortly after the introduction of new and greatly improved Hudson models.

"Hudson certainly has knocked into a cocked hat the old idea that a car had to be expensive to be good," said Roy Birch. "We now have the best looking as well as the best made Hudsons ever built, yet these wonderful bodies on wonderful chasses are selling at the most favorable prices we have ever known. It is no wonder the public is showing its appreciation.

"In these new Hudsons the chief of many mechanical improvements is the greatly improved system of carburetion and manifolding by which gasoline consumption has been reduced materially without sacrifice of pickup, power of flexibility.

"Hudson's always brilliant performance is actually bettered in the new models. Power is greater. Pickup is quicker. Reliability is increased. Refinements and improvements centered around the famous super-six principle which for 11 years has made automotive history, give more smoothness, freedom from vibration, while the new colors, new lines, new comfort, beauty and distinction of the cars are factors which are having a great deal to do with the splendid sales response.

"Among the many advantages possessed by Hudson not commonly found in any but the most costly motor cars, Birch points out the following:

"Full counterbalanced crankshaft, balanced flywheel, roller tappets, aluminum alloy pistons, nickel babbit bearings for camshaft, bronze-backed, babbit-lined main and connecting rod bearings, accessible timing chain adjustment, minimum crankshaft dilution due to inbuilt features, patented motor lubrication control, efficient new intake manifold and carburetor, gasoline filter inbuilt in vacuum tank, exceptionally sturdy frame with five cross members, and rugged axles front and rear."

Every time we hear the ambulance bell clamor past, we are reminded that pedestrians still exist, but are getting fewer.—Cincinnati Time-Star.

Says Earth Like Golf Ball.

That the earth is built on the principle of the old-fashioned metal-cored gold ball is the contention of Dr. E. D. Williamson, the scientist who has just concluded a series of investigations into the subject. The metal core of the earth, he says, is pure iron or an alloy of iron and nickle, having a thickness of not less than 4,200 miles. Outside of this is a layer of iron and rock on top of which is strata of rock which in turn is covered by the earth's surface consisting almost entirely of granite.

Japan's Industries Chosen.

In its program of increasing domestic production, Japan proposes to give government aid to its leading industries, and the National Products Encouragement Association recently selected ten industrial arts to the recommended. These were iron and steel, dye stuffs, soda ash, shipbuilding, woolen textiles, automobiles, aluminum, artificial fertilizers, machinery and silk and silk textiles. Government officials will consider the recommendations within a short time.

necessary to absorb them on a lamp-black surface so that they produce their equivalent as heat, which is measured by a very delicate electrical thermometer, called the bolometer. The latter was invented by the late Dr. Langley, who was a pioneer in solar-radiation measurements as he was later in aviation.

It consists of two blackened, hair-like ribbons of platinum, each about one-half inch long, 1-250 inch wide, and 1-1200 inch thick. These are joined by two coils of wire to form a Westinghouse's bridge, and connected with an electric battery and highly sensitive galvanometer. Houses are lighted by electric lamps which use about one-fourth ampere of current. The bolometer detects current changes ten million times smaller and detects temperature changes of less than one-millionth of one degree.

Then there is the radiometer, which will not be used at Burkkaras, because it can only be operated in conjunction with a giant telescope. In this instrument there is a fly's wing suspended by a quartz fiber that is finer than a spider's web. Another feature is a mirror the size of a pin head. The fly's wing is blackened on one side and when low pressure radiation shines on the blackened surface the wing turns, this motion being shown in the mirror, and a measure of the degree of radiation is effected.

Quite as interesting as instruments such as these is the man who makes them. He has been with the Smithsonian for 34 years and has turned out delicate mechanisms that have been eagerly sought by scientists in Germany, Switzerland, and other European countries. The cost of these instruments is largely the time required to make them, thee expert having spent as much as three years on a single one.

REAL TALENT 'N 'ROSE-MARIE'

Brilliant Hammerstein Offering Here Dec. 7.

The brilliant and melodic "Rose-Marie" comes to the Ceramic theatre for one day only, Tuesday, December 7.

One does not wonder at the tremendous popularity of the Hammerstein piece—it is fully satisfying to the listener, it requires more talent than the general run of musical comedies and real talent means a better entertainment. The music of Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart, as we recall, "Indian Love Call," "Rose-Marie," "The Door of My Dreams," and the sterling song of "The Mounties" and other tunes are far above the average in richness and strength.

Scenes of great beauty enhance the superbly beautiful production and the costumes have that rare grace of being exquisite in color, fabric and design.

The master craftsman, Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, wrote the book that is full of dramatic situations and unlike most musical comedies is never lost sight of during the whole action of the play.

In the cast is Ethel Louise Wright, Paul Donah, Grace Wells, Charles Meakins, Peggy Pates, Houston Richards, Karyl Kunkel, Frank Harrington, James Moore, Neil Moore and over ninety others including a symphony orchestra that render the score in a musicanly and satisfying manner.

Farmers were speedier than government officials in Egypt this year and before the measure restricting the area to be sown could be published, they planted more acres of cotton than the new law permitted.

DRYS PLAN DRIVE TO PLUG LEAKS IN PROHIBITION LAW

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DRAFTS ITS PROGRAM

Call on Congressmen to Strengthen Statute Enforcement.

WETS ARE ACTIVE

Suggest Availability of Retired Army and Navy Officers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Despite widespread defeats at the November elections, the organized drys today opened a drive to plug all legislative leaks in the national prohibition law.

Calling on congressional dry leaders to wage an active campaign for the strengthening of prohibition enforcement, the anti-saoon league announced its legislative program for the coming session of congress. The program will include enactment of:

1.—The Andrews prohibition reorganization bill, already passed by the house but pending in the senate, to create separate prohibition and customs bureaus in the treasury department, the anti-saloon league announced the civil service.

2. — The Goff-Graham bill to strengthen the prohibition law by extending the government's control over cereal beverages, and denatured alcohol, by enforcing all international liquor treaties and by punishing counterfeiters of prohibition permits. It is pending in both house and senate.

3. — Recodification of all customs laws.

4. A bill making retired army and navy officers available for appointment without loss of their retired pay.

Wet Bloc Movement.

The congressional wet bloc, meanwhile, will have but one legislative program—to defeat each of the above bills. The senatorial wet bloc will hold a meeting in the near future to devise a compaign of action to insure the success of their defeatist program.

The drys, however, warned of the wet desires, will seek to enact their legislation early in the coming session. This plan was the basis of an appeal made to dry leaders by Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the anti-saloon league.

"I hope congress can see its way clear to bring these bills to a vote early in the session so as to avoid the possibility of a fili-buster later on when it is more difficult to get action," Wheeler wrote dry leaders. "The Anti-Saloon league and other dry forces generally will make an active campaign for the adoption of this legislation in the short session."

Dry Control.

Although the drys lost referenda in New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada, their leaders will face the coming session certain of an overwhelming control of the legislative situation. In fact, they will maintain the same control throughout the seventieth congress. As an example of their strength, there will be 73 drys to 23 wets in the new senate with 331 drys out of a total membership of 435 in the next house.

Despite these overwhelming majorities some doubt has arisen over their ability to enact the dry program into law at the short session. As Wheeler pointed out, unless the drys can get action early in the session, a wet filibuster could easily defeat the whole program. The dry campaign will be directed to prevent such a contingency.

Kidder Will Quit

to step in and adjust affairs if possible. I may get cleaned in the act and I may get cleaned in this news squabble but "I'd Have Guts To Defend the Oppressed." I reneat, those were my sentiments regarding the institution of athletics in the city of East Liverpool. Who said they were any one else's? I didn't.

"So much for that. Let's see now. Who in the personnel of an athletic organization should feel the sustaining power of support. I wonder. Well, I should just guess that the coach in season might be in position to get the reaction on his squad. It was my privilege to have been just that party and I declare that no one in the city of East Liverpool knew quite so well that well deserving group of boys. I studied them collectively and as a group, as I was taught to do in two coaching schools it was my privilege to attend. I felt I could sense their very heart throbs and believe me when I say it took all the courage and love for my school that was mine to have at all times to keep them together as a unit and buoyed to the point that their efforts were appreciated as a they should be. Appreciated? Yes, I say they were. But in a larger sense it seemed that they were not.

"I never thought traffic should stop just because a football man came on the scene. I never thought a football man was his brother's betters. I never appreciated a doctor any more than I appreciated my own brother, but, I did not call for the services of my brother when Dick, my little boy, crushed his arm in the wringer. No, I called for a practicing physician. I appreciated his services and hold him so in no uncertain terms. You, East Liverpool, wanted a football team. The team came and served you. You owe it a debt of gratitude impossible to pay and yet not a single function has been held in their behalf except the treat Mr. Tallman of the Ceramic gave them at the theatre last night and a feed made possible by Richard Brian, a local clothier, Cliff Bough and 'Smoke' Viney. Space will not permit the exposition of how we could show appreciation. In short, it would be quite a lesson to follow the practices of our neighboring towns though small. The most we can do is none too good for a group that so represents a town. Have we done as much as we can?

"Resignation! Well, well, well! How things can be mutilated in a press room. Don't get to the boiling point, fellows. You rammed me a few. I am taking it even though it was nothing more nor less than malicious on the face of affairs and especially since you now can conceive of the alignment of truth. Resignation! No one even whispered a thing about resigning. I'll continue with some more truth in this particular. The circumstances will amuse us all. I was told in the press room, where I dared to go, that what I said would ruin me and they would wager that. My reply to that was this. 'Ruin me, you nor anyone else can do that. I'll quit first if you are alluding to the possibility of a future football contract here.' Then it was that I informed the press that Mr. McVay had been informed that I would not be an applicant for a coaching position in East Liverpool in the face of prevalent handicaps. This information was given Mr. McVey the week prior to the Leetonia game by myself in person. Mr. McVay will tell you as much. So, you see I'm not such a liar after all, folks.

"Let me assure the public, the civic clubs and all factions interested in high school athletics and have aided us in any particular that a more appreciative cuss never lived than George Kidder. I am truly grateful for all endeavors of a constructive nature. God knows that I am honing the cat will be thoroughly licked over my shoulders. It will all have been worth while and I'm willing to be the goat if it's the means to an end. So may it be.

Training camp:

"Your report on the training camp, according to officials, so stated belies facts. I say to you that I took subscriptions for every single cent that was raised for the camp and am bold enough to say that it cost me more than any of the loyal subscribers inasmuch as it took a very profitable week's work from me to arrange so to do. More facts. I hope you like them. Pretty well posted, don't you think?

"Then I get a great laugh out of this eligibility question. Gee, fellows, you say something now! It's your turn. Say, when you were in school, who made out the eligibility lists? Well, the same person continues to perform the same duties. I would not usurp myself in that manner. Any one acquainted with school administration is acquainted with the fact that the high school principal always prepares the eligibility lists. The coach in charge never,—think of it, not even Kidder—is privileged so to do. I guess the trend of ignorance is boomeranging you to death by this time. Furthermore, who do you mean by the school officials when you say you got all this from them. I am sure you did not get your eligibility ride from Miss Updegraff. She will tell you who authorizes eligibility. Ask her. Let me introduce you to some news. Kidder has his first time yet to play an ineligible man. Get that! Never has he so done. You mention Mr. Holmes? Was he played? Yes! Why? Because he was on the eligibility list and I did not place him there.

By the way, that we forfeited the game to Sebring, also belies facts. That is untrue. Heaven's sake, get something right! I insist I have nothing to do with that end of it. If a man is eligible I play him. If he is not all the powers in the kingdom could not get him in a game if I had anything to do with as a coach. In fact, I told Ducky Holmes not to report Friday night before the Sebring game as I could not use him in the absence of his credits from Cameron. He did not report. I used another man in practice that night. Ducky came in Saturday morning smiling and said, "I got 'em.' I advised him to take them to Miss Updegraff's home which he did, and Miss Updegraff placed him on the eligibility list. There you are. I never saw his credits till Miss Updegraff showed them to me. Take that!

"The other two boys whom you mentioned in Friday's edition were George Deems, of Newell, and Ray Kinsey of East Liverpool. You did not mention Ray's name. I am reminding you that I know of the lad. Deems was played only after being placed on the eligibility list, likewise Ray Kinsey. If anyone has a kick coming here it is the coach. I spent hours with those boys grooming them for the positions they held from training camp till they were declared ineligible by Miss Updegraff. They were declared eligible in the middle of August. I virtually worked with them from that time on. Who should kick? Kidder? I did not, but took it as a matter of fate and oversight which we are all subject to and plodded on. Would I play an ineligible man? Ask the boys!

"Do you remember the Toronto game which was not covered by the newspaper? Yes? I'll tell you one that happened in the Gem City. We were in scoring distance at Toronto three times that I remember of. One time we were on the six-inch line. What did we need? Someone to plug it over. Jack Bromby, the all county fullback, was sitting beside me, slightly injured but eligible so far as qualifications were concerned. Due to his injury I overlooked having his name authorized in the official manner. Did he play? No. Jack would have saved us from defeat that day and would have in all probability brought victory as well HAD I BEEN UNSCRUPULOUS ABOUT ELIGIBILITY AS YOU, THE PRESS, HAVE PAINTED THE PICTURE. Say, the Blue and White has never started a game under my direction until God's blessing had been invoked, praying that real men would be in the process of making through the medium of clean sportsmanship throughout the contest. DOES SUCH PRACTICES SEEM CONSISTENT WITH UNSCRUPULOUS MANIPULATION OF ELIGIBILITY?

"The teacher of geometry and coach of football in our local high school would have a few words if he may in exposition of that which the readers found in this section of yesterday's edition. The press thinks I owe it to the public to refute or apologize in this column. I'll be pleased to do both if the space will permit. I owe it to myself as well as the public that we be thoroughly understood for, you see, I follow the insurance business through the summer and that sufficeth all. I wouldn't lose a dollar on this. It isn't worth it.

"The press agent will recall how much time was given me to talk at the Kiwanis luncheon, and that I proceeded to unglove the hand with apologies, admitting that the approach was undiplomatic and trusting that I would be taken in the spirit of one who was solicitous of every good wish tho the sentiments would not indicate. I do not believe the Kiwanians are so offended as it would appear from pictures. Did it ever occur to you that a villain is not made in a day. They are not converted over night. Past records will tend to prove that I am not so rash after all. Why, I would be branded a villain blasting about insanely, according to reports. It's a wonder Jim has not handcuffed me for the Toledo 'clubber.'

"It is real funny when they assume that we might even think we owe for sport articles in the sport section. I wonder if I will get a bill for the clever article featuring my incapabilities so boldly listed on the front page of last night's issue. It's worth a lot to me. I'd gladly have paid something for it. It is interesting to note though that more space can be gotten for ridicule than for construction. In this conjunction let me further expostulate by saying that it remains a fact that the Steubenville paper could scrape up three full size pages enlarging upon their Turkey Day encounter but that the East Liverpool paper owned by the same firm hardly afforded one full page. Chester, with all credit due her, drew almost as much space as did theh ome town lads. In that same edition East Liverpool contributed 55 ads, Chester contributed none. Who is paying for it? I still claim the Turkey Day Game deserves first page consideration and that except for such special attractions we have had our share.

"My mother always taught me that I should look with pity on ignorance. Here comes someone making light of my lack in the field of mathematics. That is not polite. I always was poor in mathematics, but, I should guess the writer of last evening's editorial could be shown some calculus, integral and differential, that he has never conceived. Sh-h-h, Mathematician! There isn't a single one in town. A mathematician is one who has a doctor's degree in high Mathematics. Let 'em rave. I enjoy it. Don't pull Webster on me; that's old. At any rate one does not have to be a mathematician to figure with the average. The average can figure with both we pen pushers so far as that in concerned. Let me see. They say there were 13,000 at the Chester and Wellsville games combined. Who counted them? I was there and didn't. The gate receipts, they say, for the two games was about $3,000. The only way to accurately count them, and they will tell you so anywhere, is to employ simple division. Using the principal sum of $3,000 as the dividend and the general admission price, say 50 cents, as the divisor, the quotation arrived at in that process will tell you how many heads you can count at the game. That as you see allows us a gate of 6,000 people at both games taken collectively. Ach! I hear some one let out a squeal. What about the ones who never pay. Say! I don't count them. Do you? If you do, Mr. Business Man, I'd be pleased to open an account with you. I contend that the fellow who did not pay was not there as a contributing factor and so you cannot count him. We have too many of those fellows in our social strata now. Don't do him the honor of counting him in with the man who pays. The man who does not pay for his merchandise is stricken off the books. That's business. Don't please don't count him in on this business of sportsmanship.

"I am not unmindful of the fact that we have had a great deal of help from civic societies in East Liverpool. I most assuredly am grateful for it all. No one wishes for a well rounded curriculum more than I do. I have studied school administration and am more posted on that, too, than the one who would tell and admonish me concerning it. However, you understand that school as any other institution has its various departments. Mine is the department of athletics up till now. That's what I have a right to talk about and boost. I am happy when other departments thrive. The band! Why, it is indispensible. Ralph Johnson knows I mean it, too. Ask him. But, my sole mission in the school system this fall (aside from teaching five classes each day) was football. Why, then, should I put a far cry out for any other department? Some one would tell me where to head in at.

"Say, Let's shake now and go to work for the best high school in this or any other state. That's what I want. Nothing else. I'll lay a bet though that the gate receipts for next year will double the gate for this year. What about a fence?"

Reporters went to her and asked her what she had to say.

"I have nothing to say," she said. "All that can be said, has been said."

Then all four defendants went into a side room to pose for pictures.

Carpender's Statement.

Henry Carpender gave out a statement which said:

"I was indicted solely on the lying story and false identification of Jane Gibson and have spent four months in jail without a trial because of the crooked tactics of Simpson. However, the world knows the truth about both Jane Gibson and Simpson and no trial of my own is now necessary to clear my name."

A short time before the hearing began, a conference was held in the judge's chambers between Katzenbach and attorneys for the defense.

Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson had failed to appear at the hearing and Katzenbach represented the state.

Later Katzenbach said his reason for appearing was that Simpson had requested Governor Harry Moore to relieve him as a special prosecutor.

A committee of women started to canvass the potteries this week. Every industrial plant is to be visited before Christmas.

Pots will be placed on the streets again next Saturday and then every day until Christmas.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Speculative interest was largely centered on Baldwin Locomotive and other high-priced industrial stocks in view of the reports that Arthur Cutten and his Chicago associates had locked horns with the professionals in Wall street and had carried off first honors in the speculative coup which has been a 30-day mystery in the financial district.

Baldwin opened at 162, unchanged, after which the stock advanced in heavy trading to 164 and fell back to 159, at which price trading was quite animated. The Wall street shorts had agreed to cover their short contracts on the best possible terms without raising the cry of a possible corner, according to well founded reports.

As a group, the motor stocks displayed conspicuous strength and activity from the start. General General Motors sold above 146 in active trading, while Hudson reached a new high for the movement at 49¼, and Chrysler, Studebaker and Hupp sold fractionally higher.

The approach to the year-end has stimulated calculation of the full year's profits and earnings of the industrial and railroad companies.

this country, its able men and its government give up too easily.

We prepared three airships to fly to Hawaiii, two fell down, the third wouldn't go up. We prepared two more airships for a non-stop flight to Panama. These non stop airships promptly stopped.

We may not be "quitters," but we are something like the man that said: "I'm a game guy, but I know when I'm licked." We seem to be "licked" a good deal of the time.

DR. MEL MORRIS HERE SUNDAY

Evangelist to Speak in Pleasant Heights Mission.

Rev. Dr. Mel Morris, "old time religion evangelist," of Greensboro, Md., will launch a two weeks' evangelistic campaign tomorrow in the Pleasant Heights Baptist mission.

Rev. Mr. Morris, a personal friend of Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church, recently completed a series of meetings in the Baptist church. He also assisted in an evangelistic campaign here last winter.

The evangelist before taking up the ministry was a cartoonist and illustrator. He will use the blackboard as a means of illustrating his sermons.

Two services will be held tomorrow, the afternoon meeting, beginning at 2:45 and the evening service at 7:30. The subject for the afternoon discourse will be "Bible Hearts" and for the evening service, "The Ways of Redemption and Damnation." Services will be held every evening in the week with the exception of Saturday.

Mine Wage Cut Urged

been in a state of collapse for the past three years.

"The real trouble with the present Ohio coal situation is lack of discipline, poor efficiency and a non-competitive wage scale," the report reads.

Unless these difficulties can be overcome, either by the introduction of open shop or voluntarily by a radical change from the present attitude of the miners union, there appears to be little, if any, chance of returning the Ohio coal mining industry to its former relative status.

"If the miners union will not adjust its wage rates so as to meet this economic condition, then the open shop is the only alternative to permit the Ohio coal industry to function," the report continued.

"The unreasonably high labor rates in the Ohio mines are responsible for the unnecessary burden on the public," according to the report.

Union Chief Is Silent.

Lee Hall, president of the Ohio United Mine Workers, refused to comment upon the commission's report today.

He said he would not be ready to issue any statement concerning it until after he has made a careful study of the entire report. Hall intimated that he probably will issue a public statement sometime next week.

DRYS PLAN DRIVE TO PLUG LEAKS IN PROHIBITION LAW

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DRAFTS ITS PROGRAM

Call on Congressmen to Strengthen Statute Enforcement.

WETS ARE ACTIVE

Suggest Availability of Retired Army and Navy Officers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Despite widespread defeats at the November elections, the organized drys today opened a drive to plug all legislative leaks in the national prohibition law.

Calling on congressional dry leaders to wage an active campaign for the strengthening of prohibition enforcement, the anti-saoon league announced its legislative program for the coming session of congress. The program will include enactment of:

1.—The Andrews prohibition reorganization bill, already passed by the house but pending in the senate, to create separate prohibition and customs bureaus in the treasury department, the anti-saloon league announced the civil service.

2. — The Goff-Graham bill to strengthen the prohibition law by extending the government's control over cereal beverages, and denatured alcohol, by enforcing all international liquor treaties and by punishing counterfeiters of prohibition permits. It is pending in both house and senate.

3. — Recodification of all customs laws.

4. A bill making retired army and navy officers available for appointment without loss of their retired pay.

Wet Bloc Movement.

The congressional wet bloc, meanwhile, will have but one legislative program—to defeat each of the above bills. The senatorial wet bloc will hold a meeting in the near future to devise a compaign of action to insure the success of their defeatist program.

The drys, however, warned of the wet desires, will seek to enact their legislation early in the coming session. This plan was the basis of an appeal made to dry leaders by Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the anti-saloon league.

"I hope congress can see its way clear to bring these bills to a vote early in the session so as to avoid the possibility of a fill-buster later on when its is more difficult to get action," Wheeler wrote dry leaders. "The Anti-Saloon league and other dry forces generally will make an active campaign for the adoption of this legislation in the short session."

Dry Control.

Although the drys lost referenda in New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada, their leaders will face the coming session certain of an overwhelming control of the legislative situation. In fact, they will maintain the same control throughout the seventieth congress. As an example of their strength, there will be 73 drys to 23 wets in the new senate with 331 drys out of a total membership of 435 in the next house.

Despite these overwhelming majorities some doubt has arisen over their ability to enact the dry program into law at the short session. As Wheeler pointed out, unless the drys can get action early in the session, a wet filibuster could easily defeat the whole program. The dry campaign will be directed to prevent such a contingency.

Kidder Will Quit

to step in and adjust affairs if possible. I may get cleaned in the act as I may get cleaned in this news squabble but "I'd Have Guts To Defend the Oppressed." I repeat, those were my sentiments regarding the institution of athletics in the city of East Liverpool. Who said they were any one else's? I didn't.

"So much for that. Let's see now. Who in the personnel of an athletic organization should feel the sustaining power of support. I wonder. Well, I should just guess that the coach in season might be in position to get the reaction on his squad. It was my privilege to have been just that party and I declare that no one in the city of East Liverpool knew quite so well that well deserving group of boys. I studied them collectively and as a group, as I was taught to do in two coaching schools it was my privilege to attend. I felt I could sense their very heart throbs and believe me when I say it took all the courage and love for my school that was mine to have at all times to keep them together as a unit and buoyed to the point that their efforts were appreciated as a they should be. Appreciated? Yes, I say they were. But in a larger sense it seemed that they were not.

"I never thought traffic should stop just because a football man came on the scene. I never thought a football man was his brother's betters. I never appreciated a doctor any more than I appreciated my own brother, but, I did not call for the services of my brother when Dick, my little boy, crushed his arm in the wringer. No, I called for a practicing physician. I appreciated his services and hold him so in no uncertain terms. You, East Liverpool, wanted a football team. The team came and served you. You owe it a debt of gratitude impossible to pay and yet not a single function has been held in their behalf except the treat Mr. Tallman of the Ceramic gave them at the theatre last night and a feed made possible by Richard Brian, a local clothier, Cliff Bough and 'Smoke' Viney. Space will not permit the exposition of how we could show appreciation. In short, it would be quite a lesson to follow the practices of our neighboring towns though small. The most we can do is none too good for a group that so represents a town. Have we done as much as we can?

"Resignation! Well, well, well! How things can be mutilated in a press room. Don't get to the boiling point, fellows. You rammed me a few. I am taking it even though it was nothing more nor less than malicious on the face of affairs and especially since you now can conceive of the alignment of truth. Resignation! No one even whispered a thing about resigning. I'll continue with some more truth in this particular. The circumstances will amuse us all. I was told in the press room, where I dared to go, that what I said would ruin me and they would wager that. My reply to that was this. 'Ruin me, you nor anyone else can do that. I'll quit first if you are alluding to the possibility of a future football contract here.' Then it was that I informed the press that Mr. McVay had been informed that I would not be an applicant for a coaching position in East Liverpool in the face of prevalent handicaps. This information was given Mr. McVey the week prior to the Leetonia game by myself in person. Mr. McVay will tell you as much. So, you see I'm not such a liar after all, folks.

"Let me assure the public, the civic clubs and all factions interested in high school athletics and have aided us in any particular that a more appreciative cuss never lived than George Kidder. I am truly grateful for all endeavors of a constructive nature. God knows that I am honing the cat will be thoroughly licked over my shoulders. It will all have been worth while and I'm willing to be the goat if it's the means to an end. So may it be.

Training camp:

"Your report on the training camp, according to officials, so stated belies facts. I say to you that I took subscriptions for every single cent that was raised for the camp and am bold enough to say that it cost me more than any of the loyal subscribers inasmuch as it took a very profitable week's work from me to arrange so to do. More facts. I hope you like them. Pretty well posted, don't you think?

"Then I get a great laugh out of this eligibility question. Gee, fellows, you say something now! It's your turn. Say, when you were in school, who made out the eligibility lists? Well, the same person continues to perform the same duties. I would not usurp myself in that manner. Any one acquainted with school administration is acquainted with the fact that the high school principal always prepares the eligibility lists. The coach in charge never,—think of it, not even Kidder—is privileged so to do. I guess the trend of ignorance is boomeranging you to death by this time. Furthermore, who do you mean by the school officials when you say you got all this from them. I am sure you did not get your eligibility ride from Miss Updegraff. She will tell you who authorizes eligibility. Ask her. Let me introduce you to some news. Kidder has his first time yet to play an ineligible man. Get that! Never has he so done. You mention Mr. Holmes? Was he played? Yes! Why? Because he was on the eligibility list and I did not place him there.

By the way, that we forfeited the game to Sebring, also belies facts. That is untrue. Heaven's sake, get something right! I insist I have nothing to do with that end of it. If a man is eligible I play him. If he is not all the powers in the kingdom could not get him in a game if I had anything to do with as a coach. In fact, I told Ducky Holmes not to report Friday night before the Sebring game as I could not use him in the absence of his credits from Cameron. He did not report. I used another man in practice that night. Ducky came in Saturday morning smiling and said, "I got 'em." I advised him to take them to Miss Updegraff's home which he did, and Miss Updegraff placed him on the eligibility list. There you are. I never saw his credits till Miss Updegraff showed them to me. Take that!

"The other two boys whom you mentioned in Friday's edition were George Deems, of Newell, and Ray Kinsey of East Liverpool. You did not mention Ray's name. I am reminding you that I know of the lad. Deems was played only after being placed on the eligibility list, likewise Ray Kinsey. If anyone has a kick coming here it is the coach. I spent hours with those boys grooming them for the positions they held from training camp till they were declared ineligible by Miss Updegraff. They were declared eligible in the middle of August. I virtually worked with them from that time on. Who should kick? Kidder? I did not, but took it as a matter of fate and oversight which we are all subject to and plodded on. Would I play an ineligible man? Ask the boys!

"Do you remember the Toronto game which was not covered by the newspaper? Yes? I'll tell you one that happened in the Gem City. We were in scoring distance at Toronto three times that I remember of. One time we were on the six-inch line. What did we need? Someone to plug it over. Jack Bromby, the all county fullback, was sitting beside me, slightly injured but eligible so far as qualifications were concerned. Due to his injury I overlooked having his name authorized in the official manner. Did he play? No. Jack would have saved us from defeat that day and would have in all probability brought victory as well HAD I BEEN UNSCRUPULOUS ABOUT ELIGIBILITY AS YOU, THE PRESS, HAVE PAINTED THE PICTURE. Say, the Blue and White has never started a game under my direction until God's blessing had been invoked, praying that real men would be in the process of making through the medium of clean sportsmanship throughout the contest. DOES SUCH PRACTICES SEEM CONSISTENT WITH UNSCRUPULOUS MANIPULATION OF ELIGIBILITY?

"The teacher of geometry and coach of football in our local high school would have a few words if he may in exposition of that which the readers found in this section of yesterday's edition. The press thinks I owe it to the public to refute or apologize in this column. I'll be pleased to do both if the space will permit. I owe it to myself as well as the public that we be thoroughly understood for, you see, I follow the insurance business through the summer and that sufficeth all. I wouldn't lose a dollar on this. It isn't worth it.

"The press agent will recall how much time was given me to talk at the Kiwanis luncheon, and that I proceeded to unglove the hand with apologies, admitting that the approach was undiplomatic and trusting that I would be taken in the spirit of one who was solicitous of every good wish tho the sentiments would not indicate. I do not believe the Kiwanians are so offended as it would appear from pictures. Did it ever occur to you that a villain is not made in a day. They are not converted over night. Past records will tend to prove that I am not so rash after all. Why, I would be branded a villain blasting about insanely, according to reports. It's a wonder Jim has not handcuffed me for the Toledo 'clubber.'

"It is real funny when they assume that we might even think we owe for sport articles in the sport section. I wonder if I will get a bill for the clever article featuring my incapabilities so boldly listed on the front page of last night's issue. It's worth a lot to me. I'd gladly have paid something for it. It is interesting to note though that more space can be gotten for ridicule than for construction. In this conjunction let me further expostulate by saying that it remains a fact that the Steubenville paper could scrape up three full size pages enlarging upon their Turkey Day encounter but that the East Liverpool paper owned by the same firm hardly afforded one full page. Chester, with all credit due her, drew almost as much space as did theh ome town lads. In that same edition East Liverpool contributed 55 ads, Chester contributed none. Who is paying for it? I still claim the Turkey Day Game deserves first page consideration and that except for such special attractions we have had our share.

"My mother always taught me that I should look with pity on ignorance. Here comes someone making light of my lack in the field of mathematics. That is not polite. I always was poor in mathematics, but, I should guess the writer of last evening's editorial could be shown some calculus, integral and differential, that he has never conceived. Sh-h-h, Mathematician! There isn't a single one in town. A mathematician is one who has a doctor's degree in high Mathematics. Let 'em rave. I enjoy it. Don't pull Webster on me; that's old. At any rate one does not have to be a mathematician to figure with the average. The average can figure with both we pen pushers so far as that in concerned. Let me see. They say there were 13,000 at the Chester and Wellsville games combined. Who counted them? I was there and didn't. The gate receipts, they say, for the two games was about $3,000. The only way to accurately count them, and they will tell you so anywhere, is to employ simple division. Using the principal sum of $3,000 as the dividend and the general admission price, say 50 cents, as the divisor, the quotation arrived at in that process will tell you how many heads you can count at the game. That as you see allows us a gate of 6,000 people at both games taken collectively. Ach! I hear some one let out a squeal. What about the ones who never pay. Say! I don't count them. Do you? If you do, Mr. Business Man, I'd be pleased to open an account with you. I contend that the fellow who did not pay was not there as a contributing factor and so you cannot count him. We have too many of those fellows in our social strata now. Don't do him the honor of counting him in with the man who pays. The man who does not pay for his merchandise is stricken off the books. That's business. Don't please don't count him in on this business of sportsmanship.

"I am not unmindful of the fact that we have had a great deal of help from civic societies in East Liverpool. I most assuredly am grateful for it all. No one wishes for a well rounded curriculum more than I do. I have studied school administration and am more posted on that, too, than the one who would tell and admonish me concerning it. "Say, Let's shake now and go to work for the best high school in this or any other state. That's what I want. Nothing else. I'll lay a bet though that the gate receipts for next year will double the gate for this year. What about a fence?"

Reporters went to her and asked her what she had to say.

"I have nothing to say," she said. "All that can be said, has been said."

Then all four defendants went into a side room to pose for pictures.

Carpender's Statement.

Henry Carpender gave out a statement which said:

"I was indicted solely on the lying story and false identification of Jane Gibson and have spent four months in jail without a trial because of the crooked tactics of Simpson. However, the world knows the truth about both Jane Gibson and Simpson and no trial of my own is now necessary to clear my name."

A short time before the hearing began, a conference was held in the judge's chambers between Katzenbach and attorneys for the defense.

Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson had failed to appear at the hearing and Katzenbach represented the state.

Later Katzenbach said his reason for appearing was that Simpson had requested Governor Harry Moore to relieve him as a special prosecutor.

A committee of women started to canvass the potteries this week. Every industrial plant is to be visited before Christmas.

Pots will be placed on the streets again next Saturday and then every day until Christmas.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Speculative interest was largely centered on Baldwin Locomotive and other high-priced industrial stocks in view of the reports that Arthur Cutten and his Chicago associates had locked horns with the professionals in Wall street and had carried off first honors in the speculative coup which has been a 30-day mystery in the financial district.

Baldwin opened at 162, unchanged, after which the stock advanced in heavy trading to 164 and fell back to 159, at which price trading was quite animated. The Wall street shorts had agreed to cover their short contracts on the best possible terms without raising the cry of a possible corner, according to well founded reports.

As a group, the motor stocks displayed conspicuous strength and activity from the start. General General Motors sold above 146 in active trading, while Hudson reached a new high for the movement at 49¼, and Chrysler, Studebaker and Hupp sold fractionally higher.

The approach to the year-end has stimulated calculation of the full year's profits and earnings of the industrial and railroad companies.

Mine Wage Cut Urged

been in a state of collapse for the past three years.

"The real trouble with the present Ohio coal situation is lack of discipline, poor efficiency and a non-competitive wage scale," the report reads.

Unless these difficulties can be overcome, either by the introduction of open shop or voluntarily by a radical change from the present attitude of the miners union, there appears to be little, if any, chance of returning the Ohio coal mining industry to its former relative status.

"If the miners union will not adjust its wage rates so as to meet this economic condition, then the open shop is the only alternative to permit the Ohio coal industry to function," the report continued.

"The unreasonably high labor rates in the Ohio mines are responsible for the unnecessary burden on the public," according to the report.

Union Chief Is Silent.

Lee Hall, president of the Ohio United Mine Workers, refused to comment upon the commission's report today.

He said he would not be ready to issue any statement concerning it until after he has made a careful study of the entire report. Hall intimated that he probably will issue a public statement sometime next week.

MAIL DELIVERY ON CHRISTMAS

Help Carrier to Enjoy Dinner at Home, is Appeal.

Help your friends, the mail-carriers, enjoy their Christmas dinner at home this year, was the appeal issued today by Postmaster J. E. McClure.

If postal patrons delay their Christmas package mailing until the last possible minute, it is likely to be a pretty tough day for the carriers, McClure said.

McClure pointed out that this year it would be necessary to have one mail delivery on Christmas day—by reason of the fact that Christmas falls on Saturday and there is no regular delivery on Sunday.

Last year the postmaster general, in order to protect the thousands of postal employes throughout the country, ordered that no mail should be delivered on Christmas day. This year it's different.

McClure said that if citizens of East Liverpool would make an effort to complete their gift buying for out-of-town friends and relatives next week, the overload on the postoffice department would be so relieved that the mail carriers' Christmas Day burden would be comparatively light.

"Mark your packages 'Not to Be Opened Until Christmas' and mail them Now," the postmaster suggested. "The accurate delivery of your gifts will be insured, and it will help tremendously in relieving the last minute burden on overworked postal employes who face their greatest burden as the Christmas season approaches."

Rubeirao, Pernambuco, soon is to have its first rural telephone.

W. J. Courtney and Ernest Ester are Under Arrest.

BURNS SLEUTHS

Defendants Released When They Furnish $1,500 Bond Each.

W. J. Courtney, assistant manager of the Pittsburgh office of the Burns Detective Agency, and Ernest Ester, an operative, both of whom qualified as "star" witnesses for the state in the Rocco Carbicella-Frank Fusco bribery case in common pleas court at Lisbon, have been held for the December term of court in Lawrence county, Pa., on charges of violating the Snyder act, following their arrest and trial Thursday before Justice William Marshall, of New Castle.

Carbicella and Fusco, through their attorneys, W. A. O'Grady and Ben L. Bennett, have been granted a motion for a new trial, this action being the most recent since the pair was arrested on charges of Sheriff George Wright that they had attempted to bribe him to "lay off" investigation of the James Kenney murder case.

Ester and Courtney were accused of the sale of three and a half cases of alleged whisky, the donation of two pints to the ex-chief of police, the donation of a sample pint to a former burgess, and certain conversations about "cases at $55, fleets, the coppers, carloads billed for Mexico, railroad "holdovers," and other language, by witnesses who testified at their hearing before Justice Marshall.

John Evans, a New Castle councilman, posted the $3,000 bail that permitted the sleuths their freedom.

TWO REVIVAL MEETS SUNDAY

Two meetings will be held Sunday in the First Evangelical church here in connection with the revivals which have been under way recently. Rev. H. A. Frye will discuss "The Blood of Jesus" in the morning and a "Christian Life" in the evening." On Monday the evangelist will talk on the subject, "Columbiana's Greatest Detective."

Last night Rev. Frye spoke on the subject, "The Conversion of Zaccheus," taking his theme from St. Luke, "This day is salvation come to this house for so much as he also is a son of Abraham."

He said:

The noblest act is expressed in this text. There is a bright outlook to those who would see Jesus.

It is the unusual thing for a rich man to want to see Jesus.

Some folks call us short sighted if we preach nothing else but expremental religion. All that such critics can see is the mighty dollar. But the Christian's vision is far beyond that of the natural man.

Second, the man Zaccheus tried to overcome difficulties in order to gratify his desire to see Jesus.

He was a wise man, far more than a lot of folks in Wellsville! Why, because he seized the opportunity when it came, while you put it off.

Jesus passes by for the last time. God is not always going to fool with you. Some of these days he will whisper into your ear for the last time.

The first thing that Zaccheus did to see Jesus was to leave the crowd The narrow way is not crowded, only the few in Wellsville are going that way and the many are on the wide road to destruction. The Bible says so.

If you want to go to hell, there are plenty of people in Wellsville who are anxious to help you there. But some are anxious to help you to heaven.

A man can always see more if he climbs. Some people think that they can see everything without climbing, just to live an indifferent life.

It's hard for folks to get down, that is it's hard on their pride to acknowledge sin. But you can't sneak into God's kingdom. Zaccheus came down and so will you if you would see Jesus.

Christ knew Zaccheus by name. He knows you. Christ said today I must abide at thy house. Not tomorrow. Zaccheus obeyed. He was willing to straighten up back tracks. To make restitution.

If you have wronged anybody you must go and ask forgiveness. Your confession must be as public as the act. There is not any doubt that the home of Zaccheus was different from that day. If there were any theatre tickets, tobacco or a deck of cards they were thrown into the fire for they wanted nothing around that was not according to the liking of Jesus.

Today is the day of salvation. Now is the accepted time. Some of these days Jesus will pass you by for the last time.

The services will continue all of next week each night except Saturday, also day services Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursday and Fridays at 2:30 p. m. on Bible study. We urge the public to share this feast of good things.

A. C. McBANE BUYS $17,700 HOME

The former residence of W. S. Leach, ex-cashier of the defunct bank of Benwood, located on the national road near Chickenneck hill, was sold recently at auction to A. C. McBane, president-treasurer of the M. H. & M. Shoe company, at a consideration said to be $17,700.

McBane, the purchaser, is a former Wellsville resident. He at one time was a justice of the peace and also engaged in real estate business. He left here several years ago.

This was the second time the residence was up for sale, McBane having been the high bidder with an offer of $17,700 before. Legal complications following the death of Mrs. W. S. Leach, however, resulted in an agreement to resell.

The sale was conducted by Anton Bieberson as trustee and Attorneys Albert W. Laas and Austin V. Wood, special commissioners, to satisfy a circuit court decree of half million dollars in favor of the bank of Benwood against Leach, who is now serving a sentence in the West Virginia state penitentiary, Moundsville.

Walter P. Wickham was the auctioneer.

WELLSVILLE BRIBERY CASE WITNESSES ARE HELD

TWO MEN FACE RUM COUNTS AT NEW CASTLE, PA.

W. J. Courtney and Ernest Ester are Under Arrest.

BURNS SLEUTHS

Defendants Released When They Furnish $1,500 Bond Each.

W. J. Courtney, assistant manager of the Pittsburgh office of the Burns Detective Agency, and Ernest Ester, an operative, both of whom qualified as "star" witnesses for the state in the Rocco Carbicella-Frank Fusco bribery case in common pleas court at Lisbon, have been held for the December term of court in Lawrence county, Pa., on charges of violating the Snyder act, following their arrest and trial Thursday before Justice William Marshall, of New Castle.

Carbicella and Fusco, through their attorneys, W. A. O'Grady and Ben L. Bennett, have been granted a motion for a new trial, this action being the most recent since the pair was arrested on charges of Sheriff George Wright that they had attempted to bribe him to "lay off" investigation of the James Kenney murder case.

Ester and Courtney were accused of the sale of three and a half cases of alleged whisky, the donation of two pints to the ex-chief of police, the donation of a sample pint to a former burgess, and certain conversations about "cases at $55, fleets, the coppers, carloads billed for Mexico, railroad "holdovers," and other language, by witnesses who testified at their hearing before Justice Marshall.

John Evans, a New Castle councilman, posted the $3,000 bail that permitted the sleuths their freedom.

TWO REVIVAL MEETS SUNDAY

Two meetings will be held Sunday in the First Evangelical church here in connection with the revivals which have been under way recently. Rev. H. A. Frye will discuss "The Blood of Jesus" in the morning and a "Christian Life" in the evening." On Monday the evangelist will talk on the subject, "Columbiana's Greatest Detective."

Last night Rev. Frye spoke on the subject, "The Conversion of Zaccheus," taking his theme from St. Luke, "This day is salvation come to this house for so much as he also is a son of Abraham."

He said:

The noblest act is expressed in this text. There is a bright outlook to those who would see Jesus.

It is the unusual thing for a rich man to want to see Jesus.

Some folks call us short sighted if we preach nothing else but expremental religion. All that such critics can see is the mighty dollar. But the Christian's vision is far beyond that of the natural man.

Second, the man Zaccheus tried to overcome difficulties in order to gratify his desire to see Jesus.

He was a wise man, far more than a lot of folks in Wellsville! Why, because he seized the opportunity when it came, while you put it off.

Jesus passes by for the last time. God is not always going to fool with you. Some of these days he will whisper into your ear for the last time.

The first thing that Zaccheus did to see Jesus was to leave the crowd The narrow way is not crowded, only the few in Wellsville are going that way and the many are on the wide road to destruction. The Bible says so.

If you want to go to hell, there are plenty of people in Wellsville who are anxious to help you there. But some are anxious to help you to heaven.

A man can always see more if he climbs. Some people think that they can see everything without climbing, just to live an indifferent life.

It's hard for folks to get down, that is it's hard on their pride to acknowledge sin. But you can't sneak into God's kingdom. Zaccheus came down and so will you if you would see Jesus.

Christ knew Zaccheus by name. He knows you. Christ said today I must abide at thy house. Not tomorrow. Zaccheus obeyed. He was willing to straighten up back tracks. To make restitution.

If you have wronged anybody you must go and ask forgiveness. Your confession must be as public as the act. There is not any doubt that the home of Zaccheus was different from that day. If there were any theatre tickets, tobacco or a deck of cards they were thrown into the fire for they wanted nothing around that was not according to the liking of Jesus.

Today is the day of salvation. Now is the accepted time. Some of these days Jesus will pass you by for the last time.

The services will continue all of next week each night except Saturday, also day services Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursday and Fridays at 2:30 p. m. on Bible study. We urge the public to share this feast of good things.

A. C. McBANE BUYS $17,700 HOME

The former residence of W. S. Leach, ex-cashier of the defunct bank of Benwood, located on the national road near Chickenneck hill, was sold recently at auction to A. C. McBane, president-treasurer of the M. H. & M. Shoe company, at a consideration said to be $17,700.

McBane, the purchaser, is a former Wellsville resident. He at one time was a justice of the peace and also engaged in real estate business. He left here several years ago.

This was the second time the residence was up for sale, McBane having been the high bidder with an offer of $17,700 before. Legal complications following the death of Mrs. W. S. Leach, however, resulted in an agreement to resell.

The sale was conducted by Anton Bieberson as trustee and Attorneys Albert W. Laas and Austin V. Wood, special commissioners, to satisfy a circuit court decree of half million dollars in favor of the bank of Benwood against Leach, who is now serving a sentence in the West Virginia state penitentiary, Moundsville.

Walter P. Wickham was the auctioneer.

Mickey Walker Wins Decision And Crown From Tiger Flowers

Fans Greet Verdict Of Referee Yanger With Disapproval

New Champion Cut and Bleeding at End of Fight While Tiger Finishes Without a Mark; Latter is Aggressor and Outboxes Challenger Throughout 10 Rounds.

By Gene Hoffman.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—White Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., was being hailed today as middleweight champion of the world, vague murmurings were echoing along the sports rialto of things decayed in Denmark.

Walker was awarded the decision over Deacon Tiger Flowers, of Atlanta, Ga., at the end of ten stirring rounds at the Coliseum here last night. The decision was made by Referee Benny Yanger, who, judging by the crescendo of booing that greeted his verdict, was the only man in the place who believed Walker had won.

No one appeared more surprised than Jack Kearns, Walker's astute manager. But Kearns quickly regained his aplomb and became voluble in declaring that Walker had won every round.

Tiger Forces Fighting.

Flowers forced the fighting all the way, landed any number of telling blows, and finished the terrible milling without a mark; whereas Walker was cut and bleeding and looked the part of a man thoroughly whipped. By what deductions Referee Yanger justified the decision that took the title away from Flowers remains a mystery to 10,000 spectators who paid a record gate of $90,000 to see the show.

Although no two newspaper men could be found who agreed on the number of rounds won by either fighter, it was the consensus of opinion in the press box that the decision was all wrong. And that is given without questioning the integrity of Mr. Yanger.

Referee Yanger said he gave the fight to Walker because "Mickey did all the punching and Flowers did not close his hands."

Flowers on Floor.

The ninth round apparently had much weight with Yanger in reaching his decision. In this session Walker clipped Flowers on the chin and the champion went to the floor. With an acrobatic flip, as if made of rubber, Tiger was on his feet before a count could even be started. He wasn't even dazed, and tore right into Walker as though he had not been hit. But Flowers was on the floor, and a knockdown is a knockdown.

It was a fast and furious fight in every round. One minute after the battle had started, the Deacon opened an old cut over Mickey's eye and from then on till the final bell, the left side of Walker's face was a mass of gore. All through the fight Flowers kept jabbing at the injured optic with an aggravating right.

Tiger was the aggressor always. He outboxed the challenger consistently. At close quarters Mickey was continually holding on. Except in two or three rounds, when Walker sent the champion back on his heels with lightning jabs, Mickey fell far short of convincing the multitude that he is Flowers' superior.

Flowers Cheerful.

Tiger, it appeared, had a clean margin in four of the ten rounds. Three of them are credited to Walker, while the other three were even.

Flowers took the "bad news" cheerfully. He was the first to congratulate the new champion. As soon as Yanger raised Walker's hand, Tiger leaped to Mickey's side, and smiling broadly, threw his arms around him.

But Walk Miller, Tiger's manager, was not so cheerful. Immediately after the fight, he said:

"I don't agree with the decision. I think the worst Flowers should have had was a draw. Personally, I think he won. But I do think the decision was given honestly, and in good faith."

Miller said he would reserve an official statement until he learns whether Kearns will keep his promise to give Flowers a return engagement within three months.

FIGHT VERDICT RAISES RUMPUS

Chicago Critics Assert Flowers Was "Held Up."

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Chicago seethed with a new boxing scandal today.

The decision awarding Mickey Walker the middleweight crown of Tiger Flowers was branded by newspaper writers as "in the bag."

Right down the line, with one exception, sport editors loudly shouted the colored boxer was held up and his headpiece snatched in the dark.

While intimations fell about like a fog, the Illinois boxing commission took no steps but refused to deny a report that the bout "might be investigated."

Action toward a probe by the commissioners may be based on the published statement of a Chicago sports editor today to the effect that "he announced last Thursday the Walker-Flowers fight was "'in the bag' according to reports from New York."

The same writer called the decision of Referee Benny Yanger the "biggest steal in Illinois boxing circles since the famous Gans-McGovern fight."

While the trouble was brewing away, young Mr. Mickey Walker was enjoying a belated breakfast over which he smiled.

"I do not want the title unless I won it fairly," the new champion said. "I think I did do that. But anyway I will give Flowers a return bout just as soon as he wants it and I don't care where we fight. How about Timbuctoo—ain't that a place in Africa? Anyway I think I beat Flowers last night and I can do it again."

The losers piled up a great deal more than they needed in the first game which they won, 718 to 621. But the Bankers, shooting consistently, came back to cop the second by the extremely narrow margin of one pin. The score was 673 to 672. The third also went to the Bankers, 643 to 627.

Now for the forward swing, with the back swing we have been discussing. The thing to watch out for when you start forward is this: Avoid by all means all effort to hit with your body. Hit with the clubhead. I mentioned previously how the arms and shoulders are free at the top of this back swing. So when you start down, do the same thing exactly that you do in the back swing—this is, start with hands and arms and then keep on coming with hands and arms. A mighty good way to make certain of this is to follow a practice of keeping flat on the right heel until the clubhead hits. You can do that and still get all the forward movement of the body you want. You were flat on the right heel when you started the club back—why not be flat on it when you hit? Theoretically your position should be exactly the same. There is some fast footwork takes place the moment you hit, but this should be—and will be—natural and instinctive. The feeling should be that the club pulls the body through—or more precisely, that club and body go through the ball together.

New Major Managers Enter Player Market

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Within less than two weeks, seven new managers of major league ball clubs, perfectly willing to trade the radish for the horse, will be out there on the flat of their feet at the annual elocution contest, and from all indications, brisk barter in old ivory will be transacted. Most of the boys realize they can't go far wrong in trying to better the hands they hold, for one thing.

For another, a new manager always does something, for better or worse, to his ball club by way of demonstrating his superior acumen. Offhand. Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox; Stuffy McInnes of the Phillies, and Dan Howley, of the Browns, appeal to the writer as natural demonstrators.

Howley Has Poor Stock.

Howley has only the hulk of a ball club at St. Louis, and, if he doesn't trade some of these hang-overs to another club, he won't be giving himself a chance. The Browns are shot. The deposed Sisler has agreed to return as a player but he probably would do better elsewhere, provided anyone was willing to take over his contract. Marty McManus, Harry Rice, Gaston, Giard, Zachary and Ballou constitute good trading material and perhaps Howley will be able to do himself some good at Chicago this month.

He has more to offer than Carrigan, who shares the doubtful honor with McInnes of having fallen heir to the least promising outfit in baseball. McInnes has the better trading margin, at that. He could part with either Henline or Wilson, first class catchers, and he may do that, rumors of Henline's return to the Giants having been revived. The Phils need about everything, but infielders and pitchers most of all. It is unlikely that McInnes would care to talk business for Carlson, Leach, Mokan and several others, they being about all he has.

Bush Will Be Cautious.

The Athletics and Senators probably would be glad to take Phil Todt off Carrigan's hands while no one would look down their superior nose at Wingfield, Ruffing and Zahniser, young pitchers. However, Carrigan will insist on one thing; he won't start the season unless he can place nine men in the field.

Donie Bush probably will prove a cautious trader since he should have something of a ready-made club in Pittsburgh. The Pirates could use more pitching, at that, and maybe Bush will try to rectify the matter with Barnhart as possible bait. However, that young man blew himself to a bad year in 1926 and the popular clamor for his services may be audible at a distance of two and three-quarter inches.

The man who succeeds Speaker at Cleveland also may be hard to do business with, although if Eddie Collins really is to get the spot, the Indians will have to arrange some kind of a trade with the White Sox. The latter, under Ray Schalk, have an outfit lacking in balance but the trading material is there, including Blankenship, Connally, Thurston, Leverette, Lyons, Mostil and Falk. Mostil probably is out of the question for any club and the so would want plenty for some of the others. With Speaker gone, the Indians would welcome Falk but what have they to give that they don't need themselves? Sorry; I'm a trifle hard of hearing.

Moriarty Needs Pitching.

It is improbable that George Moriarty will want to alter the Tigers, sight unseen. All George needs is to get his pitching clicking along with his hitting and all the writer needs is $999,982.43 and he would have his first million. A trifle more strength at third base wouldn't be unwelcome in Detroit, either. Moriarty has plenty of trading material if he feels the urge, which he probably will not.

Mickey Walker Wins Decision And Crown From Tiger Flowers

Fans Greet Verdict Of Referee Yanger With Disapproval

By Gene Hoffman.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—While Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., was being hailed today as middleweight champion of the world, vague murmurings were echoing along the sports rialto of things decayed in Denmark.

Walker was awarded the decision over Deacon Tiger Flowers, of Atlanta, Ga., at the end of ten stirring rounds at the Coliseum here last night. The decision was made by Referee Benny Yanger, who, judging by the crescendo of booing that greeted his verdict, was the only man in the place who believed Walker had won.

No one appeared more surprised than Jack Kearns, Walker's astute manager. But Kearns quickly regained his aplomb and became voluble in declaring that Walker had won every round.

Tiger Forces Fighting.

Flowers forced the fighting all the way, landed any number of telling blows, and finished the terrible milling without a mark; whereas Walker was cut and bleeding and looked the part of a man thoroughly whipped. By what deductions Referee Yanger justified the decision that took the title away from Flowers remains a mystery to 10,000 spectators who paid a record gate of $90,000 to see the show.

Although no two newspaper men could be found who agreed on the number of rounds won by either fighter, it was the consensus of opinion in the press box that the decision was all wrong. And that is given without questioning the integrity of Mr. Yanger.

Referee Yanger said he gave the fight to Walker because "Mickey did all the punching and Flowers did not close his hands."

Flowers on Floor.

The ninth round apparently had much weight with Yanger in reaching his decision. In this session Walker clipped Flowers on the chin and the champion went to the floor. With an acrobatic flip, as if made of rubber, Tiger was on his feet before a count could even be started. He wasn't even dazed, and tore right into Walker as though he had not been hit. But Flowers was on the floor, and a knockdown is a knockdown.

It was a fast and furious fight in every round. One minute after the battle had started, the Deacon opened an old cut over Mickey's eye and from then on till the final bell, the left side of Walker's face was a mass of gore. All through the fight Flowers kept jabbing at the injured optic with an aggravating right.

America's Greatest Sin Lost Opportunity To Hear Gospel

—Rev. O. A. Newlin.

Winona Lake, Ind., Evangelist Speaks Befor Large Week-night Audience at United Presbyterian Church.

"America's great sin is its lost opportunity to hear the gospel," declared Rev. C. A. Newlin, Winona Lake, Ind., evangelist, at the First United Presbyterian church revival last evening. "Jesus, as his custom was," he explained, "continued throughout his life a habit of church attendance that began in his youth."

Departing from his announced theme: "The Futility of Excuses," he discussed Jesus' first and last sermon in his native town of Nazareth. Hearing him was the largest week-night audience of the present campaign, it being Sunday school night, with the various classes and teachers attending in a body.

Three services were announced for Sunday with a suspension of the meetings tonight.

On Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Newlin's subject will be: "An Old Masterpiece." In the afternoon at a meeting of both men and women he will speak on "The Triumphal Climax." While in the evening he will discuss "Crossing the Bar."

Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor, announced that every night next week would be of special import. That on Monday evening will be called men's night, though women also are to attend "to see how many of the male sex are present," he said. Sunday school night will be repeated on Friday evening, that others, not present last night, might attend also.

Other nightly designations will be arranged for at the outset of the week. A prayer service in the Sunday school room followed the sermon of Rev. Mr. Newlin.

The invocation was made by Rev. Mr. McKnight, pastor of the Chester, W. Va., United Presbyterian church and the concluding prayer was given by Dr. D. N. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city.

Accompanied by Miss Adda McLain, church organist, Prof. John C. Ussher and Miss Alice Stevenson sang: "True Are All His Ways."

During the day Rev. Mr. Newlin spoke in the high school. Throughout the week he has spoken also in several local potteries.

As he promised on Thursday evening Rev. Mr. Newlin told how he had finally found the exact number of times the word "believe" occurs in Johns Gospel. Having himself counted 98 which an audience making a similar count had conformed he told his young son, before he was fatally injured in an automobile accident some years ago, had taken issue to his statement at a tabernacle meeting in Michigan that the word was to be found 98 times in the Book of John. "It is 101 times, father," he confided on their way to their stopping place. Some weeks later both read the book through together and their count totaled an even 100.

"You were wrong," observed the father.

"So were you," retorted the lad.

Then they read the book again, consuming another two hours. This time they found the word 101 times.

The boy had been right all the time.

Of the prosecutions, nine were in Cabin Creek, where minor fines were assessed and two were in Wheeling where larger fines were imposed.

TAX COLLECTORS MUST PAY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Ohio tax collectors must themselves pay taxes, solicitor A. W. Gregg, of the bureau of internal revenue ruled today.

Gregg held that compensation received by collectors of delinquent taxes in Ohio is not exempt from federal income taxes. The collectors in a number of Ohio counties insisted that they were state employes and therefore exempt from federal taxes.

The bureau held, however, that the Ohio law does not create an office of tax collector, but merely confers on the county treasury the power to appoint a person to perform a part of his duties.

WESTERN FILM AT AMERICAN

West Point Featured in "The Flaming Frontier."

West Point, with all its romance and colorful surroundings, is prominently featured in "The Flaming Frontier," an Edward Sedgwick-Universal Production that is to be the attraction at the American theatre, commencing Monday. This spectacular western picture is set down in the period of 1876 and has for its great climax the famous Custer massacre in which Gen. George A. Custer and the Seventh U. S. Cavalry were slaughtered by the Sioux under Chief Sitting Bull.

In the scene showing West Point the life there has been carefully reproduced in every detail. New cadets are seen arriving at the big government school. The form of hazing which the plebs of that period were forced to undergo is also shown, as is their transformation from awkward youths to erect, dignified officers. In this respect alone, 'The Flaming Frontier" is a picture that will make Americans thrill with pride as they see the intimate life of the great military college.

"Flirtation Lane," sacred to love and beauty in the midst of things that speak only of war, has been caught in all its romanticism. Down this famwalk, generations of cadets whose names were later to stand out as great army officers, have walked arm in arm with their sweethearts. "Flirtation Lane" has seen the budding of many a love story, and it is unusual in that it has no duplicate in any other country in the world.

"The Flaming Frontier" is presented by an all-star cast. Hoot Gibson, Universal's famous Western "ace," comes before the motion picture public in the greatest production in which he has ever appeared . Gibson plays the leading male role. He is first seen as Bob Langdon, a pony express rider and friend of Custer, who secures his appointment as a West Point Cadet. Just before graduation Bob is expelled from the academy for an offense of which he is innocent. He returns to the plains, is once more a pony express rider and later is the messenger sent by Custer to Reno to the aid of the beleaguered Seventh Cavalry. As pony express rider and Custer' messenger, Gibson again proves that he is the screen's greatest horseman, his dash through the Indians being one of the big features of the picture.

Pretty Anne Cornwall, whose admirers are legion, is the heroine of the picture. "The Flaming Frontier" also marks the return to the screen of Dustin Farnum, who enjoys equal fame as screen and stage star. Farnum is cast in the heroic role of General Custer. Another sterling actor in the cast is Ward Crane, than whom there is no better picture heavy.

Kathleen Key is again perfectly cast in another great vamp role, while the fun-making Eddie Gribbon and Harry Todd take care of the comedy features of the picture. Chief Sitting Bull in all his dignity appears in the person of Noble Johnson. Others in this great cast are George Fawcett, Harold Goodwin, Charles K. French, William Steele, Walter Rodgers, Ed Wilson and Joe Bonomo. The picture was directed by Edward Sergwick, who also wrote the story.

Illiterate Adults Eager.

Illiterate men and women in Delaware are the most eager students in the short term night schools in that state. More than 1,000 of them are enrolled in the rudimentary courses. It required 69 teachers in 55 schools to give this instruction. Twice as many men as women attended. In one place where the school houses were not wired with electricity, the students brought their own lamps or lanterns to aid them in their study.

America's Greatest Sin Lost Opportunity To Hear Gospel

—Rev. O. A. Newlin.

Winona Lake, Ind., Evangelist Speaks Befor Large Week-night Audience at United Presbyterian Church.

"America's great sin is its lost opportunity to hear the gospel," declared Rev. C. A. Newlin, Winona Lake, Ind., evangelist, at the First United Presbyterian church revival last evening. "Jesus, as his custom was," he explained, "continued throughout his life a habit of church attendance that began in his youth."

Departing from his announced theme: "The Futility of Excuses," he discussed Jesus' first and last sermon in his native town of Nazareth. Hearing him was the largest week-night audience of the present campaign, it being Sunday school night, with the various classes and teachers attending in a body.

Three services were announced for Sunday with a suspension of the meetings tonight.

On Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Newlin's subject will be: "An Old Masterpiece." In the afternoon at a meeting of both men and women he will speak on "The Triumphal Climax." While in the evening he will discuss "Crossing the Bar."

Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor, announced that every night next week would be of special import. That on Monday evening will be called men's night, though women also are to attend "to see how many of the male sex are present," he said. Sunday school night will be repeated on Friday evening, that others, not present last night, might attend also.

Other nightly designations will be arranged for at the outset of the week. A prayer service in the Sunday school room followed the sermon of Rev. Mr. Newlin.

The invocation was made by Rev. Mr. McKnight, pastor of the Chester, W. Va., United Presbyterian church and the concluding prayer was given by Dr. D. N. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city.

Accompanied by Miss Adda McLain, church organist, Prof. John C. Ussher and Miss Alice Stevenson sang: "True Are All His Ways."

During the day Rev. Mr. Newlin spoke in the high school. Throughout the week he has spoken also in several local potteries.

As he promised on Thursday evening Rev. Mr. Newlin told how he had finally found the exact number of times the word "believe" occurs in Johns Gospel. Having himself counted 98 which an audience making a similar count had conformed he told his young son, before he was fatally injured in an automobile accident some years ago, had taken issue to his statement at a tabernacle meeting in Michigan that the word was to be found 98 times in the Book of John. "It is 101 times, father," he confided on their way to their stopping place. Some weeks later both read the book through together and their count totaled an even 100.

"You were wrong," observed the father.

"So were you," retorted the lad.

Then they read the book again, consuming another two hours. This time they found the word 101 times.

The boy had been right all the time.

Of the prosecutions, nine were in Cabin Creek, where minor fines were assessed and two were in Wheeling where larger fines were imposed.

TAX COLLECTORS MUST PAY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Ohio tax collectors must themselves pay taxes, solicitor A. W. Gregg, of the bureau of internal revenue ruled today.

Gregg held that compensation received by collectors of delinquent taxes in Ohio is not exempt from federal income taxes. The collectors in a number of Ohio counties insisted that they were state employes and therefore exempt from federal taxes.

The bureau held, however, that the Ohio law does not create an office of tax collector, but merely confers on the county treasury the power to appoint a person to perform a part of his duties.

WESTERN FILM AT AMERICAN

West Point Featured in "The Flaming Frontier."

West Point, with all its romance and colorful surroundings, is prominently featured in "The Flaming Frontier," an Edward Sedgwick-Universal Production that is to be the attraction at the American theatre, commencing Monday. This spectacular western picture is set down in the period of 1876 and has for its great climax the famous Custer massacre in which Gen. George A. Custer and the Seventh U. S. Cavalry were slaughtered by the Sioux under Chief Sitting Bull.

In the scene showing West Point the life there has been carefully reproduced in every detail. New cadets are seen arriving at the big government school. The form of hazing which the plebs of that period were forced to undergo is also shown, as is their transformation from awkward youths to erect, dignified officers. In this respect alone, 'The Flaming Frontier" is a picture that will make Americans thrill with pride as they see the intimate life of the great military college.

"Flirtation Lane," sacred to love and beauty in the midst of things that speak only of war, has been caught in all its romanticism. Down this famwalk, generations of cadets whose names were later to stand out as great army officers, have walked arm in arm with their sweethearts. "Flirtation Lane" has seen the budding of many a love story, and it is unusual in that it has no duplicate in any other country in the world.

"The Flaming Frontier" is presented by an all-star cast. Hoot Gibson, Universal's famous Western "ace," comes before the motion picture public in the greatest production in which he has ever appeared. Gibson plays the leading male role. He is first seen as Bob Langdon, a pony express rider and friend of Custer, who secures his appointment as a West Point Cadet. Just before graduation Bob is expelled from the academy for an offense of which he is innocent. He returns to the plains, is once more a pony express rider and later is the messenger sent by Custer to Reno to the aid of the beleaguered Seventh Cavalry. As pony express rider and Custer' messenger, Gibson again proves that he is the screen's greatest horseman, his dash through the Indians being one of the big features of the picture.

Pretty Anne Cornwall, whose admirers are legion, is the heroine of the picture. "The Flaming Frontier" also marks the return to the screen of Dustin Farnum, who enjoys equal fame as screen and stage star. Farnum is cast in the heroic role of General Custer. Another sterling actor in the cast is Ward Crane, than whom there is no better picture heavy.

Kathleen Key is again perfectly cast in another great vamp role, while the fun-making Eddie Gribbon and Harry Todd take care of the comedy features of the picture. Chief Sitting Bull in all his dignity appears in the person of Noble Johnson. Others in this great cast are George Fawcett, Harold Goodwin, Charles K. French, William Steele, Walter Rodgers, Ed Wilson and Joe Bonomo. The picture was directed by Edward Sergwick, who also wrote the story.

Illiterate Adults Eager.

Illiterate men and women in Delaware are the most eager students in the short term night schools in that state. More than 1,000 of them are enrolled in the rudimentary courses. It required 69 teachers in 55 schools to give this instruction. Twice as many men as women attended. In one place where the school houses were not wired with electricity, the students brought their own lamps or lanterns to aid them in their study.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

Sadie had been waiting for Julian's question, but now didn't know how to answer it.

"She isn't even speaking to me," he continued. "Even if I . . . I didn't know I'd done anything really unkind . . . if it's this comic money business, that isn't my fault. Mr. Watt asked me point blank to help him out. What could I do? It seemed only decent."

"Julian, tell me this — has Murry given you any papers at all, anything?"

"Why no, but . . ."

"You just threw all that money in? For him to spend as he likes?"

"Well, but . . ."

"Maybe you've got a private gold mine. Of course, I don't know about that. But even J. P. Morgan couldn't . . . You saw what he's doing, buying right and left. You saw the new touring car."

"Yes, but the old one was no good."

Sadie controlled herself. "I don't want to give a wrong impression of Murry. But that money won't last a month. He isn't a crook, understand He's a child."

"I don't know but what we're all pretty much children."

"Maybe, at that."

"Sadie, I'm going to say something to Hester."

She soberly considered this proposal "I don't think I'd do that."

"But I've got to do something. Make her speak to me. I'm not the kind to . . . I wouldn't do anything to make . . . can't you see, this is awful!"

"It's pretty bad, but . . ."

"It just isn't . . . well, civilized!" His voice broke a little on that word. Sadie — recollecting Hester's use of it—found herself on the edge of a nervous smile, but restrained herself.

"It's that young fellow, of course."

Slowly Sadie inclined her head.

"But he's only a boy!"

"Nineteen, Jim says. He's pretty fresh."

"But that's . . ."

"Eight years younger than Hester."

"Hum!" They walked along in silence.

"Here's a little restaurant, Julian. Want to try it?"

"Any of the others in there?"

They looked in through the wide window.

"I've just got to keep away some," said he.

"Here's a little restaurant, Julian. Want to try it?"

"I know. Oh, Julian, it's pretty awful to be in love like this!"

"Yes."

"Don't I know. I had it once. And it wasn't my husband. A fellow in a company I was with. Tore me all up. You know, I couldn't even walk on streets where we'd been." She slipped her hand within his arm. "Oh, don't I understand!"

"Yes," said he, very low, "you understand."

"Let's go in, dear. . . . Her thoughts reverted to the picture he had made, a few moments back, as he threw those bundles of letters into the rear compartment of the olive car. And the thought found voice. "I can't help being worried about your mail."

He whirled on her, this in the doorway. "Some day, Sadie, maybe, I'll be able to tell you what I've been through. I can't now. It sets me trembling. I don't believe anybody that ever lived has been through just what I have. Though maybe I'm wrong there. I suppose everything that could happen has been lived through more than once. It isn't that I've done anything wrong. I haven't. But it was so . . . so . . ."

"All right," said Sadie, in a quieting voice. "I won't talk about it any more. Let's go in."

"I've got a fight on my hands. A big fight. It isn't just Hester. It's bigger than that. But I've got to beg n winning somewhere. At some point. Of course Hester IS a part of it now. She is. If I fail there, I'll fail with the rest of it. But I'm going to fight! I made a mess of it up at Hollywood. But that's only a skirmish lost. I'm going to fight! I haven't really begun."

After that outburst he was moody. Sadie ate and then smoked very quietly, but there was a shine in her big blue eyes, and her face was never far from an understanding smile.

Chin on hand, he watched the blue wraiths of smoke curling upward from her cigarette. He was thinking, swiftly, intently. There were spots of high color about his temples, and his brows moved in nervous little twitches. She could fairly see his mind working. "He doesn't know I'm here," she thought wistfully. She liked to look at his forehead. . . . It was wide, not too high, and it curved back at the sides and up into the roots of his hair. "It's a gentleman's forehead," she thought.

He spoke abruptly. "Did you ever go to a cobweb party, Sadie?"

Her puzzled head moved in the negative.

"I mean when you were little. They run threads all over the house, you know, a perfect tangle of them. There's a tag on the end of each thread with the name of a youngster on it. That child has to wind up the thread, following it upstairs and down through the tangle, until he finds the prize at the other end."

"No, I never played that game," said Sadie.

"I was just thinking that life is a good deal like that . . . people's lives . . . every one a separate thread . . . you have to follow it through the tangle, never knowing where it'll lead you or what's at the other end. You're all mixed up with the others, and yet you're always alone."

"He has a wonderful mind," thought Sadie, in a little glow of excitement. . . . She wished he'd tell her what it was he had tried to do up in Hollywood. He'd gone at that so hard. But now it was as if he had dismissed it from his mind. Certainly, she couldn't follow his thread. She was wholly fascinated. She looked down at that amazing bracelet and thrilled. She wanted suddenly, impulsively, to run around the table and kiss him, but instead she lighted another cigarette. . . . Hester hadn't yet seen the bracelet. Sadie fell to wondering what she'd think. She'd have to see it soon, of course. Within the hour. They were still making up together.

"We'd better be getting on," she said. So Julian paid the check and they walked, without many words, back to the lot.

Sadie, in the dressing tent, had to struggle with an impulse to hide the exciting bit of jewelry in her suitcase. But she dismissed the thought. Sooner or later she'd have to be frank about it. So she wore it, glittering, conspicuous, on her bare arm. She felt, as she held up the mirror and laid the mascara on her eyelashes, that Hester, across the table gathering her abundant dark hair, was looking at it with a curious expression. Hester, too, would have to be frank, or else silent. Well, this appeared to be the time. So Sadie lowered the mirror.

"How perfectly lovely!" said Hester, but with more of a puzzled curiosity than enthusiasm in her voice.

"Isn't it a peach!" Sadie held it out. "Julian brought it . . ."

"Oh!" Hester couldn't restrain the low exclamation.

". . . to you, dear."

Hester hung back a moment on the canvas stool. But only a moment, before continuing to coil her hair about her pretty head.

Sadie wouldn't stop now. Her own voice was curiously burdened with emotion, but she went deliberately on with it. "He had it in his hand when he went over to speak to you yesterday. In San Diego. But you snubbed him."

There was a long silence. Hester finished her hair, and gave her makeup a final scrutiny in the little mirror, turning her face one way and then the other. Sadie rummaged through her tin box for a lipstick.

"He tried to give it to a sailor after that. A gob that had a girl with him. Funny!" Sadie contrived a smile, through her spirits were low. "The gob got mad. Thought Julian was trying to put something over on him. So then he shoved it into my hands. Said he'd throw it into the harbor if I didn't take it."

Well, the truth was out. The thought came to Sadie that she wished she could keep still when she didn't know what to say. But she never could.

What Hester finally did was to get up without a word and slip out of the tent. As she went she muttered something. Sadie wasn't sure she caught it, but it sounded like "I don't know what's going to become of me!"

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

Sadie had been waiting for Julian's question, but now didn't know how to answer it.

"She isn't even speaking to me," he continued. "Even if I . . . I didn't know I'd done anything really unkind . . . if it's this comic money business, that isn't my fault. Mr. Watt asked me point blank to help him out. What could I do? It seemed only decent."

"Julian, tell me this — has Murry given you any papers at all, anything?"

"Why no, but . . ."

"You just threw all that money in? For him to spend as he likes?"

"Well, but . . ."

"Maybe you've got a private gold mine. Of course, I don't know about that. But even J. P. Morgan couldn't . . . You saw what he's doing, buying right and left. You saw the new touring car."

"Yes, but the old one was no good."

Sadie controlled herself. "I don't want to give a wrong impression of Murry. But that money won't last a month. He isn't a crook, understand He's a child."

"I don't know but what we're all pretty much children."

"Maybe, at that."

"Sadie, I'm going to say something to Hester."

She soberly considered this proposal "I don't think I'd do that."

"But I've got to do something. Make her speak to me. I'm not the kind to . . . I wouldn't do anything to make . . . can't you see, this is awful!"

"It's pretty bad, but . . ."

"It just isn't . . . well, civilized!"

His voice broke a little on that word. Sadie — recollecting Hester's use of it—found herself on the edge of a nervous smile, but restrained herself.

"It's that young fellow, of course." Slowly Sadie inclined her head.

"But he's only a boy!"

"Nineteen, Jim says. He's pretty fresh."

"But that's . . ."

"Eight years younger than Hester."

"Hum!" They walked along in silence.

"Here's a little restaurant, Julian. Want to try it?"

"Any of the others in there?"

They looked in through the wide window.

"I've just got to keep away some," said he.

"Here's a little restaurant, Julian. Want to try it?"

"I know. Oh, Julian, it's pretty awful to be in love like this!"

"Yes."

"Don't I know. I had it once. And it wasn't my husband. A fellow in a company I was with. Tore me all up. You know, I couldn't even walk on streets where we'd been." She slipped her hand within his arm. "Oh, don't I understand!"

"Yes," said he, very low, "you understand."

"Let's go in, dear. . . . Her thoughts reverted to the picture he had made, a few moments back, as he threw those bundles of letters into the rear compartment of the olive car. And the thought found voice. "I can't help being worried about your mail."

He whirled on her, this in the doorway. "Some day, Sadie, maybe, I'll be able to tell you what I've been through. I can't now. It sets me trembling. I don't believe anybody that ever lived has been through just what I have. Though maybe I'm wrong there. I suppose everything that could happen has been lived through more than once. It isn't that I've done anything wrong. I haven't. But it was so . . . so . . ."

"All right," said Sadie, in a quieting voice. "I won't talk about it any more. Let's go in."

"I've got a fight on my hands. A big fight. It isn't just Hester. It's bigger than that. But I've got to beg'n winning somewhere. At some point. Of course Hester IS a part of it now. She is. If I fail there, I'll fail with the rest of it. But I'm going to fight! I made a mess of it up at Hollywood. But that's only a skirmish lost. I'm going to fight! I haven't really begun."

After that outburst he was moody. Sadie ate and then smoked very quietly, but there was a shine in her big blue eyes, and her face was never far from an understanding smile.

Chin on hand, he watched the blue wraiths of smoke curling upward from her cigarette. He was thinking, swiftly, intently. There were spots of high color about his temples, and his brows moved in nervous little twitches. She could fairly see his mind working. "He doesn't know I'm here," she thought wistfully. She liked to look at his forehead. . . . It was wide, not too high, and it curved back at the sides and up into the roots of his hair. "It's a gentleman's forehead," she thought.

He spoke abruptly. "Did you ever go to a cobweb party, Sadie?"

Her puzzled head moved in the negative.

"I mean when you were little. They run threads all over the house, you knew, a perfect tangle of them. There's a tag on the end of each thread with the name of a youngster on it. That child has to wind up the thread, following it upstairs and down through the tangle, until he finds the prize at the other end."

"No, I never played that game," said Sadie.

"I was just thinking that life is a good deal like that . . . people's lives . . . every one a separate thread . . . you have to follow it through the tangle, never knowing where it'll lead you or what's at the other end. You're all mixed up with the others, and yet you're always alone."

"He has a wonderful mind," thought Sadie, in a little glow of excitement. . . . She wished he'd tell her what it was he had tried to do up in Hollywood. He'd gone at that so hard. But now it was as if he had dismissed it from his mind. Certainly, she couldn't follow his thread. She was wholly fascinated. She looked down at that amazing bracelet and thrilled. She wanted suddenly, impulsively, to run around the table and kiss him, but instead she lighted another cigarette. . . . Hester hadn't yet seen the bracelet. Sadie fell to wondering what she'd think. She'd have to see it soon, of course. Within the hour. They were still making up together.

"We'd better be getting on," she said. So Julian paid the check and they walked, without many words, back to the lot.

Sadie, in the dressing tent, had to struggle with an impulse to hide the exciting bit of jewelry in her suitcase. But she dismissed the thought. Sooner or later she'd have to be frank about it. So she wore it, glittering, conspicuous, on her bare arm. She felt, as she held up the mirror and laid the mascara on her eyelashes, that Hester, across the table gathering her abundant dark hair, was looking at it with a curious expression. Hester, too, would have to be frank, or else silent. Well, this appeared to be the time. So Sadie lowered the mirror.

"How perfectly lovely!" said Hester, but with more of a puzzled curiosity than enthusiasm in her voice.

"Isn't it a peach!" Sadie held it out. "Julian brought it . . ."

"Oh!" Hester couldn't restrain the low exclamation.

". . . to you, dear."

Hester hang back a moment on the canvas stool. But only a moment, before continning to coil her hair about her pretty head.

Sadie wouldn't stop now. Her own voice was curiously burdened with emotion, but she went deliberately on with it. "He had it in his hand when he went over to speak to you yesterday. In San Diego. But you snubbed him."

There was a long silence. Hester finished her hair, and gave her make-up a final scrutiny in the little mirror, turning her face one way and then the other. Sadie rummaged through her tin box for a lipstick.

"He tried to give it to a sailor after that. A gob that had a girl with him. Funny!" Sadie contrived a smile, through her spirits were low. "The gob got mad. Thought Julian was trying to put something over on him. So then he shoved it into my hands. Said he'd throw it into the harbor if I didn't take it."

Well, the truth was out. The thought came to Sadie that she wished she could keep still when she didn't know what to say. But she never could.

What Hester finally did was to get up without a word and slip out of the tent. As she went she muttered something. Sadie wasn't sure she caught it, but it sounded like "I don't know what's going to become of me!"

SANTA CLAUS will be busy all over this prosperous nation very soon. And the poor little rich men, with their headquarters in Wall Street, will not be forgotten. From $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 will be distributed in bonuses to workers. And stockholders will not be forgotten. Year-end dividends of several hundred millions will set a new record.

Farmers, with their troubles, reading about this, will wish their business in life was to watch stock tickers instead of weaning calves.

MR. SUSSMAN chucked Mrs. Rosenberg under the chin, and later, in court, offered this explanation:

"I didn't have the nerve to come here this morning, so I went to get a couple of shots in me. The place I usually go to was closed and it took the better part of an hour to find another one. I got me two sho's. I guess I did go to Mrs. Rosenberger's store and maybe chuck her under the chin."

THE judge said: "You have told a straightforward story," and let him go.

So far as known the judge did not ask him where he got his "two shots," or send a policeman to find out about it. That will grieve prohibitionists.

SOME one suggests selective maternity, no woman allowed to have children unless willing to give up her entire time to them and "forego society."

That is not a good idea, if what you want is good children with power. The famous Olympias didn't exactly "give up society" or devote her life to her maternal duties, and she had only one child. But that one was Alexander the Great.

NATURE and the mothers have done fairly well on this earth in the past, changing us from cannibals and cave dwellers to half civilized beings.

When Peter the Great, barely out of his teens, found that Russia had no ships, he built some, that never could travel, in a lake, for practice and amusement. Then he worked as a mechanic in a Holland shipyard, according to the story. Everybody probably knew he was an emperor. But he learned how to build a fleet, as he built St. Petersburg on a swampy, cold river, by will power.

GRID MENTOR SAYS HE'S NOT APPLICANT FOR JOB NEXT FALL

Explains Kiwanis Club Speech in Signed Statement.

ANSWERS BOARD

Athletic Leader and Team Guests at Theatre Party.

George Kidder, high school geometry teacher and football coach, will not be a member of the faculty or director of the scholastic gridiron game in East Liverpool next fall, judging from his own admission in a signed statement issued today following his speech at a Kiwanis cl[illegible]ncheon Thursday.

Says He Told Superintendent.

Declaring that he had "informed" School Superintendent C. S. McVay "that I would not be applicant for the coaching position in the face of prevalent handicaps," and "this information was given to Mr. McVay a week prior to the Leetonia game," Kidder's statement is an answer to the action taken by the board of education at its meeting Thursday night.

Kidder's declarations follow the school board's public statement in which it was said that "Mr. Kidder in his speech before the Kiwanis club voiced his own sentiments and not the sentiments of the board of education or any administrative officer."

Last night 35 or more high school students, including members of the football team and a few ex-highs and Coach Kidder saw the picture, "The Eagle of the Sea," at the Ceramic theatre as guests of the theatre management. The party was given the team and its leader complimentary to the Thanksgiving Day football victory over Wellsville.

Kidder's Statement.

Kidder's signed statement, submitted for publication, follows:

"Yes, there is no doubting that Kidder spoke for himself. Be that as it may there are thousands, who if informed about the workings of affairs athletically in the city of East Liverpool, would say a grand amen to all that was said. Yes, I spoke for myself. I have every right to believe that we all like a fellow except at times when he gets too close to the vulnerable spots of our respective constitutions. Surely I did not ask a multitude of associates as to the probable outcome or the advisability of so voicing myself. Thanks to football I have enough courage to bare my fists and battle a whole multiude if need be for the things which are in accord with my constitution. If I saw a woman being deliberately abused on the streets of our city I'd be man enough

Miss Helen V. George Joins Oklahoma University Faculty

Daughter of East Liverpool Dentist is Appointed Teacher of Voice and Theory in College of Fine Arts.

Miss Helen Virginia George, formerly of East Liverpool and a daughter of Dr. J. B. George, Little building dentist, has been chosen a member of the faculty of the Oklahoma City university at Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, where she will teach voice and theory of the College of Fine Arts, it was announced today.

Miss George, who makes her home with her mother, Mrs. H. M. George, of Oklahoma City, was born in East Liverpool. She went west with her mother about 10 years ago. Two years ago she spent the summer in East Liverpool.

She is the youngest instructor at the university, being but 20 years of age. The faculty in the College of Fine Arts this year numbers 10, while the registration is 265.

Miss George was the soloist at a recital given by the Oklahoma City Symphony orchestra on Monday, November 15, at the Shrine auditorium in Oklahoma City. She has a rich soprano voice and her numbers in this concert included such difficult selections as "Gretchen am Spinrade" and "Du Bist die Ruh," both by Schubert; "Arioso," by Bemberg, and "Jewell Song," by Gounod.

She will also take part in the third concert to be given by the orchestra on Monday, December 13.

CACHE OF WINE AND HOME BREW UNCOVERED IN DARLINGTON RAID

Angelo Papetti, Proprietor of Roll Inn, Near State Line, is Held for Grand Jury.

A cache of wine and home brew was uncovered yesterday by Beaver county authorities and Pennsylvania state police when they raided the Roll Inn, on the Darlington-East Palestine road near the state line.

Angelo Pepetti, proprietor of the hotel, was held for the Beaver county grand jury under $2,000 bail upon a charge of unlawfully possessing liquor when he was arraigned before Justice George T. Smith of Beaver Falls, following the raid.

Under the garage floor the raiders say they found the entrance to a modernly equipped cavern with concrete floors, electric lights and other conveniences. Six barrels of red wine, several cases of beer containing an illegal percent of alcohol and a small quantity of moon shine whiskey are alleged to have been uncovered. The liquor was destroyed.

The hotel was established about three years ago and has been doing a thriving business especially among tourists. In addition to a dining room, kitchen and a small store maintained on the first floor of the building, bed rooms, with sleeping accommodations for about 18 persons, were located on the second floor.

The raid followed the arrest of Nick Valentine, Beaver Falls, for a liquor violation last Saturday. In Valentin'e possession the police found a receipt for liquor alleged to have been signed by Papetti.

WAGE CUT OR OPEN SHOP, IS MINE OWNERS' DEFI TO MEN

Leaders of Union Miners Oppose Scale Slash.

Commission Urges Anti-strike Law Enactment.

By C. H. HADDOX.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 4.—An Ohio coal strike, starting April 1, next, was threatened today.

Asserting that the union coal miners of Ohio "must voluntarily agree to a wage rate that will be competitive with other competing coal districts," or coal mines in the Buckeye state "must begin operations on an open shop basis April 1, next, when the Jacksonville agreement expires, is contained in the report of the Ohio coal commission, made public here today.

In view of the public stand taken by Ohio union miners officials against reduction of wages of Ohio miners, prediction was openly made today that coal mines throughout Ohio will be involved in a strike next spring.

Pointing out that the United States supreme court has upheld the Kansas anti-strike law, the report favors enactment of an Ohio anti-strike statute.

After an extended study of the Buckeye State's coal mining and transportation problems, the commission appointed by the Ohio chamber of commerce and consisting of twenty prominent Ohioans has just completed its report. The findings and recommendations of the commission were unanimously adopted by the chamber's board of directors, it was announced.

The commission's report is interpreted as indicating that Ohio coal operators will refuse to renew the wage scale contract provided for in the Jacksonville agreement next April first, and that Buckeye State operators will insist upon a contract for lower wages for the miners, or operation of their mines on an open shop basis.

Operate at Loss, is Claim.

Claim that Ohio coal operators operated "at a loss and with a steadily declining volume of business during the last three years," is embodied in the commission's report.

The report states that millions of dollars of investment in Ohio coal mining operations have been lost and that nothing but a radical change from present operating conditions will revive the industry which has

COURT FREES WIDOW, HER TWO BROTHERS AND COUSIN IN DEATH QUIZ

ATTORNEY GENERAL ACTS IN ABSENCE OF SPECIAL PROSECUTOR SIMPSON

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 4.—Judge Charles W. Parker nolle prossed the murder indictments remaining against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, her brothers, Henry and William Stevens, and their cousin, Henry De La Bruyere Carpender, at a hearing here today.

A verdict of "not guilty," was returned by a jury last night on the charge that Henry and Willie Stevens and their sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, were the slayers of Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

The indictment for the murder of Rev. Hall was still hanging over them when the defendants were brought into court this morning.

Attorney General Edward L. Katzenbach made the motion on behalf of the state to nolle prosse the indictments. He was representing the state in the absence of Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson who had failed to put in an appearance, although he was notified that the hearing would be held this morning.

Four Defendants Released.

"At the April term of the grand jury, indictments for murder were returned against Mrs. Frances S. Hall, Henry Stevens, William Stevens and Henry Carpender," said Katzenbach to the court. "Three of these defendants have been tried on the charge of murder and have been found not guilty.

"The state of New Jersey now moves for the nolle prossing of the indictments against all four defendants."

"The motion will be granted and the indictments nolle prossed," ruled Judge Charles W. Parker, who was sitting on the bench with Judge Frank L. Cleary.

Mrs. Hall Smiles When Freed.

Mrs. Hall, her two brothers and Carpender had been brought into court a few moments before the judge's decision was announced.

Mrs. Hall smiled quietly as the ruling was made freeing her forever from the murder charges.

Willie Stevens beamed. He arose, shook hands with his attorneys and told reporters he was "glad it was all over."

To the end Henry Stevens was grim and reserved, his expression not changed.

The well groomed Carpender, a Wall street broker, accepted the decision in a matter-of-fact manner.

When the crowd that swarmed around the defendants, moved away, both Henry Stevens and Willie walked over to their sister in the courtroom and kissed her. Tears came to Mrs. Hall's eyes.

Then Henry Carpender came to her and very quietly embraced her without speaking.

Mrs. Hall was speechless.

Simpson Scores State's Action in Sensational Case

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 4.—Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, sharply criticized the action of Attorney General Katzenbach today in causing the dismissal of the remaining charges against the defendants.

"It has been done against my opposition; it has been done over my head, and I consider it another blow aimed at justice," he said.

CANTON COURTHOUSE DRAMA, IN WHICH EX-CONVICT IS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF EDITOR, WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

CANTON, O., Dec. 4. — Another courthouse drama upon which the interest of the American public will be centered for weeks, was scheduled today to open in the Stark county hall of justice, Monday morning, before Judge E. W Diehl, in common pleas court, when Patrick Eugene McDermott goes on trial for his life for the murder of Don R Mellett, young Canton newspaper publisher.

McDermott is the first of three men, including Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer alleged figures in the Ohio underground liquor traffic, to face trial in the sensational Mellett murder case.

Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News, was assassinated as he parked his car in his garage early one morning last July, after attending a party with his wife and another couple. He had been warned repeatedly that his vigorous newspaper campaign against the underworld forces of Canton would bring down the wrath of the Canton "Jungle" upon his head, but had ignored the threats.

The trial of McDermott is expected to open to public scrutiny a sordid story of vice and political corruption which held Canton firmly in its grasp, and furnished the setting for a flourishing underworld cabal, which Mellett battled with the zeal of a crusader, through his newspaper.

Despite denials by the attorneys who are defending the three men under indictment, preliminary legal skirmishing has obviously indicated that the defense seeks a delay in the trial of McDermott, and legal entanglements may yet cause a postponement.

The defense has moved to delay the trial until depositions of two important witnesses, the brothers of Pat McDermott, who live in Nanty Glo, Pa., can be obtained, claiming their testimony is vital to the defense and the witnesses are outside the jurisdiction of the court.

Another angle which may cause delay is a suit in supreme court, brought by Prosecutor C. B. McClintock of Stark county, in an effort to nullify an order by Judge Diehl, granting bail to the other two defendants, Mazer and Rudner. The court has continued this hearing until Monday, and it would appear that the necessity of their presence in Columbus to appear in this matter might be sufficient grounds for the defense lawyers to obtain a temporary delay at least, in McDermott's trial. Prosecutor McClintock, it is understood, has made arrangements for Attorney H. H. Pontius, who was Mellett's personal attorney, to appear in the supreme court case for him, leaving the prosecutor free to conduct the McDermott trial preliminaries.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

500. How are the two classes, the godly and the ungodly, represented in this parable?

Answer: By the sheep and the goat. see Verses 32, 33.

501. Why are the sheep placed at His right hand?

Answer: Because the right hand means the place of favor, and the Lord loves those who have the sheep disposition—those who are loving, meek and willing to be led into the pastures of truth.

502. What is the disposition of the goat?

Answer: The goat wants his own way, likes to climb to the highest places, feeds on miserable refuse and is not loving.

503. Why does the Lord give the kingdom (Verse 34) and eternal life (Verse 46) to the sheep class?

Answer: Because they manifested love by their works when they were put to the test. They fed the hungry, gave drink to the thirsty, clothed the naked, etc. See Verses 35-40.

504. Why does the goat class "go into everlasting punishment?" (Verse 46)?

Answer: Because they show by their works the lack of the disposition of love for others.

505. What does the "fire" in verse 41 mean?

Answer: Fire is a symbol of destruction, and "everlasting fire" symbolizes everlasting destruction. See Revelation 20:9; Acts 3:23; Romans 6:23; Ezekiel 18:4, 20; Psalm 145:20.

506. Why is their punishment called "everlasting punishment" (Verse 46)?

Answer: Because they will be everlastingly destroyed—there will be no coming back to life again for them. They have proved themselves unworthy of life. They did not prove faithful under test or trial, and could not therefore live in harmony with the Lord and His righteous kingdom. glovedinuot-2030a;Uerevnessshrdtshrd

LABOR SITUATION GOOD IN STATE

In his biannual report to Governor Gore, Howard S. Jarrett, labor commissioner will say that West Virginia has amply shared in the nationwide prosperity of the last year and that labor difficulties have been few and far between.

Mr. Jarrett's report follows in part:

"Every one engaged in industry, workers and owners alike, are beginning to realize the truth of that apt illustration—Two Moose leaders of their herds, once met in deadly combat. Today their locked antlers, mute evidence of the futility of antagonism and strife lie bleaching on the plains. Employers and employees have profited through numerous experiences of industrial conflicts and are now agreed that it is far better to lock arms and live in peace and tranquility than to lock horns and die.

"The predominating factor in the welfare and progress of any state is not the question of a living wage alone, but couples with a saving wage to the toilers. The individual workman can judge the distinction and work out the problem according to his own family budget. No one should deny him a wage that does not include a sum for recreation and funds for the education of his children. Out of the 39 industries in West Virginia, which includes, 786 firms reporting to the bureau, 23 of the industries disclose an increase in wages in the year 1925 over the year 1924, while 15 industries paid less on an average in 1925 than in 1924. One industry paid the same average wage in the two years.

"This situation indicated a healthier business in these lines of industry."

He said the average wage in 1924 was $1,383, while in 1925 it was $1,409.

Anchor Hot Blast Heater

Wherever heating stoves are used the Anchor Hot Blast proves its superiority—proves that in down-right eficiency, in convenience, in actual economy, it is without an equal.

This superiority is not an accident, but is the result of many years of practical and scientific heating stove manufacture and practical tests.

The features of construction the Anchor Hot Blast Heater meet every requirement of heating-stove efficiency and long-time service. Highest quality materials, expert workmanship and scientific design combine to give a heating result unequalled in this type of heater.

The Anchor Hot Blast will burn any fuel—hard coal, soft coal, lignite, wood or coke, giving a uniform heat under perfect control, and slow economical combustion. Because of the hot-blast feature, the gases from soft coat are completely burned, making a ton of soft coal equal to a ton or more of expensive hard coal.

Careful attention has been applied to every detail of construction. And it is mounted absolutely airtight and remains airtight, because these details have been perfected and made practical.

In addition to a fine appearance that will last the life of the stove, the Anchor Hot Blast offers real home comfort and a saving of 25 per cent on your fuel bill.

Study these construction features. Know that your Anchor Hot Blast will save its cost out of the coal bin and pay dividends for years to come in warm home comfort and satisfaction.

All sizes 16, 18, 20 inch firebowl — make a small payment at time of purchase, you can pay through the coming year.

The Most Prosperous Year

During the present year, reports the scientific-minded Herbert Hoover, "the country was able to maintain the highest standard of living in history, a standard far above that in most countries of the world at this time or any other time."

This is a momentous statement, the full effect of which takes a little time to sink in. It means that 1926 has been the most prosperous year in the history of the most prosperous country on earth.

It is well to realize the kind of prosperity meant. It is not necessarily true that capitalists or big business men have made more money this year than they made at certain prosperity peaks in the past—during the late war boom, for example. It does not mean that everybody in the country has been wallowing in prosperity. What it means is that the people as a whole have got more for their efforts and lived better and got ahead faster than at any other time in the past.

It has been this year a sane, orderly prosperity diffused through society, with the wage-earner getting his full portion. Heaven send us more of such years!

Criminal Court Reform

A big American bar association has considered and turned down these two proposals, intended to facilitate the prosecution of criminals:

That the presumption of innocence in criminal cases should be abolished, and that three-fourths of a jury should suffice to render a verdict.

It is perhaps inevitable that the former proposal should be condemned, either by lawyers or laity. It is a fundamental principle of our Anglo-Saxon law and tradition, in contrast to other codes of Europe and Asia, that any person is innocent until he is proved guilty. It would seem like an overthrow of American liberty if a prisoner were considered guilty and liable to punishment unless he could prove his innocence.

This is a fundamental question of emphasis and viewpoint. It is considered necessary, for the preservation of individual freedom and the prevention of social and governmental tryanny, that the accused rather than the accuser should have the benefit of the doubt. It will take greater grievances against criminals that society has yet incurred to overthrow that principle.

The other proposal is not in the same class. It may be that nine jurors out of 12 are not a large enough ratio to guarantee every accused person a fair trial in criminal court; but there is a growing feeling that it ought to be possible to decide the facts of a criminal case by something less than a unanimous jury ballot.

As matters stand, one wrong-headed or crooked juror may keep a guilty person from deserved punishment, whereas it would take 12 wrong-headed or crooked jurymen to inflict punishment on the innocent. Thus the accused has 12 chances to one in his favor. The odds against society are too great.

It might even things enough to insure substantial justice on both sides if 10 or 11 jurors out of 12 were empowered to declare an accused person guilty.

Cheap Ocean Travel

"Three cents a mile to Europe" is the newest shipping slogan, and a good one. Three liners have been fitted out for "exclusive third cabin traffic," and will actually carry passengers across the Atlantic at this rate.

If there were a bridge across, it would probably cost two or three times that much to drive in your own family bus.

This one-class service is pretty decent, too—simple and plain, but clean and respectable, with all the necessaries of sea traffic, and many things which would have been considered real comforts a few years ago. The original Mayflower pilgrims would think such accommodations the height of luxury. So would many of their numerous descendants.

It is becoming about as cheap to travel as to stay at home. No wonder Americans are becoming a nation of inveterate gadders.

With Queen Marie gone home and the Hall murder case nearing a close, the country can soon settle down and devote the next two years to electing a president.

The various members of the British Empire, having declared that they are altogether independent of each other, are much more inclined to work together.

Next time I shall see America," says Queen Marie. Not if America sees her first. She will be overwhelmed with entertainment and oratory just the same.

The planets and stars, astronomers say, are composed of the same materials as the earth. So we might just as well settle down and stay here.

The Christmas shopping season is on, and many a loving family is going out and squandering its loose change to buy mother a new dish pan.

My Favorite Stories

THE UNACCOMMODATING SAMUEL.

The Southern negro takes pride in a funeral—his own or anyone's else. Some of Harris Dickson's best darky yarns have been written about the Virgil Custard Coffin club. Nearly every reputable colored citizen of a southern community pays his dues in his burial society in order to insure for himself a glorious final send-off. His provision for his obsequies often is a gauge as to his social and financial standing.

In one of the largest cities of Georgia there is a dignified, well-rounded-out colored man who has functioned for many years as the reception committee at the largest bank in town. He welcomes all comers at the front door. His manner of greeting a prominent depositor is a lessen in courtliness and deportment. Among his own race he is a power. Especially does he shine when an interment is taking place.

One day he received a message from his sister, a widow on a little farm a few miles out in the country, telling him that her son, and his nephew, was very low. If he wished, to see poor Sam alive he must come at once. What, from the uncle's standpoint, was even more important, he must bring with him a casket and a shroud, as no undertaker was to be found in the neighborhood where the grieving mother lived.

Uncle Henry moved promptly. He obtained a three days' leave of absence from his duties, borrowed some money from Mr. Gray, the president of the bank, loaded a coffin into the back of the wagon, and set out, more in exultation than in sorrow.

At the end of the week he returned, looking strangely depressed. His employed met him on his arrival.

"Well, Uncle Henry," he said, "I hope you had a good funeral?"

"Huh!" grunted the old man. "'Twuzn't nothin' to brag 'bout, Mist' Gray."

"Well, I regret that. If I'd known it was a matter of money I should have been glad to let you have as much more as you needed."

"That wuzn't it, Mist' Gray. The main trubble wuz wid that dam' nigger Sam—he never did die!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Nothing is quite so amusing in New York as those phoney high-brow teas where everybody gets a bit blotto. I just attended one. It started off auspiciously sedate and with the decorum of a Christmas cantata.

There were discussions of early American furniture, Chinese ceramics, the technique of Jeritza, Oscar Wilde's last days in Paris, Byron's last days in Italy, the abnormalities of the modern drama, relativity and many other rather uptown topics.

The tea was evidently quite potent for somehow the conversation skidded into the realms of the Charleston and before one realized it the phonograph was switched on and an elderly gray haired lady, who had been discussing Spinoza, demonstrated a few hot steps.

She was joined by several others and an affair starting off so Victorian suddenly became an "hey! hey!" soiree. The host a little later appeared with a towel playfully wrapped around his head and draped in a Navajo blanket to demonstrate the technique of a nautch dance.

Two other genetlemen would have doubtless shocked their boards of directors by giving a burlesque version of vaudeville strong men, upsetting in their caper a table of books and bric-a-brac with a thundering crash.

Ladies who had a half hour before sat primly in their chairs with hands folded palms up in their lap suddenly developed the spirit of hoydens and were romping and leaping about like those garlanded and thinly clad who fall dead at the end of the dance.

Teas these gallivanting days often take this sort of roystering turn. It is, of course, all good fun but often rough on furniture. I wanted to pay respects to the host before departing but he was taking a little siesta in the kitchen sink.

Broadway likes to refer to Brooklyn as "the wrong end of Brooklyn Bridge" and strangely enough the residents of Brooklyn have the same pitying attitude toward those living in Manhattan.

I have often wondered why the mere mention of Flatbush would transport vaudeville audiences into gales of laughter. It is one of the most peaceful of all the suburbs with residential sections as magnificent as those found anywhere. Then there are those towns with wild Jersey names, like Hackenback. Pleasant suburbs but always good for a vaudeville laugh.

In the past year three fairly well known youths of Broadway have chucked life with a gesture of disdain. One wrote a poem, lit a cigarette and turn on the gas. Another shook hands with a friend on a Broadway corner, said lightly, "I'll probably not see you for some time," and went to his room and shot himself. The third telephoned his sweetheart he had been called suddenly away and jumped out the window. Broadway often has a way of curtailing life's drama to a curtain raiser. They come, they see—they yawn!

Big hotels face a problem in stilling a panic when there is a fire in the neighborhood late at night. Everybody wants to get out at once with their luggage. The greatest danger is among those who lose their heads and try to jump from windows. Old people, hotels say, are generally calmest in such emergencies.

As a matter of fact fire insurance men say a fire disaster—such as that of the Windsor hotel—would be impossible in the modern hotels of today. The only danger is in people losing their mental poise.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Romance of Science—II.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Adventurers in one of the great modern romances of science were the two observers who set out from Washington but a few months ago for the Union of South Africa to take charge of the new astrophysical observatory established by the Smithsonian Institute with the cooperation of the National Geographic society.

They bade goodbye to civilization for three years which they are to spend on a barren mountain in a desert inhabited only by Hottentots and wild animals. They have long since reached their destination, and soon their daily cabled reports will be reaching Washington, possibly to bring about epoch-making progress in long range weather forecasts and possibly to record a comparatively negligible accomplishment.

It's a big gamble—lives, brains, labor, and money wagered with a possible prize of immeasurable benefit to humankind.

William H. Hoover and Frederick A. Greeley are the adventurers. They are familiar with such undertakings, having had experience at the Smithsonian's mountain observatories in California and in Chili, but they had never before tackled a job that promised so much of discomfort and hard work as this African expedition. There is an added touch of romance and human interest to the affair, therefore, in the fact that Mr. Hoover took with him his motherless eighteen-months-old baby daughter, and the child's aunt, who will give the younger the feminine care she should have.

They were to live in a cave in the precipitous side of Mount Purkaros at an elevation of almost 5,000 feet above the sea level. It is a region where never a flower nor anything green grows; nothing but chocolate-colored rocks and sand for miles around. The nearest neighbors are seven miles away, and they are semi-savage black folks, so that if tiny Miss Hoover sees another child or has a playmate before she is five years of age it will be a little Hottentot. It is an extraordinary situation—so much so, in fact, that if it were created by a writer of fiction it would probably be criticised as entirely too imaginative.

Cave Does Not Materialize.

When the party reached their destination, however, they found that the cave home had not materialized. The Inspector of Public Works under the government of Southwest Africa had undertaken to prepare the observatory site and the living quarters for the observers, carrying out the plans of Dr. Abbot who visited Mount Burkkaros last March. Mr. Abbot had located a cave which he though could be converted into suitable living quarters by enlarging it and building partitions, a front wall, and a front porch. But when the task was begun it was found wholly impracticable. Consequently a corrugated iron house was erected on a level spot on the inside of the cup-like top of the mountain.

Similarly Dr. Abbot had planned that the observatory should be a smaller cave, extended by a tunnel in which to house the delicate instruments that measure the sun's heat and that must be kept in place of even temperature. That had to be abandoned because of the unsuitability of the mountain for tunneling, and a second site suffered the same fate after several hundred tons of loose rock had been removed. The third try proved successful, and the observatory was established on the topmost ridge of the mountain, which towers 1,000 feet above the bottom of the "cup."

To obtain water during this construction work the engineers had to sink a well under the site of a dry waterfall miles away and transport the water on the backs of donkeys. To provide water for the observers and their household, two tanks with a capacity of 3,000 gallons each have been excavated in the rocks to catch rainfall. Not a drop of rain has fallen during the past six month, but the rainy season for Brukkaros comes in February and March, and it is expected that then a sufficient supply of water will be caught in the tanks to carry the observers through the long dry season. Until the rains come the Americans will have to haul water supply up on the backs of four small donkeys that have been provided for them, and then derrick it over a cut in the rim of the cup inside of which is their dwelling.

The British postal authorities have erected a special telephone line connecting the observatory with the wire at the railway station or Tses. This will make possible telephoning the daily reports on the sun's radiation to Keetmanshoop, whence they will be cabled to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The only other communication the Americans will have with the outside world will be their radio, and a truck on which their supplies will be hauled to them. This truck will be housed in a garage on the plateau at the base of the mountain, more than three miles from the observatory and the living quarters.

Fascinating Instruments.

The instruments set up for measuring the sun's heat on Mount Bukkaros are so interesting as to be fascinating, although scientists find it difficult to explain them in terms that the layman can understand. There is the coelostat to reflect the sun's rays constantly in a fixed direction into the observing chamber. It has two mirrors, one rotating half as fast as the earth, the other stationary. The first reflects the sunbeam in a certain fixed but inconvenient direction, while the second sends it horizontally into the laboratory.

There the sunbeam falls into a spectroscope, and since neither the eye nor the camera can register the whole gamut of solar spectrum rays, it is

In Later Years of Life

Good Elimination is More Than Ever Important.

AS we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. Proper function cleanses the blood stream thoroughly. Sluggish function is apt to permit some retention of uric acid and other poisons. This tends to make one tired, listless and achy—to have drowsy headaches and dizziness and perhaps a toxic backache. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passages. Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills in this condition. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SHEEP CLAIMS WILL BE FILED

Statistics Show Large Number Killed During Year by Dogs.

The sheep growing industry in this county is being seriously threatened by dogs, it has been revealed by the annual statement of sheep claims which will be filed with the county commissioners Monday for payment.

County Auditor Elmer E. Walker today declared that it was his belief that the state legislature should enact new legislation to curb the slaughter of sheep by dogs.

The number of animals being killed by dogs is increasing annually, statistics for this county for the last 12 months reveal. The year just ending has eclipsed all former records in this connection.

There is now on file in the auditor's office 81 claims representing $4,757.45 that the county commissioners will have to approve for payment Monday. These claims show 426 sheep killed by dogs during the last year and 119 injured. In addition to this record, five other head of cattle have been killed by dogs and three injured. It is stated that these figures will likely be increased before the close of the month.

"Unless worthless sheep-killing dogs are eliminated, the sheep industry of the county is doomed," Mr. Walker declared.

Sheep claims received from different townships that will be ordered paid Monday by the county commissioners are: Center, 13; Elkrun, 9; Middleton, 9; Salem, 8; Butler, 7; West, 7; Fairfield, 5; Hanover, 5; Unity, 5; Yellow Creek, 4; Wayne, 2; Franklin, 2; Madison, 2; Perry and Knox townships, 1 each.

Up until the close of business Friday evening 6,229 dog licenses have been issued for the current year. There is approximately $8,000 in the dog and kennel fund now, and it is from this fund that all sheep claims are paid. The law provides that $1,000 shall always remain in this fund, and that the balance of the fund, less 35 per cent specified by law for the enforcement of the law, be paid to the credit of the county board of education.

Until the passage of a law during the last session of the legislature, sheep claims were paid more frequently than now. The present law provides that sheep claims be paid by the county commissioners once each year.

When sheep claims are filed, the value of the stock killed or injured as filed by the owner is compared with the valuation the owner placed on such stock at the time he filed his personal tax return. The claims are then paid on the valuation placed by the owner.

Divorce Suit Instituted.

An injunction has been sought in common pleas court against Guy Landis, East Liverpool, preventing him from in any way interfering with his wife, Anna Landis, who has sued for divorce. Cochran and Crawford, of East Liverpool, represent Mrs. Landis.

The couple was married May 7, last, at Wellsburg, W. Va.

The plaintiff also seeks alimony.

Leave To File.

In the case of the Eilert Beverage company against the Rosenberger Dairy Products company, the court has granted the defendants until December 6 to file its answer to the petition. In this case, the plaintiff claims the defendant company is indebted to it for $570.

MRS. FLODING GIVEN DIVORCE

A decree of divorce and $400 alimony has been granted Josephine R. Floding, a minor, who through John J. Mullen, her next friend, sued her husband, Homer Floding, for a divorce, alimony and restoration to her maiden name.

The court has ordered that each party pay one-half the costs of the suit, and judgment for the costs has been entered.

This case was contested, and a number of witnesses were called to the stand. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney George T. Farrell, of Lisbon, while the defendant was represented by Attorney H. L. McCarty, of Salem.

FURNACE COMPANY PLANT IS SOLD

On a bid of $185,000 the plant of the McKeefrey Furnace company at Leetonia has been sold by Sheriff George Wright to the Leetonia Furnace company, a new corporation formed recently, and it is said by the creditors of the corporation. The sale was following the filing of an action recently in common pleas court against the Lectonia company by the Peoples Savings & Trust company of Pittsburgh, Pa., holders of $800,000 bonds of the company. The property was appraised at $270,000.

Divorce Action Filed.

HUDSON SIX SALES WINNER

Stimulus Given Coaches, Broughams and Sedans by Price Cut.

Hudson Super-Six coaches, broughams and sedans—now at new low prices due to recent $100 reduction on all models — are proving the sales leaders of the season, according to sales executives of the Buckeye Motor company, Hudson-Essex dealers here. They declare a marked sales stimulus has resulted from the reductions which were all the more surprising in view of the fact that they came shortly after the introduction of new and greatly improved Hudson models.

"Hudson certainly has knocked into a cocked hat the old idea that a car had to be expensive to be good," said Roy Birch. "We now have the best looking as well as the best made Hudsons ever built, yet these wonderful bodies on wonderful chasses are selling at the most favorable prices we have ever known. It is no wonder the public is showing its appreciation.

"In these new Hudsons the chief of many mechanical improvements is the greatly improved system of carburetion and manifolding by which gasoline consumption has been reduced materially without sacrifice of pickup, power of flexibility.

"Hudson's always brilliant performance is actually bettered in the new models. Power is greater. Pickup is quicker. Reliability is increased. Refinements and improvements centered around the famous super-six principle which for 11 years has made automotive history, give more smoothness, freedom from vibration, while the new colors, new lines, new comfort, beauty and distinction of the cars are factors which are having a great deal to do with the splendid sales response.

"Among the many advantages possessed by Hudson not commonly found in any but the most costly motor cars, Birch points out the following:

"Full counterbalanced crankshaft, balanced flywheel, roller tappets, aluminum alloy pistons, nickel babbit bearings for camshaft, bronze-backed, babbit-lined main and connecting rod bearings, accessible timing chain adjustment, minimum crankshaft dilution due to inbuilt features, patented motor lubrication control, efficient new intake manifold and carburetor, gasoline filter inbuilt in vacuum tank, exceptionally sturdy frame with five cross members, and rugged axles front and rear."

Every time we hear the ambulance bell clamor past, we are reminded that pedestrians still exist, but are getting fewer.—Cincinnati Time-Star.

Says Earth Like Golf Ball.

That the earth is built on the principle of the old-fashioned metal-cored gold ball is the contention of Dr. E. D. Williamson, the scientist who has just concluded a series of investigations into the subject. The metal core of the earth, he says, is pure iron or an alloy of iron and nickle, having a thickness of not less than 4,200 miles. Outside of this is a layer of iron and rock on top of which is strata of rock which in turn is covered by the earth's surface consisting almost entirely of granite.

Japan's Industries Chosen.

In its program of increasing domestic production, Japan proposes to give government aid to its leading industries, and the National Products Encouragement Association recently selected ten industrial arts to be recommended. These were iron and steel, dye stuffs, soda ash, shipbuilding, woolen textiles, automobiles, aluminum, artificial fertilizers, machinery and silk and silk textiles. Government officials will consider the recommendations within a short time.

necessary to absorb them on a lamp-black surface so that they produce their equivalent as heat, which is measured by a very delicate electrical thermometer, called the bolometer. The latter was invented by the late Dr. Langley, who was a pioneer in solar-radiation measurements as he was later in aviation.

It consists of two blackened, hair-like ribbons of platinum, each about one-half inch long, 1-250 inch wide, and 1-1200 inch thick. These are joined by two coils of wire to form a Westinghouse's bridge, and connected with an electric battery and highly sensitive galvanometer. Houses are lighted by electric lamps which use about one-fourth ampere of current. The bolometer detects current changes ten million times smaller and detects temperature changes of less than one-millionth of one degree.

Then there is the radiometer, which will not be used at Burkkaron because it can only be operated in conjunction with a giant telescope. In this instrument there is a fly's wing suspended by a quartz fiber that is finer than a spider's web. Another feature is a mirror the size of a pin head. The fly's wing is blackened on one side and when low pressure radiation shines on the blackened surface the wing turns, this motion being shown in the mirror, and a measure of the degree of radiation is effected.

Quite as interesting as instruments such as these is the man who makes them. He has been with the Smithsonian for 34 years and has turned out delicate mechanisms that have been eagerly sought by scientists in Germany, Switzerland, and other European countries. The cost of these instruments is largely the time required to make them, thee expert having spent as much as three years on a single one.

REAL TALENT 'N 'ROSE-MARIE'

Brilliant Hammerstein Offering Here Dec. 7.

The brilliant and melodic "Rose-Marie" comes to the Ceramic theatre for one day only, Tuesday, December 7.

One does not wonder at the tremendous popularity of the Hammerstein piece—it is fully satisfying to the listener, it requires more talent than the general run of musical comedies and real talent means a better entertainment. The music of Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart, as we recall, "Indian Love Call," "Rose-Marie," "The Door of My Dreams," and the sterling song of "The Mounties" and other tunes are far above the average in richness and strength.

Scenes of great beauty enhance the superbly beautiful production and the costumes have that rare grace of being exquisite in color, fabric and design.

The master craftsman, Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, wrote the book that is full of dramatic situations and unlike most musical comedies is never lost sight of during the whole action of the play.

In the cast is Ethel Louise Wright, Paul Donah, Grace Wells, Charles Meakins, Peggy Pates, Houston Richards, Karyl Kunkel, Frank Harrington, James Moore, Neil Moore and over ninety others including a symphony orchestra that render the score in a musicanly and satisfying manner.

Farmers were speedier than government officials in Egypt this year and before the measure restricting the area to be sown could be published, they planted more acres of cotton than the new law permitted.

DRYS PLAN DRIVE TO PLUG LEAKS IN PROHIBITION LAW

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DRAFTS ITS PROGRAM

Call on Congressmen to Strengthen Statute Enforcement.

WETS ARE ACTIVE

Suggest Availability of Retired Army and Navy Officers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Despite widespread defeats at the November elections, the organized drys today opened a drive to plug all legislative leaks in the national prohibition law.

Calling on congressional dry leaders to wage an active campaign for the strengthening of prohibition enforcement, the anti-saoon league announced its legislative program for the coming session of congress. The program will include enactment of:

1.—The Andrews prohibition reorganization bill, already passed by the house but pending in the senate, to create separate prohibition and customs bureaus in the treasury department, the anti-saloon league announced the civil service.

2. — The Goff-Graham bill to strengthen the prohibition law by extending the government's control over cereal beverages, and denatured alcohol, by enforcing all international liquor treaties and by punishing counterfeiters of prohibition permits. It is pending in both house and senate.

3. — Recodification of all customs laws.

4. A bill making retired army and navy officers available for appointment without loss of their retired pay.

Wet Bloc Movement.

The congressional wet bloc, meanwhile, will have but one legislative program—to defeat each of the above bills. The senatorial wet bloc will hold a meeting in the near future to devise a compaign of action to insure the success of their defeatist program.

The drys, however, warned of the wet desires, will seek to enact their legislation early in the coming session. This plan was the basis of an appeal made to dry leaders by Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the anti-saloon league.

"I hope congress can see its way clear to bring these bills to a vote early in the session so as to avoid the possibility of a fili-buster later on when its is more difficult to get action," Wheeler wrote dry leaders. "The Anti-Saloon league and other dry forces generally will make an active campaign for the adoption of this legislation in the short session."

Dry Control.

Although the drys lost referenda in New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada, their leaders will face the coming session certain of an overwhelming control of the legislative situation. In fact, they will maintain the same control throughout the seventieth congress. As an example of their strength, there will be 73 drys to 23 wets in the new senate with 331 drys out of a total membership of 435 in the next house.

Despite these overwhelming majorities some doubt has arisen over their ability to enact the dry program into law at the short session. As Wheeler pointed out, unless the drys can get action early in the session, a wet filibuster could easily defeat the whole program. The dry campaign will be directed to prevent such a contingency.

Kidder Will Quit

to step in and adjust affairs if possible. I may get cleaned in the act as I may get cleaned in this news squabble but "I'd Have Guts To Defend the Oppressed." I reneat, those were my sentiments regarding the institution of athletics in the city of East Liverpool. Who said they were any one else's? I didn't.

"So much for that. Let's see now. Who in the personnel of an athletic organization should feel the sustaining power of support. I wonder. Well, I should just guess that the coach in season might be in position to get the reaction on his squad. It was my privilege to have been just that party and I declare that no one in the city of East Liverpool knew quite so well that well deserving group of boys. I studied them collectively and as a group, as I was taught to do in two coaching schools it was my privilege to attend. I felt I could sense their very heart throbs and believe me when I say it took all the courage and love for my school that was mine to have at all times to keep them together as a unit and buoyed to the point that their efforts were appreciated as a they should be. Appreciated? Yes, I say they were. But in a larger sense it seemed that they were not.

"I never thought traffic should stop just because a football man came on the scene. I never thought a football man was his brother's betters. I never appreciated a doctor any more than I appreciated my own brother, but, I did not call for the services of my brother when Dick, my little boy, crushed his arm in the wringer. No, I called for a practicing physician. I appreciated his services and hold him so in no uncertain terms. You, East Liverpool, wanted a football team. The team came and served you. You owe it a debt of gratitude impossible to pay and yet not a single function has been held in their behalf except the treat Mr. Tallman of the Ceramic gave them at the theatre last night and a feed made possible by Richard Brian, a local clothier, Cliff Bough and 'Smoke' Viney. Space will not permit the exposition of how we could show appreciation. In short, it would be quite a lesson to follow the practices of our neighboring towns though small. The most we can do is none too good for a group that so represents a town. Have we done as much as we can?

"Resignation! Well, well, well! How things can be mutilated in a press room. Don't get to the boiling point, fellows. You rammed me a few. I am taking it even though it was nothing more nor less than malicious on the face of affairs and especially since you now can conceive of the alignment of truth. Resignation! No one even whispered a thing about resigning. I'll continue with some more truth in this particular. The circumstances will amuse us all. I was told in the press room, where I dared to go, that what I said would ruin me and they would wager that. My reply to that was this. 'Ruin me, you nor anyone else can do that. I'll quit first if you are alluding to the possibility of a future football contract here.' Then it was that I informed the press that Mr. McVay had been informed that I would not be an applicant for a coaching position in East Liverpool in the face of prevalent handicaps. This information was given Mr. McVey the week prior to the Leetonia game by myself in person. Mr. McVay will tell you as much. So, you see I'm not such a liar after all, folks.

"Let me assure the public, the civic clubs and all factions interested in high school athletics and have aided us in any particular that a more appreciative cuss never lived than George Kidder. I am truly grateful for all endeavors of a constructive nature. God knows that I am hoping the cat will be thoroughly licked over my shoulders. It will all have been worth while and I'm willing to be the goat if it's the means to an end. So may it be.

Training camp:

"Your report on the training camp, according to officials, so stated belies facts. I say to you that I took subscriptions for every single cent that was raised for the camp and am bold enough to say that it cost me more than any of the loyal subscribers inasmuch as it took a very profitable week's work from me to arrange so to do. More facts. I hope you like them. Pretty well posted, don't you think?

"Then I get a great laugh out of this eligibility question. Gee, fellows, you say something now! It's your turn. Say, when you were in school, who made out the eligibility lists? Well, the same person continues to perform the same duties. I would not usurp myself in that manner. Any one acquainted with school administration is acquainted with the fact that the high school principal always prepares the eligibility lists. The coach in charge never,—think of it, not even Kidder—is privileged so to do. I guess the trend of ignorance is boomeranging you to death by this time. Furthermore, who do you mean by the school officials when you say you got all this from them. I am sure you did not get your eligibility ride from Miss Updegraff. She will tell you who authorizes eligibility. Ask her. Let me introduce you to some news. Kidder has his first time yet to play an ineligible man. Get that! Never has he so done. You mention Mr. Holmes? Was he played? Yes! Why? Because he was on the eligibility list and I did not place him there.

By the way, that we forfeited the game to Sebring, also belies facts. That is untrue. Heaven's sake, get something right! I insist I have nothing to do with that end of it. If a man is eligible I play him. If he is not all the powers in the kingdom could not get him in a game if I had anything to do with as a coach. In fact, I told Ducky Holmes not to report Friday night before the Sebring game as I could not use him in the absence of his credits from Cameron. He did not report. I used another man in practice that night. Ducky came in Saturday morning smiling and said, "I got 'em.' I advised him to take them to Miss Updegraff's home which he did, and Miss Updegraff placed him on the eligibility list. There you are: I never saw his credits till Miss Updegraff showed them to me. Take that!

"The other two boys whom you mentioned in Friday's edition were George Deems, of Newell, and Ray Kinsey of East Liverpool. You did not mention Ray's name. I am reminding you that I know of the lad. Deems was played only after being placed on the eligibility list, likewise Ray Kinsey. If anyone has a kick coming here it is the coach. I spent hours with those boys grooming them for the positions they held from training camp till they were declared ineligible by Miss Updegraff. They were declared eligible in the middle of August. I virtually worked with them from that time on. Who should kick? Kidder? I did not, but took it as a matter of fate and oversight which we are all subject to and plodded on. Would I play an ineligible man? Ask the boys!

"Do you remember the Toronto game which was not covered by the newspaper? Yes? I'll tell you one that happened in the Gem City. We were in scoring distance at Toronto three times that I remember of. One time we were on the six-inch line. What did we need? Someone to plug it over. Jack Bromby, the all-county fullback, was sitting beside me, slightly injured but eligible so far as qualifications were concerned. Due to his injury I overlooked having his name authorized in the official manner. Did he play? No. Jack would have saved us from defeat that day and would have in all probability brought victory as well HAD I BEEN UNSCRUPULOUS ABOUT ELIGIBILITY AS YOU, THE PRESS, HAVE PAINTED THE PICTURE. Say, the Blue and White has never started a game under my direction until God's blessing had been invoked, praying that real men would be in the process of making through the medium of clean sportsmanship throughout the contest. DOES SUCH PRACTICES SEEM CONSISTENT WITH UNSCRUPULOUS MANIPULATION OF ELIGIBILITY?

"The teacher of geometry and coach of football in our local high school would have a few words if he may in exposition of that which the readers found in this section of yesterday's edition. The press thinks I owe it to the public to refute or apologize in this column. I'll be pleased to do both if the space will permit. I owe it to myself as well as the public that we be thoroughly understood for, you see, I follow the insurance business through the summer and that sufficeth all. I wouldn't lose a dollar on this. It isn't worth it.

"The press agent will recall how much time was given me to talk at the Kiwanis luncheon, and that I proceeded to unglove the hand with apologies, admitting that the approach was undiplomatic and trusting that I would be taken in the spirit of one who was solicitous of every good wish tho the sentiments would not indicate. I do not believe the Kiwanians are so offended as it would appear from pictures. Did it ever occur to you that a villain is not made in a day. They are not converted over night. Past records will tend to prove that I am not so rash after all. Why, I would be branded a villain blasting about insanely, according to reports. It's a wonder Jim has not handcuffed me for the Toledo 'clubber.'

"It is real funny when they assume that we might even think we owe for sport articles in the sport section. I wonder if I will get a bill for the clever article featuring my incapabilities so boldly listed on the front page of last night's issue. It's worth a lot to me. I'd gladly have paid something for it. It is interesting to note though that more space can be gotten for ridicule than for construction. In this conjunction let me further expostulate by saying that it remains a fact that the Steubenville paper could scrape up three full size pages enlarging upon their Turkey Day encounter but that the East Liverpool paper owned by the same firm hardly afforded one full page. Chester, with all credit due her, drew almost as much space as did theh ome town lads. In that same edition East Liverpool contributed 55 ads, Chester contributed none. Who is paying for it? I still claim the Turkey Day Game deserves first page consideration and that except for such special attractions we have had our share.

"My mother always taught me that I should look with pity on ignorance. Here comes someone making light of my lack in the field of mathematics. That is not polite. I always was poor in mathematics, but, I should guess the writer of last evening's editorial could be shown some calculus, integral and differential, that he has never conceived. Sh-h-h, Mathematician! There isn't a single one in town. A mathematician is one who has a doctor's degree in high Mathematics. Let 'em rave. I enjoy it. Don't pull Webster on me; that's old. At any rate one does not have to be a mathematician to figure with the average. The average can figure with both we pen pushers so far as that in concerned. Let me see. They say there were 13,000 at the Chester and Wellsville games combined. Who counted them? I was there and I didn't. The gate receipts, they say, for the two games was about $3,000. The only way to accurately count them, and they will tell you so anywhere, is to employ simple division. Using the principal sum of $3,000 as the dividend and the general admission price, say 50 cents, as the divisor, the quotation arrived at in that process will tell you how many heads you can count at the game. That as you see allows us a gate of 6,000 people at both games taken collectively. Ach! I hear some one let out a squeal. What about the ones who never pay. Say! I don't count them. Do you? If you do, Mr. Business Man, I'd be pleased to open an account with you. I contend that the fellow who did not pay was not there as a contributing factor and so you cannot count him. We have too many of those fellows in our social strata now. Don't do him the honor of counting him in with the man who pays. The man who does not pay for his merchandise is stricken off the books. That's business. Don't please don't count him in on this business of sportsmanship.

"I am not unmindful of the fact that we have had a great deal of help from civic societies in East Liverpool. I most assuredly am grateful for it all. No one wishes for a well rounded curriculum more than I do. I have studied school administration and am more posted on that, too, than the one who would tell and admonish me concerning it. However, you understand that school as any other institution has its various departments. Mine is the department of athletics up till now. That's what I have a right to talk about and boost. I am happy when other departments thrive. The band! Why, it is indispensible. Ralph Johnson knows I mean it, too. Ask him. But, my sole mission in the school system this fall (aside from teaching five classes each day) was football. Why, then, should I put a far cry out for any other department? Some one would tell me where to head in at.

"Say, Let's shake now and go to work for the best high school in this or any other state. That's what I want. Nothing else. I'll lay a bet though that the gate receipts for next year will double the gate for this year. What about a fence?"

Reporters went to her and asked her what she had to say.

"I have nothing to say," she said. "All that can be said, has been said."

Then all four defendants went into a side room to pose for pictures.

Carpender's Statement.

Henry Carpender gave out a statement which said:

"I was indicted solely on the lying story and false identification of Jane Gibson and have spent four months in jail without a trial because of the crooked tactics of Simpson. However, the world knows the truth about both Jane Gibson and Simpson and no trial of my own is now necessary to clear my name."

A short time before the hearing began, a conference was held in the judge's chambers between Katzenbach and attorneys for the defense.

Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson had failed to appear at the hearing and Katzenbach represented the state.

Salvation Army's Pots Begin "Boiling" Here Today.

The Salvation Army started its annual Christmas relief fund campaign today when pots began "boiling" in the down town business district.

The organization seeks to meet a deficit of $3,800 in the year's budget. This represents the shortage in the proposed $10,000 fund which was sought in the October drive.

A committee of women started to canvass the potteries this week. Every industrial plant is to be visited before Christmas.

Pots will be placed on the streets again next Saturday and then every day until Christmas.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Speculative interest was largely centered on Baldwin Locomotive and other high-priced industrial stocks in view of the reports that Arthur Cutten and his Chicago associates had locked horns with the professionals in Wall street and had carried off first honors in the speculative coup which has been a 30-day mystery in the financial district.

Baldwin opened at 162, unchanged, after which the stock advanced in heavy trading to 164 and fell back to 159, at which price trading was quite animated. The Wall street shorts had agreed to cover their short contracts on the best possible terms without raising the cry of a possible corner, according to well founded reports.

As a group, the motor stocks displayed conspicuous strength and activity from the start. General General Motors sold above 146 in active trading, while Hudson reached a new high for the movement at 49¼, and Chrysler, Stuebaker and Hupp sold fractionally higher.

The approach to the year-end has stimulated calculation of the full year's profits and earnings of the industrial and railroad companies.

We prepared three airships to fly to Hawaii, two fell down, the third wouldn't go up. We prepared two more airships for a non-stop flight to Panama. These non stop airships promptly stopped.

We may not be "quitters," but we are something like the man that said: "I'm a game guy, but I know when I'm licked." We seem to be "licked" a good deal of the time.

Mine Wage Cut Urged

been in a state of collapse for the past three years.

"The real trouble with the present Ohio coal situation is lack of discipline, poor efficiency and a non-competitive wage scale," the report reads.

Unless these difficulties can be overcome, either by the introduction of open shop or voluntarily by a radical change from the present attitude of the miners union, there appears to be little, if any, chance of returning the Ohio coal mining industry to its former relative status.

"If the miners union will not adjust its wage rates so as to meet this economic condition, then the open shop is the only alternative to permit the Ohio coal industry to function," the report continued.

"The unreasonably high labor rates in the Ohio mines are responsible for the unnecessary burden on the public," according to the report.

Union Chief Is Silent.

Lee Hall, president of the Ohio United Mine Workers, refused to comment upon the commission's report today.

He said he would not be ready to issue any statement concerning it until after he has made a careful study of the entire report. Hall intimated that he probably will issue a public statement sometime next week.

MAIL DELIVERY ON CHRISTMAS

Help Carrier to Enjoy Dinner at Home, is Appeal.

Help your friends, the mail-carriers, enjoy their Christmas dinner at home this year, was the appeal issued today by Postmaster J. E. McClure.

If postal patrons delay their Christmas package mailing until the last possible minute, it is likely to be a pretty tough day for the carriers, McClure said.

McClure pointed out that this year it would be necessary to have one mail delivery on Christmas day—by reason of the fact that Christmas falls on Saturday and there is no regular delivery on Sunday.

Last year the postmaster general, in order to protect the thousands of postal employes throughout the country, ordered that no mail should be delivered on Christmas day. This year it's different.

McClure said that if citizens of East Liverpool would make an effort to complete their gift buying for out-of-town friends and relatives next week, the overload on the postoffice department would be so relieved that the mail carriers' Christmas Day burden would be comparatively light.

"Mark your packages 'Not to Be Opened Until Christmas' and mail them Now," the postmaster suggested. "The accurate delivery of your gifts will be insured, and it will help tremendously in relieving the last minute burden on overworked postal employes who face their greatest burden as the Christmas season approaches."

Rubeirao, Pernambuco, soon is to have its first rural telephone.

W. J. Courtney and Ernest Ester are Under Arrest.

BURNS SLEUTHS

Defendants Released When They Furnish $1,500 Bond Each.

W. J. Courtney, assistant manager of the Pittsburgh office of the Burns Detective Agency, and Ernest Ester, an operative, both of whom qualified as "star" witnesses for the state in the Rocco Carbicella-Frank Fusco bribery case in common pleas court at Lisbon, have been held for the December term of court in Lawrence county, Pa., on charges of violating the Snyder act, following their arrest and trial Thursday before Justice William Marshall, of New Castle.

Carbicella and Fusco, through their attorneys, W. A. O'Grady and Ben L. Bennett, have been granted a motion for a new trial, this action being the most recent since the pair was arrested on charges of Sheriff George Wright that they had attempted to bribe him to "lay off" investigation of the James Kenney murder case.

Ester and Courtney were accused of the sale of three and a half cases of alleged whisky, the donation of two pints to the ex-chief of police, the donation of a sample pint to a former burgess, and certain conversations about "cases at $55, fleets, the coppers, carloads billed for Mexico, railroad "holdovers," and other language, by witnesses who testified at their hearing before Justice Marshall.

John Evans, a New Castle councilman, posted the $3,000 bail that permitted the sleuths their freedom.

TWO REVIVAL MEETS SUNDAY

Two meetings will be held Sunday in the First Evangelical church here in connection with the revivals which have been under way recently. Rev. H. A. Frye will discuss "The Blood of Jesus" in the morning and a "Christian Life" in the evening." On Monday the evangelist will talk on the subject, "Columbiana's Greatest Detective."

Last night Rev. Frye spoke on the subject, "The Conversion of Zaccheus," taking his theme from St. Luke, "This day is salvation come to this house for so much as he also is a son of Abraham."

He said:

The noblest act is expressed in this text. There is a bright outlook to those who would see Jesus.

It is the unusual thing for a rich man to want to see Jesus.

Some folks call us short sighted if we preach nothing else but expremental religion. All that such critics can see is the mighty dollar. But the Christian's vision is far beyond that of the natural man.

Second, the man Zaccheus tried to overcome difficulties in order to gratify his desire to see Jesus.

He was a wise man, far more than a lot of folks in Wellsville! Why, because he seized the opportunity when it came, while you put it off.

Jesus passes by for the last time. God is not always going to fool with you. Some of these days he will whisper into your ear for the last time.

The first thing that Zaccheus did to see Jesus was to leave the crowd The narrow way is not crowded, only the few in Wellsville are going that way and the many are on the wide road to destruction. The Bible says so.

If you want to go to hell, there are plenty of people in Wellsville who are anxious to help you there. But some are anxious to help you to heaven.

A man can always see more if he climbs. Some people think that they can see everything without climbing, just to live an indifferent life.

It's hard for folks to get down, that is it's hard on their pride to acknowledge sin. But you can't sneak into God's kingdom. Zaccheus came down and so will you if you would see Jesus.

Christ knew Zaccheus by name. He knows you. Christ said today I must abide at thy house. Not tomorrow. Zaccheus obeyed. He was willing to straighten up back tracks. To make restitution.

If you have wronged anybody you must go and ask forgiveness. Your confession must be as public as the act. There is not any doubt that the home of Zaccheus was different from that day. If there were any theatre tickets, tobacco or a deck of cards they were thrown into the fire for they wanted nothing around that was not according to the liking of Jesus.

Today is the day of salvation. Now is the accepted time. Some of these days Jesus will pass you by for the last time.

The services will continue all of next week each night except Saturday, also day services Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursday and Fridays at 2:30 p. m. on Bible study. We urge the public to share this feast of good things.

A. C. McBANE BUYS $17,700 HOME

The former residence of W. S. Leach, ex-cashier of the defunct bank of Benwood, located on the national road near Chickenneck hill, was sold recently at auction to A. C. McBane, president-treasurer of the M. H. & M. Shoe company, at a consideration said to be $17,700.

McBane, the purchaser, is a former Wellsville resident. He at one time was a justice of the peace and also engaged in real estate business. He left here several years ago.

This was the second time the residence was up for sale, McBane having been the high bidder with an offer of $17,700 before. Legal complications following the death of Mrs. W. S. Leach, however, resulted in an agreement to resell.

The sale was conducted by Anton Bieberson as trustee and Attorneys Albert W. Laas and Austin V. Wood, special commissioners, to satisfy a circuit court decree of half million dollars in favor of the bank of Benwood against Leach, who is now serving a sentence in the West Virginia state penitentiary, Moundsville.

Mickey Walker Wins Decision And Crown From Tiger Flowers

Fans Greet Verdict Of Referee Yanger With Disapproval

By Gene Hoffman.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—While Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., was being hailed today as middleweight champion of the world, vague murmurings were echoing along the sports rialto of things decayed in Denmark.

Walker was awarded the decision over Deacon Tiger Flowers, of Atlanta, Ga., at the end of ten stirring rounds at the Coliseum here last night. The decision was made by Referee Benny Yanger, who, judging by the crescendo of booing that greeted his verdict, was the only man in the place who believed Walker had won.

No one appeared more surprised than Jack Kearns, Walker's astute manager. But Kearns quickly regained his aplomb and became voluble in declaring that Walker had won every round.

Tiger Forces Fighting.

Flowers forced the fighting all the way, landed any number of telling blows, and finished the terrible milling without a mark; whereas Walker was cut and bleeding and looked the part of a man thoroughly whipped. By what deductions Referee Yanger justified the decision that took the title away from Flowers remains a mystery to 10,000 spectators who paid a record gate of $90,000 to see the show.

Although no two newspaper men could be found who agreed on the number of rounds won by either fighter, it was the consensus of opinion in the press box that the decision was all wrong. And that is given without questioning the integrity of Mr. Yanger.

Referee Yanger said he gave the fight to Walker because "Mickey did all the punching and Flowers did not close his hands."

Flowers on Floor.

The ninth round apparently had much weight with Yanger in reaching his decision. In this session Walker clipped Flowers on the chin and the champion went to the floor. With an acrobatic flip, as if made of rubber, Tiger was on his feet before a count could even be started. He wasn't even dazed, and tore right into Walker as though he had not been hit. But Flowers was on the floor, and a knockdown is a knockdown.

It was a fast and furious fight in every round. One minute after the battle had started, the Deacon opened an old cut over Mickey's eye and from then on till the final bell, the left side of Walker's face was a mass of gore. All through the fight Flowers kept jabbing at the injured optic with an aggravating right.

Tiger was the aggressor always. He outboxed the challenger consistently. At close quarters Mickey was continually holding on. Except in two or three rounds, when Walker sent the champion back on his heels with lightning jabs, Mickey fell far short of convincing the multitude that he is Flowers' superior.

Flowers Cheerful.

Tiger, it appeared, had a clean margin in four of the ten rounds. Three of them are credited to Walker, while the other three were even.

Flowers took the "bad news" cheerfully. He was the first to congratulate the new champion. As soon as Yanger raised Walker's hand, Tiger leaped to Mickey's side, and smiling broadly, threw his arms around him.

But Walk Miller, Tiger's manager, was not so cheerful. Immediately after the fight, he said:

"I don't agree with the decision. I think the worst Flowers should have had was a draw. Personally, I think he won. But I do think the decision was given honestly, and in good faith."

Miller said he would reserve an official statement until he learns whether Kearns will keep his promise to give Flowers a return engagement within three months.

FANS JAMMED IN FOR COAST GAME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—The vanguard of a sell-out gate of more than 80,000 began to fill the mammoth Los Angeles Coliseum today for the Notre Dame-Southern California classic, hours before the starter's whistle was scheduled to send the elevens into action this afternoon.

The weather was ideal but yesterday's drizzle threatened to make the footing heavy and further narrowed the odds on the relatively light South Bend squad.

MICKEY WALKER

FIGHT VERDICT RAISES RUMPUS

Chicago Critics Assert Flowers Was "Held Up."

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Chicago seethed with a new boxing scandal today.

The decision awarding Mickey Walker the middleweight crown of Tiger Flowers was branded by newspaper writers as "in the bag."

Right down the line, with one exception, sport editors loudly shouted the colored boxer was held up and his headpiece snatched in the dark.

While intimations fell about like a fog, the Illinois boxing commission took no steps but refused to deny a report that the bout "might be investigated.'

Action toward a probe by the commissioners may be based on the published statement of a Chicago sports editor today to the effect that "he announced last Thursday the Walker-Flowers fight was "'in the bag' according to reports from New York."

The same writer called the decision of Referee Benny Yanger the "biggest steal in Illinois boxing circles since the famous Gans-McGovern fight."

While the trouble was brewing away, young Mr. Mickey Walker was enjoying a belated breakfast over which he smiled.

"I do not want the title unless I won it fairly," the new champion said. "I think I did do that. But anyway I will give Flowers a return bout just as soon as he wants it and I don't care where we fight. How about Timbuctoo—ain't that a place in Africa? Anyway I think I beat Flowers last night and I can do it again."

ROSELAWNS BOW TO BANKERS

Shoot 2,017 But Lose Two Games to Foes.

DESPITE the fact that they rolled the second highest team score recorded to date in the Business Men's duckpin loop at the Liberty last night, the Roselawns bowed to the Bankers in two of their three games.

The Roselawns finished with a total count of 2,017, as against 1,937 by the Bankers.

The losers piled up a great deal more than they needed in the first game which they won, 718 to 621. But the Bankers, shooting consistently, came back to cop the second by the extremely narrow margin of one pin. The score was 673 to 672. The third also went to the Bankers, 643 to 627.

Blythe, Harker, Green, Strabley, Wurtzel and Aley all rolled away up in the 400 division.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

Now for the forward swing, with the back swing we have been discussing. The thing to watch out for when you start forward is this: Avoid by all means all effort to hit with your body. Hit with the clubhead. I mentioned previously how the arms and shoulders are free at the top of this back swing. So when you start down, do the same thing exactly that you do in the back swing—this is, start with hands and arms and then keep on coming with hands and arms. A mighty good way to make certain of this is to follow a practice of keeping flat on the right heel until the clubhead hits. You can do that and still get all the forward movement of the body you want. You were flat on the right heel when you started the club back—why not be flat on it when you hit? Theoretically your position should be exactly the same. There is some fast footwork takes place the moment you hit, but this should be—and will be—natural and instinctive. The feeling should be that the club pulls the body through—or more precisely, that club and body go through the ball together.

New Major Managers Enter Player Market

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Within less than two weeks, seven new managers of major league ball clubs, perfectly willing to trade the radish for the horse, will be out there on the flat of their feet at the annual elocution contest, and from all indications, brisk barter in old ivory will be transacted. Most of the boys realize they can't go far wrong in trying to better the hands they hold, for one thing.

For another, a new manager always does something, for better or worse, to his ball club by way of demonstrating his superior acumen. Offhand. Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox; Stuffy McInnes of the Phillies, and Dan Howley, of the Browns, appeal to the writer as natural demonstrators.

Howley Has Poor Stock.

Howley has only the hulk of a ball club at St. Louis, and, if he doesn't trade some of these hang-overs to another club, he won't be giving himself a chance. The Browns are shot. The deposed Sisler has agreed to return as a player but he probably would do better elsewhere, provided anyone was willing to take over his contract. Marty McManus, Harry Rice, Gaston, Giard, Zachary and Ballou constitute good trading material and perhaps Howley will be able to do himself some good at Chicago this month.

He has more to offer than Carrigan, who shares the doubtful honor with McInnes of having fallen heir to the least promising outfit in baseball. McInnes has the better trading margin, at that. He could part with either Henline or Wilson, first class catchers, and he may do that, rumors of Henline's return to the Giants having been revived. The Phils need about everything, but infielders and pitchers most of all. It is unlikely that McInnes would care to talk business for Carlson, Leach, Mokan and several others, they being about all he has.

Bush Will Be Cautious.

The Athletics and Senators probably would be glad to take Phil Todt off Carrigan's hands while no one would look down their superior nose at Wingfield, Ruffing and Zahniser, young pitchers. However, Carrigan will insist on one thing; he won't start the season unless he can place nine men in the field.

Donie Bush probably will prove a cautious trader since he should have something of a ready-made club in Pittsburgh. The Pirates could use more pitching, at that, and maybe Bush will try to rectify the matter with Barnhart as possible bait. However, that young man blew himself to a bad year in 1926 and the popular clamor for his services may be audible at a distance of two and three-quarter inches.

The man who succeeds Speaker at Cleveland also may be hard to do business with, although if Eddie Collins really is to get the spot, the Indians will have to arrange some kind of a trade with the White Sox. The latter, under Ray Schalk, have an outfit lacking in balance but the trading material is there, including Blankenship, Connally, Thurston, Loverette, Lyons, Mostil and Falk. Mostil probably is out of the question for any club and the so would want plenty for some of the others. With Speaker gone, the Indians would welcome Falk but what have they to give that they don't need themselves? Sorry; I'm a trifle hard of hearing.

Moriarty Needs Pitching.

It is improbable that George Moriarty will want to alter the Tigers, sight unseen. All George needs is to get his pitching clicking along with his hitting and all the writer needs is $999,982.43 and he would have his first million. A trifle more strength at third base wouldn't be unwelcome in Detroit, either. Moriarty has plenty of trading material if he feels the urge, which he probably will not.

Why Buy Oil for the OUTSIDE of Your Motor?

When winter comes, many motorists start using a different oil. They let the outside temperature influence their oil purchases.

These motorists buy oil for the "outside of their motors." They do not reason that the temperature inside their motors is fiery hot just as it is in summer.

Because of this, your motor requires the most effective heat resisting lubricant you can buy—whether it be winter or summer. America's Greatest Sin Lost Opportunity To Hear Gospel

—Rev. O. A. Newlin.

Winona Lake, Ind., Evangelist Speaks Befor Large Week-night Audience at United Presbyterian Church.

"America's great sin is its lost opportunity to hear the gospel," declared Rev. C. A. Newlin, Winona Lake, Ind., evangelist, at the First United Presbyterian church revival last evening. "Jesus, as his custom was," he explained, "continued throughout his life a habit of church attendance that began in his youth."

Departing from his announced theme: "The Futility of Excuses," he discussed Jesus' first and last sermon in his native town of Nazareth. Hearing him was the largest week-night audience of the present campaign, it being Sunday school night, with the various classes and teachers attending in a body.

Three services were announced for Sunday with a suspension of the meetings tonight.

On Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Newlin's subject will be: "An Old Masterpiece." In the afternoon at a meeting of both men and women he will speak on "The Triumphal Climax." While in the evening he will discuss "Crossing the Bar."

Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor, announced that every night next week would be of special import. That on Monday evening will be called men's night, though women also are to attend "to see how many of the male sex are present," he said. Sunday school night will be repeated on Friday evening, that others, not present last night, might attend also.

Other nightly designations will be arranged for at the outset of the week. A prayer service in the Sunday school room followed the sermon of Rev. Mr. Newlin.

The invocation was made by Rev. Mr. McKnight, pastor of the Chester, W. Va., United Presbyterian church and the concluding prayer was given by Dr. D. N. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city.

Accompanied by Miss Adda McLain, church organist, Prof. John C. Ussher and Miss Alice Stevenson sang: "True Are All His Ways."

During the day Rev. Mr. Newlin spoke in the high school. Throughout the week he has spoken also in several local potteries.

As he promised on Thursday evening Rev. Mr. Newlin told how he had finally found the exact number of times the word "believe" occurs in Johns Gospel. Having himself counted 98 which an audience making a similar count had conformed he told his young son, before he was fatally injured in an automobile accident some years ago, had taken issue to his statement at a tabernacle meeting in Michigan that the word was to be found 98 times in the Book of John. "It is 101 times, father," he confided on their way to their stopping place. Some weeks later both read the book through together and their count totaled an even 100.

"You were wrong," observed the father.

"So were you," retorted the lad.

Then they read the book again, consuming another two hours. This time they found the word 101 times.

The boy had been right all the time.

TAX COLLECTORS MUST PAY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — Ohio tax collectors must themselves pay taxes, solicitor A. W. Gregg, of the bureau of internal revenue ruled today.

Gregg held that compensation received by collectors of delinquent taxes in Ohio is not exempt from federal income taxes. The collectors in a number of Ohio counties insisted that they were state employes and therefore exempt from federal taxes.

The bureau held, however, that the Ohio law does not create an office of tax collector, but merely confers on the county treasury the power to appoint a person to perform a part of his duties.

WESTERN FILM AT AMERICAN

West Point Featured in "The Flaming Frontier."

West Point, with all its romance and colorful surroundings, is prominently featured in "The Flaming Frontier," an Edward Sedgwick-Universal Production that is to be the attraction at the American theatre, commencing Monday. This spectacular western picture is set down in the period of 1876 and has for its great climax the famous Custer massacre in which Gen. George A. Custer and the Seventh U. S. Cavalry were slaughtered by the Sioux under Chief Sitting Bull.

In the scene showing West Point the life there has been carefully reproduced in every detail. New cadets are seen arriving at the big government school. The form of hazing which the plebs of that period were forced to undergo is also shown, as is their transformation from awkward youths to erect, dignified officers. In this respect alone, "The Flaming Frontier" is a picture that will make Americans thrill with pride as they see the intimate life of the great military college.

"Flirtation Lane," sacred to love and beauty in the midst of things that speak only of war, has been caught in all its romanticism. Down this famwalk, generations of cadets whose names were later to stand out as great army officers, have walked arm-in arm with their sweethearts. "Flirtation Lane" has seen the budding of many a love story, and it is unusual in that it has no duplicate in any other country in the world.

"The Flaming Frontier" is presented by an all-star cast. Hoot Gibson, Universal's famous Western "ace," comes before the motion picture public in the greatest production in which he has ever appeared . Gibson plays the leading male role. He is first seen as Bob Langdon, a pony express rider and friend of Custer, who secures his appointment as a West Point Cadet. Just before graduation Bob is expelled from the academy for an offense of which he is innocent. He returns to the plains, is once more a pony express rider and later is the messenger sent by Custer to Reno to the aid of the beleaguered Seventh Cavalry. As pony express rider and Custer' messenger, Gibson again proves that he is the screen's greatest horseman, his dash through the Indians being one of the big features of the picture.

Pretty Anne Cornwall, whose admirers are legion, is the heroine of the picture. "The Flaming Frontier" also marks the return to the screen of Dustin Farnum, who enjoys equal fame as screen and stage star. Farnum is cast in the heroic role of General Custer. Another sterling actor in the cast is Ward Crane, than whom there is no better picture heavy.

Kathleen Key is again perfectly cast in another great vamp role, while the fun-making Eddie Gribbon and Harry Todd take care of the comedy features of the picture. Chief Sitting Bull in all his dignity appears in the person of Noble Johnson. Others in this great cast are George Fawcett, Harold Goodwin, Charles K. French, William Steele, Walter Rodgers, Ed Wilson and Joe Bonomo. The picture was directed by Edward Sergwick, who also wrote the story.

Illiterate Adults Eager.

Illiterate men and women in Delaware are the most eager students in the short term night schools in that state. More than 1,000 of them are enrolled in the rudimentary courses. It required 69 teachers in 55 schools to give this instruction. Twice as many men as women attended. In one place where the school houses were not wired with electricity, the students brought their own lamps or lanterns to aid them in their study.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

Sadie had been waiting for Julian's question, but now didn't know how to answer it.

"She isn't even speaking to me," he continued. "Even if I . . . I didn't know I'd done anything really unkind . . . if it's this comic money business, that isn't my fault. Mr. Watt asked me point blank to help him out. What could I do? It seemed only decent."

"Julian, tell me this — has Murry given you any papers at all, anything?"

"Why no, but . . ."

"You just threw all that money in? For him to spend as he likes?"

"Well, but . . ."

"Maybe you've got a private gold mine. Of course, I don't know about that. But even J. P. Morgan couldn't . . . You saw what he's doing, buying right and left. You saw the new touring car."

"Yes, but the old one was no good."

Sadie controlled herself. "I don't want to give a wrong impression of Murry. But that money won't last a month. He isn't a crook, understand He's a child."

"I don't know but what we're all pretty much children."

"Maybe, at that."

"Sadie, I'm going to say something to Hester."

She soberly considered this proposal "I don't think I'd do that."

"But I've got to do something. Make her speak to me. I'm not the kind to . . . I wouldn't do anything to make . . . can't you see, this is awful!"

"It's pretty bad, but . . ."

"It just isn't . . . well, civilized!"

His voice broke a little on that word. Sadie — recollecting Hester's use of it—found herself on the edge of a nervous smile, but restrained herself.

"It's that young fellow, of course." Slowly Sadie inclined her head.

"But he's only a boy!"

"Nineteen, Jim says. He's pretty fresh."

"But that's . . ."

"Eight years younger than Hester."

"Hum!" They walked along in silence.

"Here's a little restaurant, Julian. Want to try it?"

"Any of the others in there?"

They looked in through the wide window.

"I've just got to keep away some," said he.

"Here's a little restaurant, Julian. Want to try it?"

"I know. Oh, Julian, it's pretty awful to be in love like this!"

"Yes."

"Don't I know. I had it once. And it wasn't my husband. A fellow in a company I was with. Tore me all up. You know, I couldn't even walk on streets where we'd been." She slipped her hand within his arm. "Oh, don't I understand!"

"Yes," said he, very low, "you understand."

"Let's go in, dear. . . . Her thoughts reverted to the picture he had made, a few moments back, as he threw those bundles of letters into the rear compartment of the olive car. And the thought found voice. "I can't help being worried about your mail."

He whirled on her, this in the doorway. "Some day, Sadie, maybe, I'll be able to tell you what I've been through. I can't now. It sets me trembling. I don't believe anybody that ever lived has been through just what I have. Though maybe I'm wrong there. I suppose everything that could happen has been lived through more than once. It isn't that I've done anything wrong. I haven't. But it was so . . . so . . ."

"All right," said Sadie, in a quieting voice. "I won't talk about it any more. Let's go in."

"I've got a fight on my hands. A big fight. It isn't just Hester. It's bigger than that. But I've got to beg'n winning somewhere. At some point. Of course Hester IS a part of it now. She is. If I fail there, I'll fail with the rest of it. But I'm going to fight! I made a mess of it up at Hollywood. But that's only a skirmish lost. I'm going to fight! I haven't really begun."

After that outburst he was moody. Sadie ate and then smoked very quietly, but there was a shine in her big blue eyes, and her face was never far from an understanding smile.

Chin on hand, he watched the blue wraiths of smoke curling upward from her cigarette. He was thinking, swiftly, intently. There were spots of high color about his temples, and his brows moved in nervous little twitches. She could fairly see his mind working. "He doesn't know I'm here," she thought wistfully. She liked to look at his forehead. . . . It was wide, not too high, and it curved back at the sides and up into the roots of his hair. "It's a gentleman's forehead," she thought.

He spoke abruptly. "Did you ever go to a cobweb party, Sadie?"

Her puzzled head moved in the negative.

"I mean when you were little. They run threads all over the house, you know, a perfect tangle of them. There's a tag on the end of each thread with the name of a youngster on it. That child has to wind up the thread, following it upstairs and down through the tangle, until he finds the prize at the other end."

"No, I never played that game," said Sadie.

"I was just thinking that life is a good deal like that . . . people's lives . . . every one a separate thread . . . you have to follow it through the tangle, never knowing where it'll lead you or what's at the other end. You're all mixed up with the others, and yet you're always alone."

"He has a wonderful mind," thought Sadie, in a little glow of excitement. . . . She wished he'd tell her what it was he had tried to do up in Hollywood. He'd gone at that so hard. But now it was as if he had dismissed it from his mind. Certainly, she couldn't follow his thread. She was wholly fascinated. She looked down at that amazing bracelet and thrilled. She wanted suddenly, impulsively, to run around the table and kiss him, but instead she lighted another cigarette. . . . Hester hadn't yet seen the bracelet. Sadie fell to wondering what she'd think. She'd have to see it soon, of course. Within the hour. They were still making up together.

"We'd better be getting on," she said. So Julian paid the check and they walked, without many words, back to the lot.

Sadie, in the dressing tent, had to struggle with an impulse to hide the exciting bit of jewelry in her suitcase. But she dismissed the thought. Sooner or later she'd have to be frank about it. So she wore it, glittering, conspicuous, on her bare arm. She felt, as she held up the mirror and laid the mascara on her eyelashes, that Hester, across the table gathering her abundant dark hair, was looking at it with a curious expression. Hester, too, would have to be frank, or else silent. Well, this appeared to be the time. So Sadie lowered the mirror.

"How perfectly lovely!" said Hester, but with more of a puzzled curiosity than enthusiasm in her voice.

"Isn't it a peach!" Sadie held it out. "Julian brought it . . ."

"Oh!" Hester couldn't restrain the low exclamation.

". . . to you, dear."

Hester hung back a moment on the canvas stool. But only a moment, before continuing to coil her hair about her pretty head.

Sadie wouldn't stop now. Her own voice was curiously burdened with emotion, but she went deliberately on with it. "He had it in his hand when he went over to speak to you yesterday. In San Diego. But you snubbed him."

There was a long silence. Hester finished her hair, and gave her make-up a final scrutiny in the little mirror, turning her face one way and then the other. Sadie rummaged through her tin box for a lipstick.

"He tried to give it to a sailor after that. A gob that had a girl with him. Funny!" Sadie contrived a smile, through her spirits were low. "The gob got mad. Thought Julian was trying to put something over on him. So then he shoved it into my hands. Said he'd throw it into the harbor if I didn't take it."

Well, the truth was out. The thought came to Sadie that she wished she could keep still when she didn't know what to say. But she never could.

What Hester finally did was to get up without a word and slip out of the tent. As she went she muttered something. Sadie wasn't sure she caught it, but it sounded like "I don't know what's going to become of me!"
